HITLER DEMANDS GERMAN KULTUR BE 100% PURE

Calls Jews Enemies of Civilization.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 1.—Chancellor Hitler told a hand picked audience of 3,000 at the Nazi party convention here today that art in the new Germany must be 100 per cent Nordic and Aryan.

Characterizing Jews as an artless race, the chancellor said that "Nazism will not tolerate incompetence in art."

"Every individual race," he continued, "has its own clean imprint in the books of art insofar as that race is contrasted to the Jews in its own artistic productivity. I do not know whether Providence will bless us with artistic geniuses, but this I know: representatives of the era now passed cannot be flagbearers of the future. It is our state, not theirs. Changing flags is not permitted.

Says Art Is Not International.

"Art never can be separated from the people. The slogan that art is international is hollow and dumb. It is a sign of gruesomeness, of spiritual decadence of past times. They spoke of styles without knowing their racial origin."

Hitler spoke at length upon art and culture. He said that "even in these times of economic depression it is the first duty to remind a nation of culture."

"To be genuine," he added, "art must be rooted in the people and must be the expression of national character. Our party is opposed to pacifistic international democracy in German kultur, as in politics."

Plans New Law on Marriages.

Hitler predicted a law forbidding marriages between Jews and gentiles. He declared that mixed marriages create generations with vacillating characters who fail their country in the hour of need.

"Peace," he said, "can be insured only if each nation lives according to the needs of its blood and its kind and permits other nations to live according to their own requirements."

Prior to his address Hitler was enthusiastically welcomed in the convention hall amid the shouts of 15,000 devoted followers. The delegates raised a terrific din as the chancellor entered and made his way to the rostrum.

Non-Nazi Ministers Present.

Upon reaching the rostrum, Hitler shook hands with members of his cabinet. Non-Nazi ministers, including Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, and Minister of Defense Werner von Blomberg, were present.

Premier Adolph Wagner of Bavaria read a proclamation by Hitler in which the chancellor denounced the Jews as a peril to western civilization. The famous German historian, Theodor Mommsen, was quoted as warning the world against the Jews.

"If the great German historian, Mommsen, characterized Jewry as a ferment of decomposition in the life of nations, then decomposition in Germany is far advanced," the proclamation said. "In view of the international affiliations of this main ferment of decomposition and the particular dangers resulting to Germany from it we must ever the more strive to eliminate among our people the spirit of doubt.

"If, therefore, National Socialism with ferocious determination fought against the stealthy collapse of the occident, it did so in recognition of the not yet destroyed values innate in civilized nations."

"Congress of Victory."

Today's congress was opened with the words:

"I open a congress of victory."

They were delivered by Rudolf Hess, deputy chief of the party, who said:

"I should like to describe Nazism and Fascism as sound common sense cast into political forms. Both can desire but one thing, namely, to obtain security over and against those states in which sound common sense obviously does not yet reign.

"Present day Germany is the most modern democracy in the world whose leader, rooted in the people and borne by the confidence of the majority of the people, gained the right to leadership from his own strength.

"This congress may be described as the most modern representation of the people."

Capt. Ernst Roehm, chief of the Nazi storm troops, told the convention that a nation can find progress only in peaceful activities and that it is contrary to sound common sense for any one to want war.

EXPLOSIONS LAID TO BOOZE STILLS WRECK 2 HOMES

Two houses on the far south side were wrecked last night by what police said were still explosions. Both blasts were heard for several miles. The first destroyed a five room bungalow at 9919 Princeton avenue. People in the neighborhood said they saw a man running out of the rear door a moment after the explosion.

A concrete tunnel leading from the bungalow to the garage in the rear was discovered. Inside it was a pulley arrangement which permitted the moving of booze supplies between the house and garage. In the tunnel police found a frightened but unharmed dog. A rent receipt discovered in the débris was made out to Robert B. Cohs. This same name was traced to a car found near the scene.

The second explosion wrecked the rear of the frame building at 11912 South Michigan avenue, occupied as a residence and florist shop by Steve Ostrowski. Police said the explosion was not reported to them for more than an hour. They found parts of what were said to be still equipment in the basement. Ostrowski will be questioned.

Motorist Shot by Policeman After Quarrel

A husband and wife were sent to the Edgewater hospital last night, the former with bullet wounds in the abdomen and arm from a policeman's gun, and the latter—an expectant mother—suffering from shock as a result of the shooting.

Police investigators after a preliminary inquiry described the shooting, and particularly the events preceding it, as "unnecessary." The policeman who did the shooting pleaded self-defense. He is Patrick Gibbons of the Summerdale station. The wounded husband is Harold Lind, 37 years old, 1472 Argyle street, a city electrician. His wife is Mrs. Irene Lind.

Result of Autoist's Complaint.

The events leading to the gun play began when an unidentified motorist walked into the Summerdale station and complained to Acting Desk Sergt. Myles Moorehouse that another automobile had struck his car at Oakley avenue and Irving Park boulevard. He mentioned the license number of the other car and asked Moorehouse to trace it. The desk sergeant did so, and found it was issued to Lind.

Moorehouse then told the motorist to go to Lind's address and he would send a policeman there. According to investigators the trouble was a civil matter, requiring no police interest. Moorehouse sent Policeman Gibbons to the Lind home.

When Policeman Gibbons arrived he found Lind and the complaining motorist quarreling in front of the home. He told the two men to accompany him to the station. At this point Mrs. Lind appeared. She was obviously distressed over the incident, witnesses said. Policeman Gibbons insisted on Lind going to the station. Mrs. Lind placed herself between Gibbons and her husband.

"You can't arrest my husband," she cried.

Husband Shot in Scuffle.

Mrs. Lind collapsed a moment later. Lind rushed at Gibbons, evidently believing the policeman had struck his wife down. Gibbons drew his revolver. The two men struggled, and during the fight Gibbons fired, hitting Lind. Mrs. Lind already lay unconscious on the sidewalk. She and her husband were taken to the hospital. Physicians said Lind might die. His wife may lose her child, they said.

Acting Capt. John L. Sullivan questioned Policeman Gibbons and said there would be a further investigation. In the meantime the complaining motorist got away without his name being learned.

DENVER STORE BUYER, BELIEVED KIDNAPED, FOUND

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 1.—(AP)—An apparent amnesia victim found wandering on the street here tonight was identified, police said, as Bernard Bitterman, 28 year old Denver department store buyer, who has been missing a week.

Believed by Denver authorities to have been kidnaped, a widespread search for him was begun in Denver as well as in Pacific coast cities without success.

Very evidently suffering from a mental lapse of some kind, they said, he was taken to police headquarters and later to a hospital for examination by physicians.

HYPNOTIC THIEF ROBS WOMAN OF $167 IN HER HOME

Hypnosis cost Mrs. Fred Newton $167, she reported last night to Highland Park police. Mrs. Newton was sitting in her home in the county line road, Highland Park, yesterday when two gypsy women appeared. They asked for alms and she gave them a dollar. In appreciation, one of the women offered to tell Mrs. Newton's fortune. Mrs. Newton consented. Then, according to Mrs. Newton's story, she was hypnotized. When she awakened she discovered that $167 savings had been stolen from a closet.

Drug Store Near Homes of Public Officials Bombed

Several public officials and their families were aroused this morning by the bombing of a drug store at 1151 West Garfield boulevard. Among them were Judges John J. Sullivan and Harold P. O'Connell, City Treasurer James A. Kearns, and Ald. James J. McDermott. All live within two blocks of the pharmacy. The drug store is owned by Daniel Seibert. The bomb, a dynamite affair, wrecked the front of the drug store and part of the interior, doing damage of about $750. Seibert told police he knew of no motive for it.

Widow of Engineer Wills Railroad Company $5,000

Long Beach, Cal., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Without explanation, a $5,000 bequest to the Illinois Central railroad was made in the will of Mary E. Burgess, filed for probate today. Mrs. Burgess, widow of Charles Burgess, retired engineer for the Illinois Central, died a few weeks ago. The residue of her estate, given as "in excess of $10,000," was left to be divided among two sisters and several friends.

BLONDE TIGRESS BEGINS TRIP TO PRISON TODAY

Her Pal Sentenced to Die Oct. 13.

Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, the blonde "tiger girl," was preparing last night for her trip to the penitentiary this morning to start serving the 199 year murder sentence formally imposed on her yesterday by Judge Philip L. Finnegan after he overruled a motion for a new trial. She will be accompanied on the trip by four other women convicted of various crimes.

George Dale, sweetheart of the "tiger girl," was also denied a new trial. He was sentenced to death in the electric chair and his execution was set for Oct. 13, the same date as was set for the electrocution of Morris Cohen and John Scheck, police slayers.

Leo Minneci, the companion of Dale and Mrs. Jarman when they climaxed a career of banditry with the murder of Gustave Hoeh, 71 years old, a haberdasher, also was refused a new trial. He will be taken to the penitentiary with the next lot of men prisoners, Warden David Moneypenny of the county jail announced.

249 Penitentiary Sentences.

With the formal sentencing of Mrs. Jarman and her companions, the total of penitentiary sentences imposed by Criminal court judges since the war on crime began a month ago was boosted to 249. Three death sentences have been inflicted in the campaign.

Mrs. Jarman, who seemed relieved after she found that she was not to be electrocuted for her crime, was moody last evening after she was ordered by jail officials to pack up to be ready for her trip to the women's prison at Dwight this morning.

"I guess you will be going to your permanent home in the morning," said the jail matron as she gave her the order.

"Yes, I guess it will be permanent all right," replied Mrs. Jarman as she stirred from a chair. "I do not think I can live beyond my 95th birthday." [Under the sentence imposed on her she is not eligible for release until that time.]

Judge Sentences "Tigress."

Judge Finnegan earlier in the day had made short work of the new trial motions. The first to be sentenced was Mrs. Jarman, who was sobbing as she was taken into the courtroom. The judge asked if she had anything to say as to why sentence should not be imposed.

"I am innocent," she said. "I had no idea what the others were doing. It was just a chance acquaintance. Give me another chance."

"Is that all?" asked Judge Finnegan, and when the "tigress" replied in the affirmative he continued: "I then sentence you to serve 199 years in the penitentiary. Take her away and bring in Minneci."

Pleads for New Trial.

Minneci fingered a rosary when he was brought forward. He started to make a plea for a new trial, frequently referring to the judge as "Father." He said something about his three children. The judge replied curtly that he should have thought of them a long time before.

"Well, I'll tell you," said the judge. "I will give you a new trial on one condition."

Minneci, who had appeared to be trying to simulate insanity at various times since the jury found him guilty on Wednesday night, started to smile as the judge hesitated. His smile disappeared as the judge continued:

"That is, that you plead guilty and submit to a bench trial. Then I will send you to the chair."

Dale was then called forward to hear the death sentence. He tried to absolve his sweetheart, Mrs. Jarman.

"There is something your honor should know," he said. "There was another woman in this case. It wasn't Mrs. Jarman who was in the store. She was in the car outside. The woman's name is Mary Davis and she is the same size and description as Mrs. Jarman."

When asked as to her whereabouts Dale said he could not tell. The judge then read the death sentence.

Prystalski Tries Robbery Case.

Chief Justice John Prystalski, who started the campaign against criminals, worked last night with a jury to finish up a robbery case which has been hanging fire in the courts since last May.

The defendants in the case are Louis Jacobs, 26 years old; Charles Kunowski, 24, and Joseph Stopec, 23. They are charged with robbing John Gawin, secretary of the Zgoda Building and

Cuba Lashed by Hurricane; 3 Looters Shot

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 1.—Havana escaped possible destruction tonight when the vortex of a tropical hurricane, which reached a velocity of 80 miles per hour, passed within 12 miles north of the Morro Castle lighthouse. The Cuban capital was struck by the tail end of the storm.

Sixteen persons were injured, most of them by falling bricks and glass from buildings. Scores of houses were levelled on the outskirts of the city. Within the city trees were uprooted along the boulevards and in the parks. Considerable property damage was reported.

Sweeps Northern Coast.

Starting its havoc 25 miles east of Antilla, in Oriente province, the hurricane swept along the north coast of the island in a westerly direction at a rate of 15 miles an hour.

The storm struck Havana late in the afternoon. It described a swift arc, sweeping all in its path along the entire north coast from Antilla to the Hershey sugar mill, 21 miles east of Havana. Then it turned sharply north.

The center of the storm is heading toward Pensacola, Fla., but is sufficiently wide to affect the west portion of Florida, according to Father Mariano Gutierrez Lanza, director of Belen college observatory.

Secretary of the Interior Lareda Bru said private reports indicate that the property loss will run into millions of dollars. He intimated that the casualties might be heavy. One report from Santa Clara said six persons were killed.

In Havana many houses, undermined by huge waves which swept over the waterfront, collapsed. Firemen were kept busy throughout the early evening rescuing the occupants. Tons of water roared over the sea wall and swept inward three blocks.

61 Looters Jailed.

The city was plunged into darkness tonight when the government ordered the electric power cut off because of the menace of dangling wires.

Three looters were killed and 61 were jailed by the ABC and OCRR, radical revolutionary organizations, which mobilized their forces and are patrolling the streets, with orders to shoot to kill any one who fails to obey a command to halt. Martial law was declared in all zones affected by the storm.

The Cunard liner Mauretania, with 775 tourists aboard, was unable to reach the harbor and is riding out the storm off Cape San Antonio, on the extreme western tip of Pinar del Rio province. The liners California and Peten left their moorings and are anchored in the middle of the harbor. Six fishing schooners sank in the harbor.

Four Ships Aground.

Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Four ships were reported aground, a fifth struck by one of the four, and a sixth as unreported in messages intercepted by the local station of the Radiomarine Corporation of America tonight from the hurricane area near Cuba.

The grounded vessels are the Josephine Gray, British; the Stal, Danish; the Thyra, registry unreported, and the Baron Harris, British.

The Athel Foam, which went to the rescue of the Josephine Gray, was unreported.

Schooner Feared Lost.

Port Arthur, Tex., Sept. 1.—(AP)—L. Garcia, owner of the schooner Mary expressed fear today for the lives of nine men, including his brother Mario, aboard the vessel, missing off the Atlantic coast. He was advised by the coast guard at Norfolk, Va., that the name plate and a part of the stern had been washed ashore there.

EASTERN MINE OWNERS FIGHT UNION CLAUSE

Johnson May Act in Emergency.

Henry Ford expected to tell his attitude on NRA Tuesday; it is reported that he will refuse to sign the auto code and will launch out in a spectacular "go it alone" plan. Details on page 3.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Negotiations between the United Mine Workers of America and the nonunion soft coal operators of the Appalachian field collapsed tonight and some of the operators began leaving for their homes.

The collapse resulted from an impasse into which the conference stumbled today when the operators served on the miners an opinion from their counsel to the effect that the recovery act prevented them from making a closed shop agreement.

The conferees were also deadlocked on the question of the checkoff. The union refused to allow the operators to check off powder, house rent, lights, and other items if the operators in turn refused to check off union dues. The checkoff of union dues is customary in wage agreements between the United Mine Workers and the coal operators.

Up to Johnson to Act.

As a result of the collapse of the conference it was reported in coal circles tonight that a code for the bituminous industry would have to be imposed on the operators by Gen. Johnson, recovery administrator, or the President.

The legal opinion, drawn up by J. Van Norman, counsel to the Smokeless and Appalachian Coal association, was used by the operators today in an effort to persuade the committee of the miners' union that the collective bargaining provision of the act was inimical to a collective agreement with the union covering all employés.

Text of Legal Opinion.

"Under section 7 (A) of the national industrial recovery act an employer may not lawfully contract with a given labor union to employ none but its members—that is, to maintain a closed shop. This is so because the code provides that 'No employé and no one seeking employment shall be required as a condition of employment . . . to refrain from joining, organizing, or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing.' If the employer contracts to employ only members of Union A he must thereafter dismiss from his employ any employé who insists on joining the rival Union B. When the employer does this he is plainly requiring the employé, as a condition of employment, to refrain from joining . . . a labor organization of his own choosing.' And this is a violation of the statute.

"The agreement of the employer to employ a worker only on condition that he belonged to a named union is manifestly a limitation on the freedom of choice of such worker as between rival unions and is a violation of the act."

Bombshell in NRA Camp.

The decision of the operators to make another attack on the recovery act after they had failed to have inserted into it a qualification of the collective bargaining provision, came as a bombshell to the union and the national recovery administration.

When comment was sought from Recovery Director Hugh S. Johnson on the new phase of the controversy he referred inquiries to Donald R. Richberg, general counsel to the recovery administration. Mr. Richberg could not be reached.

The development, however, appeared to pass to Gen. Johnson the question of deciding whether the operators have broken faith in the agreement to recognize the union.

The understanding reached last week in negotiations in which Gen. Johnson took a leading part apparently decided the question as to whether or not the union would be completely recognized. Inasmuch as the miners' union makes its contract for all employés "in and about the mines" it was assumed that the nonunion operators would in the new agreement follow the same procedure.

Series of Strikes Forecast.

Collapse of the contract negotiations at this stage may forecast a series of unparalleled strikes in the coal fields and labor disturbances elsewhere. For a month the union officers have ordered striking miners back to work pending adoption of a code and the writing of an agreement.

Gen. Johnson has repeatedly held that the question of open shop and closed shop did not appear in the recovery act. He and Mr. Richberg have made several statements amplifying the collective bargaining provision of the act.

It was pointed out tonight that in some of the codes already agreed to specific provisions were made for inclusion of union agreements under which employers announced their willingness to hire only members of a specified union.

The contract between the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union and the manufacturers provides that employers will engage only members of the union in their shops. In this case there exists a communist union, but the employers have refused to recognize it and have agreed to adhere only to the union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Reveals Unionism Theories.

Earlier today Recovery Administrator Johnson invited still more woes unto himself when he revealed his general theories of unionism and industry

Issuing a statement in reply to his resigned first assistant, Dudley Cates of Chicago, who had criticized the labor policies of NRA, Gen. Johnson disclosed that in theory he favors an abolishment of the system of labor craft organizations. He branded as "obsolete" this setup of brotherhoods and international unions under which organized labor has gone forward for many years, and he believes that in place of this type of labor group should rise vertical unions within single industries.

Can't Be Done Over Night.

This was in effect the argument of Mr. Cates, who resigned because Gen. Johnson would not attempt to remake the union system over night in the present effort. While Mr. Cates advocated the change to take place at once, Gen. Johnson approves in theory, but the general believes the improvement, if it is ever to come, must await more practical and timely circumstances.

Gen. Johnson visions industry organized vertically, as it must be under NRA code management, with the heads of the industry on an administrative committee, responsible to the government. From this, he disclosed today, he goes to favor all the workers of the industry organized in the same vertical fashion, with an overhead labor control, "as responsible to government as is industry."

Discusses Cates' Resignation.

Gen. Johnson has not voiced a desire to see a fully developed Fascist form of industrial control by the American government, but his forceful, sometimes ruthless manner of attacking dissenters to his schemes has laid him open to frequent charges of attempting a dictatorship over industry.

The revelation of Johnson's theories was contained in a statement discussing the Cates resignation.

After expressing his regret that Mr. Cates had made public a statement criticizing the NRA labor policy, Gen. Johnson stated:

"Mr. Cates discloses a theme which many of us here entertain—that, with an industry organized vertically, the logical labor organization is vertical also, with overhead control in labor, as responsible to government as is industry. Craft organization is obsolete.

"NRA Must Be Neutral.

"The difficulty in passing from theory to practice is that the law says of labor organizations that they shall be of the workers' 'own choosing,' and I take that to mean 'of no theoretical administrative choosing.'

"I early determined that it was the function of NRA as prescribed by the statute to maintain an attitude of perfect neutrality, to lend itself to no theory, but to execute the law. The only issue between Mr. Cates and myself is the issue of statutory interpretation and faithfulness to a decided policy of the President."

1,000 Iowa Miners Quit.

Chariton, Ia., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Demanding that their employers agree on an industrial code, nearly 1,000 Iowa miners laid down their tools today and quit work. Six hundred here adopted a resolution which was forwarded to Gen. Johnson, industrial administrator at Washington.

More than 300 more near Des Moines, working in two mines, walked out. In a session at the Labor temple in Des Moines tonight they decided not to return to work until a coal code is agreed upon and signed.

WOMAN HANGS HERSELF.

A woman about 45 years old, who gave the name of Mrs. Woerner when she rented a room at 1220 North Clark street on Aug. 19, hanged herself yesterday in her room there, leaving a note blaming ill health.

Eastman Tells Roosevelt NRA Code Unwise for Railroads

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The nation's rail carriers were adjudged better off today by Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, if not brought under the national recovary act with its wage and hour fixing codes.

In a memorandum to President Roosevelt, the coördinator disclosed simultaneously that he had been communicating informally with railroad executives to correct what he considered unhealthy spots in the railway labor situation.

Certain classes of rail employés, he said, now are working longer hours than necessary in comparison with other classes.

"I am hopeful of favorable results," he said. "It may be possible, also, to provide for minimum wages consistent with those adopted in the codes, in the few instances where such minimum wages may be necessary."

Thinks NRA for Rails Unwise.

Taking up first the question of whether the NRA is applicable legally to the carriers, the federal coördinator said that his "own opinion is that the railroads are not included."

Discussing whether the recovery act should be applied to the carriers as a matter of policy, he said:

"Under all of the circumstances I am of the opinion that the adoption of a code for the railroads under the NIRA would not be wise, even if it were legally practicable.

"In saying this, I do not mean that railroad labor conditions are all that they should be. In the memorandum from the railway labor executives association it is stated that the railroads employ 1,750,000 in normal times and are now employing about 1,000,000, leaving 750,000 unemployed.

"This is, I think, an over statement, for improvements in transportation methods make it improbable that anything like 750,000 would be reemployed even if traffic should be restored to 1929 proportions.

"There is a bad unemployment situation on the railroads, but the best hope for improvement lies in an increase in business activity which will add to the traffic and earnings of the railroads, enabling them not only to increase their train service but also to make up much deferred maintenance. Anything which would interfere with the improvement of railroad net earnings would also stand in the way of such a program of re-employment.

Labor to Frame Protest.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Expressing "disappointment and shock" upon learning the national industrial recovery act is not to be applied to railroads, A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives association, today said the association "will take immediate steps to have the railroad working day shortened without a reduction in wages."

Mr. Whitney said the association will meet "very soon" at which time plans will be discussed for a movement to obtain a shorter working day for railroad men "in an effort to increase employment and purchasing power.

He said a communication on the subject from President Roosevelt had been sent to all association members with a request for suggestions on a plan of action and a meeting date.

The President's communication, Mr. Whitney said, took the position that railroads should not come under provisions of the national industrial recovery act because of the emergency railroad labor act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—With an eye on the surplus bogey, which it holds responsible for the farmers' present ills, the agricultural adjustment administration announced today that not even vegetables grown for use on the farmers' own table can be raised on land contracted out of production in the federal farm relief program.

Nor can the farmers use the acres involved in the government reduction contract for raising feed for live stock if the live stock is to be sold. Only if the stock is to be used at home, and if present feed acreage for it is not sufficient, can the acres be devoted to this purpose, it was held.

The regulations, promulgated by Joseph F. Cox, chief of the replacement crop section of the farm adjustment administration, are expected, it was said, "to relieve dairy, poultry, and live stock interests of apprehension that acreage taken out of production might result in diversion to these three crops and increased supplies of these commodities."

The purposes to which the government recommends the contracted land be put are as follows: Permit the land to lie unplanted; practice summer fallowing; plant permanent pasture; plant to meadow crops; practice weed control; plant to forest trees and plant to soil improvement crops.

ROBBERIES DROP SHARPLY, DUE TO WAR ON CRIME

The anti-crime and anti-hoodlum campaigns now being carried on by the courts and the police are showing results, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said last night.

"Robbery and other major crimes have dropped noticeably," said the detective head. "Professional criminals and hoodlums are actually worried, and most of our notorious racketeers are leaving the city or are in hiding. Moreover, they are not carrying guns."

Chief Schoemaker cited figures to show the effectiveness of the anti-crime fight. The average daily number of robberies in Chicago before the campaign began was between forty and fifty, he said. In the last week the average daily number has been between twelve and fifteen.

900 DAIRYMEN WITHHOLD MILK FROM PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Milk regularly supplied to the Peoria market by the Illinois Milk Producers' association was withheld today by 900 to 1,000 shippers as the result of differences between them and milk dealers of the city over prices and classification arrangements.

The action, threatened by the producers a week ago last Wednesday, follows a series of conferences with milk dealers and J. H. Lloyd, assistant director of the state department of agriculture, in which no agreement was reached.

Farmers affiliated with the organization were advised yesterday by officials that "the Illinois Milk Producers' association would not deliver milk to Peoria dealers after 12:01 a. m. today."

The communication, signed by Ryland Capron of Alta, president, went on to warn members not to use any violence or participate in any of the common forms of intimidation, such as blocking roads or dumping milk of competitors.

While the strike affects five Peoria dealers, the supply of all classes of milk for all needs will not be hampered, it was said by Lyle W. Roszell, representing the dealers.

"Milk and cream will be supplied to us by independent producers close to Peoria and the supply is plentiful," he said.

CUMMINGS SEES U. S. SUCCESSFUL IN KIDNAPING WAR

Attorney General to See Green and Fair.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings arrived yesterday for his first official visit to Chicago. All his time before his departure this afternoon will be occupied, he said, by conferences with United States Attorney Dwight Green and a visit to A Century of Progress.

At 10 a. m. today, the attorney general will be greeted by a 19 gun salute at the Fourteenth street gate of the World's Fair. He will spend the morning at the Exposition and after luncheon will return to the United States courthouse for more conferences before leaving for Washington at 2:40 p. m.

Assistant Accompanies Him.

Accompanied by his special assistant, Joseph B. Keenan, counsel for the Copeland senate committee investigating racketeering, Mr. Cummings came here from Grand Rapids, where he addressed the American Bar association Thursday. He was met by Mr. Green and Melvin H. Purvis, agent in charge of the division of investigation in this area.

Commenting upon the kidnaping wave, the attorney general said that the government's drive has accomplished "extraordinary results."

"All kidnaping cases within the jurisdiction of the government have been solved," he declared, "and those responsible are either under arrest or their identities known. We have had thirteen such cases in the last fifteen months. The people must bear in mind, however, that there are more persons under arms in the war upon society than in both the army and the navy. That should give them some conception of our task.

Discuss Local Problems.

"My visit is for the purpose of interviewing Mr. Green on the situation in our office here and the problems before him. There are quite a number of key cities in the country—New York and Chicago among them. Recently I conferred with United States Attorney Medalie in New York and my trip here has a similar aim.

"I have every confidence in Mr Green. He has done splendid work which entitles him to the thanks of the community. He and his staff have done fine work on the Insull prosecution."

New legislation to cover kidnapings will be presented to congress in the short session this winter, the attorney general said, some of it prompted by the multitude of suggestions which have poured into his office.

Born in Chicago.

Mr. Cummings revealed that he is a native Chicagoan, having been born "some place on Indiana avenue." His father was a cement manufacturer and the family moved to the east when the son was only eighteen months old.

Elaborating upon what his chief had said, Assistant Attorney General Keenan spoke of the Factor kidnaping. "It has many unusual aspects," he said, "and all these have not been cleared up. We believe, however, that Factor was held in confinement for several days."

Asked if Mr. Cummings' statement that all kidnapers were known included Factor's abductors, Keenan said, "We know who they are."

Visits Fair Grounds.

The attorney general made an informal visit to the Fair last night accompanied by Mr. Keenan, Mr. Green, and Edward N. Hurley, receiver for Middle West Utilities and personal friend of the cabinet member.

Following a dinner in the trustees' lounge the party was taken on a tour of the Fair by water as guests of Harry Rice, commander of the lagoon fleet. Mr. Cummings was delighted with the view of the Fair by night, asking numerous questions as to lighting, buildings and the operation. He personally thanked the college student pilot and guide at the conclusion of the trip.

Mr. Cummings then expressed a desire to visit the Streets of Paris and the party were given the "freedom of the port."

NRA Hopes for Settlement of Garment Strike Today

A settlement of the strike of 8,000 Chicago garment workers may come today. This was the prediction yesterday of Max Meyer, member of the national labor board, who was sent here by the recovery administration to arbitrate differences between the dress manufacturers and the employés who walked out twelve days ago.

NRA headquarters at Washington became interested in the local situation because the striking members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union charged that the employers were not abiding by the provisions of their NRA code. Termination of the strike may set a precedent for ironing out similar troubles in other cities.

Make Progress Toward Peace.

Mr. Meyer was in conference with representatives of the union and of the dress manufacturers until 2 a. m. yesterday. The conference in the Sherman hotel was resumed yesterday and late yesterday Mr. Meyer announced that good progress towards settlement of the strike was being made.

"It is my hope that some agreement may be reached by Saturday noon," he declared. "We are agreed on many points and progress is being made toward complete settlement.

"I am going to keep right after this matter until it is settled. I'll stay in Chicago until every point is cleared up."

Millinery Trade Watches.

The conference was being watched with interest by striking employés of the millinery industry who walked out early this week. It was said that a settlement of the garment workers' strike will result in a similar end to the millinery workers' strike.

The millinery strike has been accompanied by disorder. Ten egg throwing strikers, all but two of them women, were arrested Thursday night when a crowd of strikers rioted in front of 600 South Marshfield avenue.

The millinery manufacturers yesterday issued a statement expressing their determination to oppose a closed shop, which they maintain is the only issue at stake. They declared their willingness to enter into collective bargaining and to meet with union officials on questions relating to hours, wages, and conditions of employment.

They challenged officials of the union to show that wages as low as $3.52 to $6.52 a week were being paid for a 40 hour week, maintaining that no weekly wage less than $13 has been paid since July 31.

Court Forbids Picketing.

Superior Judge Joseph B. David issued an injunction yesterday restraining officials of the millinery workers' union from picketing the hat factory of the W. F. Chiniquy company, 1700 Washington boulevard. Chiniquy testified that he operates an open shop but is working under the NRA.

A third strike in Chicago, that of the Pocketbook Makers union, has been voted but not yet called. Harry Meyers, president of the Mid-West Hand Bag and Small Leather Goods association, and other manufacturers conferred yesterday with Sam Lederman, organizer for the union.

Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum company, yesterday announced he has authorized a pay roll increase of more than $3,000,000 a year and the immediate employment of more than 3,000 new workers in thirty states.

Garage Men Promise 4,000 Jobs.

Four hundred members of the United States Garage Owners' association met last night at 205 West Wacker drive to discuss a code which, they say, will put over 4,000 men to work in the Chicago area in ninety days if approved by the NRA. The code provides for a sixty hour week for ordinary garage employés and an eight hour day for mechanics. No mention of salaries under the proposed code was made.

The total of employés in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa under the NRA was raised to 1,508,093 yesterday when the department of commerce reported the acceptances of 6,685 more firms, raising the total of firms in the area to 195,801. Of these, 1,858 were Chicago firms. Chicago employers under the NRA now number 823,015.

State of Maine to Buy Only from NRA Members

Augusta, Me., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Gov. Louis J. Brann said today the state of Maine "does not propose to buy anything from companies that have not signed NRA codes." As for the state itself adopting a code, as some states have done, he said, "it would be possible were it not for our institutions. We can't seem to find a plan for institutional employés."

TRIBUNE OFFICE IS ENROLLMENT STATION FOR NRA

THE TRIBUNE Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street, which has been aiding Chicagoans and visitors to the city with all manner of information for the last 11 years, has now been designated as a station for the enrollment of consumers under the Blue Eagle of the NRA.

NRA consumer stickers and cards, which consumers may sign and thereby signify their coöperation with the administration, are available at the loop office. The cards carry the following pledge: "I will coöperate in reemployment by supporting and patronizing employers and workers who are members of the NRA."

Besides this service, information on auto tours, income taxes, railroad reservations and many other matters is also dispensed free of charge at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office. Maps and booklets are free or are sold at cost or less.

EXPLAIN PARKING CONTRACT MADE BY SOUTH PARKS

Charge Same Rent as for Soldiers' Field.

George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the south parks system, said yesterday that the park board is charging the same rental for the parking concession at the south end of the World's Fair grounds that it charges for the use of Soldiers' field. In addition, he said, the board retains for the parks the improvements made to the parking lots by the lessee.

The rental for Soldiers' field and for the parking space is 10 per cent of the gross receipts. Mr. Donoghue estimated that at the expiration of the contract on Nov. 1 there would be turned over to the parks $20,000 worth of improvements, such as grading and building up low areas with cinders, that will be of definite use to the parks and to the persons who visit them.

Draw Employment Contract.

The parking contract was let to W. C. Kominske after he had submitted to the commissioners the proposals written into the contract. An employment contract was drawn up by the board's attorney, according to Mr. Donoghue, as a legal method of transacting business. He said that Mr. Kominske is not on the pay roll of the park board.

"At the time the proposal was made to the park board," said Mayor Kelly, "I asked if there was any reason why the park should not operate the parking space. I was told that it would be a gamble: that it was unlikely that it would pay for the park to put money into parking spaces as there was serious doubt whether the south end of the Fair would attract much attendance.

Good Business Transaction.

"In view of the uncertainty of the outcome of an investment of park money in the parking spaces, the proposal appeared to be a good business transaction for the board and I voted for it upon the recommendation of the general superintendent."

The mayor said operation of the miniature railroad from Monroe street to the north entrance of the Fair grounds has increased the revenue of the parking lot operated by the park at Monroe street by between $150 and $200 a day.

TRIBUNE MUSEUM VISITED BY 14,000 DURING AUGUST

The romance of pulp logging in THE TRIBUNE'S timberlands and of Chicago's growth as depicted in the historical museum on the twentieth floor of the Tribune Tower attracted a record attendance of 14,000 during August. Since the museum opened on June 2 there have been 32,000 visitors, coming from every state in the Union and thirty foreign countries.

In common with many other attractions in the city the museum has found that a large portion of its attendance is from out of town. A large number of foreign visitors to the World's Fair have included the museum in their sightseeing.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—For the first time since he took office on March 4 President Roosevelt got a complete rest today—a real rest, instead of the merely official vacations he has had at Hyde Park, where at least a few hours of each day had to be devoted to the pressing business of the nation. On Vincent Astor's yacht, Nourmahal, anchored off Montauk point, the President issued an order of the day: "Rest and relaxation."

On his leisurely way back to Washington, where he is due on Tuesday, the President was almost completely isolated and able to forget the problems of the NRA for a few days.

Anchored Off Montauk.

From the yacht a radio message to the navy department in Washington went out this morning as follows:

"Anchored early today in Fort Pond bay off Montauk after uneventful passage last evening through Hell Gate and during the night on Long Island sound waters.

"Weather overcast, moderate winds, intermittent drizzle.

"Order of the day rest and relaxation for the President, with indications that this will be the first day since March 4 that he has been free from worries of official business.

Transfer to Fishing Sloop.

The only decision the President had to make today was what kind of fishing to do—tuna in the waters around Montauk point or sword fish off Block island. He decided to try the tuna and arrangements were made for he and his party to transfer this afternoon to the 45 foot fishing sloop Orca, one of the two small boas that had been anchored near the yacht during the night. The Orca is owned by Capt. Herman Gray of Florida and is the boat President Hoover used on a fishing trip off the Florida keys last winter. The other fishing boat, the Dawn, owned by Capt. Charles Tuma, was to be used as an auxiliary, carrying equipment.

FORD AIDS SEE VIGOROUS FIGHT FOR OWN CODE

Expect He Will Take Action in Few Days.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Indications tonight were that Henry Ford is planning a sudden, vigorous offensive in his controversy with the national recovery administration, but just what the motor magnate intends to do his associates profess not to know.

Out of a welter of rumors springing up in the face of the refusal of Ford to reveal his plans has come one principal belief — fostered by associates who will not permit the use of their names—that Ford will not sign the NRA automotive code, but will launch out in a spectacular "go it alone" plan, which may include the public presentation of his own business "code."

It may even include a return to the famous $5 a day minimum wage, abandoned several months ago.

Denies Profit Sharing Plan.

But, one associate declared today, it will not include a plan for sharing profits with employes, as had been widely rumored during the last few days.

The profit sharing plan, the associate declared, is "strictly the bunk." While he declined the use of his name, he said that if a "Ford code" is offered, there will be no more "profit sharing" than is conducted in the Ford organization at present—a participation in profits through an employes' bank in which the interest is based on profits. The interest now is about 4 per cent, but at one period it was as high as 16 per cent.

By next Tuesday—the day the automobile code becomes effective—it was indicated, Ford will be back from his vacation in the north woods of Michigan. While there he has refused any comment on the NRA with the crisp statement, "I have nothing at all to say on the NRA."

Son Also to Be Back.

By the same day Edsel Ford, vacationing at Seal Harbor, Me., will have returned here. Several other Ford officials, absent during the regular vacation period for executives, will return.

President Roosevelt, who recently asked from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, a report on Ford's refusal to sign the code, will have returned to Washington from a sea voyage.

"We look for the whole thing to be cleared up by next Tuesday," said a Ford associate. But, with a broad smile, he declined to say just what method will be employed in "clearing it up."

All the Ford officials who have remained in Detroit during the vacation period have indicated, although refusing to be quoted, that the motor manufacturer, veteran of many "go it alone" campaigns, has not changed his mind about remaining outside the NRA agreement.

Pay More than Minimum.

Questioned as to the Ford company's plans, they point out repeatedly that the Ford Motor company pays better than the minimum wage demanded in the NRA automotive code, and that the employes work an eight hour, five day week. The NRA code demands a 43 cent an hour minimum wage, and 35 hours a week, while the present Ford rate is 50 cents an hour.

A 25 per cent increase in salary, Ford associates point out, would place the company back on the $5 a day wage.

Ford, several weeks ago in his last public statement on the NRA code, declared he would have to "live down to it." He has been represented as objecting, strenuously to possibilities of unionization through provisions of the code, but has made no comment on the representations.

The belief is general among automotive officials in Detroit that the Ford staff already has a forthcoming campaign mapped out and is maintaining absolute silence until they are ready to launch a counter offensive against the statement of Gen. Johnson that "maybe the people will 'crack down' on Ford" if he does not sign the code and obtain the NRA blue eagle.

Prepares to Return Home.

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Henry Ford apparently is preparing to end his two weeks' vacation at the Huron Mountain club near here, probably tomorrow, and return by boat to Detroit.

The freighter Henry Ford, of the Ford Motor company, which brought the motor magnate and his wife to their vacation camp, is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow. Officials at the docks here said, however, that no noti has been received that Mr. and Mrs. Ford will board the ore carrier when it leaves for the return trip.

Ford remained close to his pretentious 16 room cabin on the shores of Lake Superior today, steadfastly refusing to give any information relative to signing the NRA automotive code. He did not emerge from the camp today, and admittance was denied to all who asked to see him.

Bars Buying Ford Products.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Gov. Pinchot today said that Pennsylvania will not buy Ford products unless they are manufactured under the blue eagle.

His statement:

Chevrolet Workers Protest.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Union employés of the Chevrolet plant here tonight voted to ask President Roosevelt to deny the General Motors corporation the privilege of displaying the "Blue Eagle."

In a resolution to be sent the President the employés said the company had "violated the provisions of the automobile code by discharging 100 workers who have been active in union activities but who had been careful to avoid any possibility of discharge for inefficiency."

G. B. Low, plant manager, denied there was any violation and s[illegible] the company is living up to the spirit of the code.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The American Bar association concluded the business session of its annual convention today with a warning that the nation's legal talent should prepare itself to change the judicial machinery to take care of the situation if the present emergency program of the government becomes a permanent policy.

The warning was contained in the report of the committee on administrative law, delivered by its chairman, Louis G. Caldwell of Washington. The report was read after the association had elected officers, headed by Earl W. Evans of Wichita, Kas., as president, to carry on its work during the coming year.

"Absorbs Judicial Functions."

In his report Caldwell pointed to the address of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings yesterday in which the attorney general referred to the temporary nature of the recovery program and other emergency legislation.

"But the brain trust isn't saying the same thing," he said. "What does Gen. Hugh S. Johnson say? I am not hostile to the new deal, but there is such a complete change in the orientation of government that it may not be able to turn back from the present emergency program in two years."

The bar should be prepared, he said, to change the judicial setup to meet such an eventuality. Caldwell's only criticism of the NRA was of the licensing provision, which, he said, amounted to an absorption of some judicial functions by the administrative.

Senator McCarran Skeptical.

In an address before the convention yesterday Senator Patrick A. McCarran of Nevada asked:

"Assuming that these great powers, surrendered by the people into the hands of the executive, rest today on the shoulders of a friendly, farsighted, clear thinking individual, what does that prophesy for the future, when we will have another Jackson, another Johnson? New legislation constitutes an avalanche that sweeps away the structures fought for and reared by the great Jefferson and his adherents. In these great investitures of power the rights of the sovereign states have been minimized, if not entirely lost."

Old Officers Retained.

William P. McCracken Jr., of Washington, former assistant secretary of commerce in charge of aeronautics, was retained in office as secretary of the Bar association for another year, also by unanimous vote, and John H. Voorhees, Sioux Falls, S. D., attorney, was reelected treasurer.

The assistant secretary, Richard Bentley, and the executive secretary, Mrs. Olive G. Riger, both of Chicago, were reappointed by the executive committee.

Pledge War on Gangster.

Evans will start his term with the pledged support of the National Association of Attorneys General and unaffiliated bar associations from a score or more states to lead them in their campaign for a better profession and a nation free of the gangster menace. Resolutions pledging support to the American Bar association to this effect were adopted at the two group sessions which preceded the bar association's convention.

397 Indictments Voted by August Grand Jury

The August grand jury finished its term last evening and made its final report to Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. The jurors reported that they voted 397 indictments, 131 no bills and continued 31 cases to the September grand jury for further investigation. The jury was complimented by the chief justice for performing an unusual amount of work. It heard evidence in 559 cases. The rush of business was due to the campaign against crime being conducted by the Criminal court judges.

Woolworth Company Signs the NRA Blanket Code

Honesdale, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—B. D. Miller, president of F. W. Woolworth & Co., announced tonight the company had signed the NRA blanket code. Miller stated the action, taken in Washington today, becomes effective immediately in all stores of the company.

JUDGE BANS BETS ON DOG RACING; 'RACKET,' HE SAYS

David Quashes Injunction Protecting Track.

Judge Joseph B. David, characterizing dog races as "a cheating racket," yesterday knocked out the injunction issued by Judge Charles A. Williams in the Superior court, which for two nights protected the Thornton dog track against public officials seeking to enforce the laws against gambling.

Judge Williams issued a temporary injunction Wednesday, forbidding State's Attorney Courtney and Sheriff Meyering from interfering with pari-mutuel betting at the Thornton Coursing club. Judge William J. Lindsay had previously refused to sanction betting at the races at the track. It has a license to operate from the village of Homewood Park, recently incorporated with one of the dog track promoters as village president.

Asks Dissolution of Injunction.

Yesterday Assistant State's Attorney Jacob Shamberg went into the Superior court with a motion to dissolve Judge Williams' injunction. Since Judge Williams was not sitting, Judge David heard the case. He first indicated that he would dissolve the injunction, but at the instance of Attorney Daniel Healy, representing the dog track, he sustained the state's attorney's demurrer and dismissed the bill for injunction.

This will permit the track to take an immediate appeal on points of law raised by the demurrer to the State Supreme court, which has previously held betting on dog races to be gambling.

"There is no equity in the bill," said Judge David. "Even if the village of Homewood Park has passed an ordinance permitting pari-mutuel betting, that doesn't give the track the right to operate in violation of the state law."

When Prosecutor Shamberg presented his petition, Attorney Healy asked five days to answer it.

"You don't need nor get five days," replied Judge David, "but you do need plenty of law to prove to me that betting at dog races is lawful. It's all right to race the dogs, but they can't bet on the results. If betting goes on out there every one should be arrested."

Attorney Healy asserted that a recent opinion of the Supreme court held pari-mutuel betting to be legal.

Calls Bets on Dogs Illegal.

"I'm familiar with that case," said Judge David. "If you can show me a case which says it's all right to bet on dog races, I'll let the injunction stand. The case you are talking about says that it is all right to bet on horse races. Betting on dog races is illegal and cannot be tolerated unless the legislature makes it legal."

"But the law says that the pari-mutuel system is not a game of chance or a lottery," said Attorney Healy.

"You might as well have pari-mutuels on flea bites," retorted Judge David. "Unfortunately for my own pocket, I know all about the pari-mutuel system on horse races. There will be none of it on the dogs in this community.

"If they try to bet on the dogs, lock all of them up. They're doing nothing but running a common gaming house. Any one who knows a thing about dog racing knows that it is a cheating racket."

Williams Declines to Comment.

Judge Williams refused to comment on Judge David's action. Regarding his own decision granting an injunction, he said it was done to permit the question to go to the state Supreme court for a final ruling.

Judge Williams said he instructed the state's attorney to appeal from his decision. His ruling, he said, was based on two Supreme court decisions which said pari-mutuel betting is not wagering, and in the Monroe case, he declared, former Justice Heard said such betting was not a lottery under the statutes.

Acting State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer instructed Capt. Daniel Gilbert, head of the state's attorney's police, to send a detail to the Thornton track last evening to prevent the operation of the betting machines.

Crowds Watch It

Hundreds visited the Garfield park conservatory last night to witness the blooming of rare tropical cactus. The bushy plant, named "Queen of Night," blooms only after sundown, and the west park board kept the building open until midnight in order to accommodate spectators.

The buds, some of them a foot long, started to open about 10 o'clock and reached their perfection within an hour. White stamens enhanced the blossoms, which are also white and extremely fragrant. The four cactus plants housed under glass in the conservatory bear 140 individual blooms. According to August Koch, chief florist for the park board, the plants may flower twice or three times in a season.

The "Queen of Night" cactus is native to Guatemala, Venezuela, and Brazil, and is widely scattered in the tropics. It is a close relative of the Christmas cactus. The flowers of both plants often appear from points along the edge of the leaf.

JAPAN REFUSES TO LET AMERICAN OPEN UP CHURCH

TOKIO, Sept. 2.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The Japanese government today rejected a proposal by an American missionary to establish a branch Christian church at Ogaki, in Gifu prefecture.

The rejection was based on the grounds that friction between Christianity and Japan's national faith, Shinto, might cause disturbances at a time when national feeling is running high. The missionary, Miss Sadie Weidener, has been working independently at Ogaki since 1900.

The rejection followed the suspension of three Japanese Christian school children from Ogaki schools when they refused to attend the school's customary pilgrimages to Shinto shrines.

U. S. Orders 37 New Warships; Plans Navy Second to None

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Secretary Swanson today signed contracts for 37 vessels to be constructed out of the $238,000,000 allotted the navy from public works funds and congressional appropriations.

He also named the vessels, 21 to be constructed in private shipbuilding yards and 16 in navy yards. He named two other vessels under construction.

"I hope this is the beginning of a treaty navy—a navy built to the limits of the London naval treaty and second to none," he commented.

"The President has acted generously with the navy and thinks that we should not only have a good navy, but that work should be given through naval construction."

Work Starts at Once.

Names of cities were assigned to vessels of the cruiser and gunboat classes, names of famous battles and of vessels of earlier days to aircraft carriers, names of distinguished naval officers and heroic enlisted men to destroyers and names of inhabitants of the deep to fleet submarines.

Contracts for the vessels were awarded recently and the signature will permit work to begin immediately.

The names given the vessels follow:

Heavy cruiser, 10,000 tons, to be constructed by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company, Quincy, Mass., the Vincennes.

Two light cruisers of 10,000 tons but with six inch guns, to be built by the New York Shipbuilding company, Camden, N. J., the Savannah and the Nashville.

A light cruiser of 10,000 tons with six inch guns to be constructed by the New York navy yard was named Brooklyn, and a sister ship to be built by the Philadelphia navy yard was named Philadelphia.

Two aircraft carriers to be built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, Newport News, Va., were designated Yorktown and Enterprise.

A patrol gunboat to be constructed by the Charleston, S. C., navy yard was designated Charleston, and a similar craft to be built by the New York navy yard was called Erie.

Submarines to Be Built.

Two submarines to be constructed at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard, of 1,317 tons each, will be called Porpoise and Pike.

Two undersea craft to be built by the Electric Boat company, Groton, Conn., were designated Shark and Tarpon.

One destroyer each under construction at the Boston and Philadelphia navy yards were respectively named Monaghan and Aylwin.

Four destroyers of 1,800 tons each to be built by the New York Shipbuilding company were designated Porter, Selfridge, McDougal, and Winslow. Four similar vessels to be constructed by the Bethlehem corporation at Quincy were designated Phelps, Clark, Moffett, and Balch.

Two destroyers of 1,500 tons each to be built by the United Dry Docks, Inc., New York, were named Mahan and Cummings.

Two similar destroyers to be built by the Bath Iron Works corporation, Bath, Me., will be called Drayton and Lamson.

Several 1,500 Ton Destroyers.

Two similar vessels to be built by the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, Kearny, N. J., will be called Flusser and Reid; two 1,500 ton destroyers to be constructed at the Boston navy yard were named Case and Conyngham.

Two 1,500 ton destroyers to be built at the Philadelphia yard will be called Cassin and Shaw; two at the Norfolk navy yard will be called Tucker and Downes; two 1,500 ton destroyers to be built at the Puget Sound navy yard will be the Cushing and Perkins, and two at the Mare Island, Cal., yard will be Smith and Preston.

ARREST 38 MORE DRIVERS IN WAR ON HARD TIRES

Thirty-eight more truck drivers were arrested yesterday as the police continued the campaign to enforce the statute requiring pneumatic tires on vehicles driven faster than 10 miles an hour. The campaign was begun on Thursday with the arrest of 73 drivers whose trucks were equipped with solid rubber tires and which were exceeding the speed limit.

The drivers will be arraigned on Tuesday in the Traffic court before Judge Eugene J. Holland. An effort will be made then to obtain the first conviction under the statute, which was drafted when it was found that much damage was being caused to paved streets by heavy vehicles with hard tires.

Judge Holland has announced his willingness to work with the police in the enforcement of the law.

Thursday, Aug. 31, 1893.....	148,291

The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Bargain hunters will have their inning at the Fair today. Almost every concession on the grounds has signed a special "code" for this day only, and only until 6 p. m. today visitors will be given "two for the price of one."

For three weeks the showmen have worked to develop the program, laboring on details of the festivities, and also on holdout concessionaires. Last night officials of the day announced that all the showmen were lined up and the final details approved. Under the schedule for the day any visitor may see a show twice, or he may bring some one in with him on a single admission. This price holds for adults and children alike.

Predict Biggest Crowd.

Concessionaires point out that in each previous international exposition their day has been one of the biggest in attendance of the entire fair, and they predict that today will uphold this record.

Another lure to bring Fair attendance back to the 200,000 mark and better is the opening of Automobile week. The colorful parade, the beauty queens, and the exhibition of ancient and modern automobiles will help to fill the program with pageantry and music.

There was a decided improvement in the attendance yesterday, although admissions ran behind those of last Friday, when the present record of 272,572 paid admissions was established.

At 11:30 o'clock last night the official attendance was 232,650. Officials, however, were vastly encouraged at the showing, pointing out that the Fair once again was up in the 200,000 paid admission bracket after falling below that figure for four days.

Expect No. 13,000,000 Today.

Plans were made last night to welcome the thirteen millionth visitor today, five days since the twelve millionth visitor was welcomed. Officials last night, after a study of the attendance chart, again set the estimated total attendance for the Fair at 30,000,000 persons. Long considered to be an unlucky number, thirteen will predominate in the reception for the honor visitor.

Only 60 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

Thirteen concession tickets will be given the guest. A basket of thirteen packages of food, thirteen pounds of tea, and so on will greet the visitor on passing through the turnstiles.

Pass St. Louis Fair's Total.

The total attendance to date at A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday passed the total attendance of the St. Louis exposition of 1904 for its entire run of 187 days. At the same time the Chicago attendance passed the combined attendance of five other American expositions.

At noon yesterday the attendance was 12,817,226, compared with a final attendance of 12,804,000 at the St. Louis exposition. The average daily attendance at the 1933 Fair is now 130,000, as compared with the average of 68,000 at the St. Louis fair.

The five expositions whose combined total attendance has been surpassed by the 1933 Fair are: Buffalo, 1901; Seattle, 1909; Jamestown, 1907; Omaha, 1898, and Nashville, 1897. Their combined final attendance was 12,805,000 paid admissions.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The Rainbow area, comprising the south six blocks of the Fair grounds, will stage another of its street carnivals tonight from 7 o'clock until closing. Performers from all the shows in this section will cooperate in putting on a continuous free show, with music for free, public street dancing.

Since the opening of the Fair, 11,260 persons have been treated in Dr. Frank W. Baylor's World's Fair hospital in the Hall of Science. Most of the cases have been minor injuries, such as cinders in eyes or stone bruises.

Members of two fraternities, Alpha Delta Phi and the [illegible]au Delta Phi, and of the American bandmasters' association will visit the Fair informally tomorrow.

The Santa Fe system will bring approximately 5,000 passengers into Chicago this week-end, according to passenger traffic manager W. J. Black. Two special trains from California and two from Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas will bring visitors to the Fair for the Labor day celebration.

The Goodman theater at the Art institute will open its 1933-'34 season on Monday, Oct. 30, with the "Romantic Young Lady," by Sierra. The theater has been redecorated preparatory to its opening.

More than 14,000 farmers, including some 2,600 from New York state and New England, have been brought to Chicago to visit the Fair by the New York Central lines on special farmer tours. Officials of the New York Central are expecting from 16,000 to 20,000 passengers this week-end.

The Chicago Fine Arts booth on the 31st street pier, which was opened recently, now has six well known Chicago artists exhibiting. They are Todros Geller, Louis Weiner, Anthony Rogalski, Eve Garrison, William Farrow, and Nicola Ziroli.

The Labor day fireworks display is to be the most elaborate show yet staged at the Fair. Special features in recognition of Labor will include portraits of Samuel Gompers, William Green, president of the American federation, and John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor. The portraits will be shown on the east shore of the north lagoon, while on the south lagoon the portrait of President Roosevelt, together with the Blue Eagle of the NRA, will be outlined in colored fire. Water fireworks will light up both lagoons and the grand finale will be aerial bombs fired from pontoons in the lagoons, from the shore, and from the top of the east tower of the skyride. The show will start at 10 p. m.

Cecil "Red Hot" Burns, 23 years old, arrived in Chicago to see the Fair yesterday after walking 1,200 miles from Dallas, Tex., with a 135 pound bale of cotton on his back. Since June 1, when he left Dallas, he has averaged between 18 and 19 miles a day. Burns was fullback last season for the Providence, R. I., National league "pro" football team.

The Irish Free State is to have a world's fair in 1938, it was announced yesterday by John P. O'Brien of Dublin, who visited Consul Daniel J. McGrath in Chicago. O'Brien is executive vice president of the Irish Tourist association, and is in America to open a series of bureaus to encourage Irish Americans in tours back to the old country. The Irish fair, he said, will depict 20 centuries of progress on the Emerald isle, and will be sociological, rather than mechanical, in its general plan.

Officials of the Rock Island railroad yesterday announced that advance reservations for this weekend were greater than at any time in the history of the road. Between 10,000 and 12,000 passengers are expected between now and Monday, coming from Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma and other western states.

AUTO INDUSTRY WILL OPEN WEEK AT FAIR TODAY

Daily Parades Feature; T. P. Henry Speaks.

Automobile week at the Fair opens this morning. The opening feature, and probably the highlight of the entire week, will be a parade down Michigan avenue and through the Fair grounds with floats, automobiles, tractors, beauty queens and historical exhibits of the automotive industry. More than two hundred vehicles will have places in the motorcade.

Starting at Ohio street the procession will move down Michigan avenue to 7th street, east to Columbus drive, and into the Fair grounds at the 14th street entrance. Within the Fair the motorcade will tour south to 39th street, return to 16th street, cross to the island and then return to the mainland at 12th street. The parade will be repeated every afternoon during the week at 2 o'clock.

Industry's Leaders Meet.

Two special events were staged last night as a preopening feature to the week's festivities.

A dinner for leading automobile officials was given by trustees of the Fair at 7 p. m. in the trustees' room at the Administration building. The honor guest and principal speaker was Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association. He spoke on the history of the automobile industry, the part the automobile had played in the development of the last decade in culture and commerce and the position of the industry under the new deal.

Mr. Henry in his speech condemned reports of difficulties in reaching Chicago and the World's Fair by automobile. The rumors recently have been widely circulated.

"Motorists will have no trouble in getting here," Mr. Henry said. "There are no restrictions and special licenses are not needed. Stories to the contrary are falsehoods. You can drive right to the door and park your car. Parking facilities are abundant and economical. Start out this week." He added that "because of this Fair and the automobile thousands of persons are seeing their own country this year for the first time."

Fair Employé to Be Queen.

In the court of the Hall of Science the automotive week committee conducted a beauty contest to select a queen, who will be given the honored position in the parades. The committee chose Miss Catherine Palmer, 22 years old, 7427 Maryland avenue, from among 57 candidates. Unique in the string of such contests held during the Fair, this queen was selected from the employés of the Fair, doing honor to the girls who act as cashiers, stenographers, and clerks. Miss Palmer is a relief cashier at the Fair. She is a graduate of the University of Chicago's journalism school.

Also honored today will be A Century of Progress queen, Miss Lillian Anderson of Racine, who was chosen in a contest sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and allied newspapers.

250,000 YOUTHS PARADE BEFORE LENIN'S TOMB

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Sept. 1.—Revolutionary International Youth day was celebrated here with a parade in Red square this evening by the Moscow Communist Youth party and the older members of the Young Pioneers [communist children]. There also were delegations of communist youths from other soviet cities and from Germany, China, and other countries.

President Mikhail Kalinin, L. M. Kaganovich, member of the communist political bureau; Premier Molotoff and G. K. Ordzhonikidze, commissar for heavy industry, reviewed the parade from Lenin's tomb. Dictator Joseph Stalin was not present.

About 250,000 boys in gay vests and shorts of various hues and girls wearing silk blouses or shirts and shorts were in the parade. Some sat in miniature tanks, trucks, or ambulance cars. There were floats of lathes, of electric lamps and searchlights, of models of the subway under construction, and of motor trucks—to typify the leading factories.

There was little stress on world revolution. The banners called for soviet socialist construction of industry, agriculture, and defense of the socialist fatherland, but here and there a banner summoned the youth of the world to struggle against Fascist terror, oppression of the workers, and plans for war.

SEIZE CLEANER ON CHARGES OF NRA VIOLATION

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 1.—(AP)—For an alleged violation of the NRA agreement Sam Ostrofsky, 52, operator of a cleaning and dyeing establishment, was arrested by county detectives today. The arrest was on a warrant obtained by Thomas Husselton, secretary of the chamber of commerce, charging Ostrofsky with violating the "printers' ink model statute" passed by the state legislature in 1923.

Under this law it is a misdemeanor for any one to place before the public in any manner such as newspapers, pamphlets, or posters misleading information to deceive the public.

Husselton charged that in displaying the blue eagle insignia Ostrofsky is misleading the public, since he is not living up to the President's agreement.

PLAN TO MAKE SUPERHIGHWAY OF SKOKIE ROAD

Pavement Now Connected to Chicago.

BY HAL FOUST.

The forty foot pavement of Illinois route 57, lost in the Skokie valley since 1930, has been made accessible to traffic this summer, and plans have been prepared to make this an ornamental superhighway between Milwaukee and Chicago.

With new connections on the south end the four lane highway also known as Skokie road is now the logical route for fast travel between north shore suburbs and the city. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, said the recent improvements would "drive the final nail in the coffin" of a petition to open Sheridan road to trucks and buses.

Until late this summer the fine forty foot pavement ended on the south in a bumpy and crooked local road west of Kenilworth. It has now been extended across Glenview road and on south as Cicero avenue to Oakton street, making connections also with Dempster street, Main street, and the Elgin-Evanston highway.

Runs North of County Line.

On the north the pavement still has a loose end, but there is a connection with Dundee road. The concrete extends to a mile north of the unpaved county line road. There is a gap without a detour at the Bob o' Link Golf club. North of the club the pavement has been laid to the south border of Lake Forest.

The Bob o' Link club, in granting right of way, specified that its course would not be disturbed this season. Late this fall the highway department will close the gap, making this highway usable from Oakton street to Lake Forest this winter.

In Lake Forest the city officials have promised to obtain the right of way for the highway through the suburb this winter so that pavement may be laid in the spring.

North from Lake Forest, following Illinois route 68, a right of way 160 feet wide to the Wisconsin line is to be obtained by the Lake county highway department this winter. The state plans two twenty foot lanes of pavement, separated by a thirty foot esplanade. Grade separations are to be built at railroad crossings and at busy highway intersections.

Superhighway in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin, on U. S. 41, for several years has been extending a superhighway south from Milwaukee that will connect with this Illinois project.

The connection with Chicago is to be improved by construction of grade separations at the Chicago and North Western and the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroads under the federal industrial recovery act. Cicero avenue is to be widened by the government to two twenty foot pavements from Devon avenue to Elston avenue. The state is going to rebuild the bridge at the north branch of the Chicago river. From Elston to Wilson avenue the state this year and next will pave with two twenty foot strips. South of Irving Park boulevard the old brick pavement is to be removed and a wider concrete pavement is to be laid by the state.

Approves 93 Road Projects.

Gov. Horner announced yesterday that he had approved 93 secondary road projects in Illinois under the provisions of the highway section of the National Industrial Recovery act.

The improvements, in all parts of the state, will involve expenditures of approximately $3,385,500, and will put thousands of Illinoisans to work soon.

Three secondary road improvements are listed for Cook county. One is in Route 54, from Elmhurst to Austin avenue. This will be a job of landscaping. Another project is construction of a subway in Melrose Park, also on Route 54. The third is the George Brennan highway, from 159th street to the Dixie highway.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Two tracts of land in southern Illinois, approximating 300,000 acres each, have been designated as sites for prospective national forests, it was announced today.

One tract, known officially as the Illini unit, is located in Jackson, Union, and Alexander counties. The other, known as the Shawnee unit, is in Gallatin, Hardin, Pope, and Saline counties.

The 600,000 acres designated by the forest reservation commission, it was explained, are not to be purchased at once by the government. Under the regular procedure the government will seek to buy up the land involved from volunteer sellers who now own it.

Officials of the service said the government usually is able to obtain upwards of 85 per cent of the land it designates. The average price over a long period was not known, but one official stated that the government paid an average of $1.88 an acre for 974,000 acres purchased throughout the country in the last sixty days.

Horner Is Notified.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner has received word that the national forest reservation commission at Washington has approved the purchase of 598,000 acres of timberland in southern Illinois for the establishment of forest preserves.

The governor urged the establishment of the two national forests in Illinois in a telegram to President Roosevelt last May. This action was due to interest in the subject of reforestation, and the opportunity it gives to meet the unemployment situation.

NEW YORK'S FIRST PENNY PAPER, THE SUN, 100 YRS. OLD

New York, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The Sun, founded on Sept. 3, 1833, as the first penny newspaper in New York, will observe its centennial with the publication tomorrow of a supplement to its regular edition chronicling the changes in the city's life during the last 100 years.

The first issue was a small, four page paper, whose publisher, editor, reporter, compositor, pressman and mailing clerk, was 23 year old Benjamin H. Day. The Sun was the outcome of the enthusiasm his friend, Dave Ramsey, had for such a penny paper, which would deal with the activities of people rather than with weighty political matters which filled the sixpenny papers of the day; and also an outcome of the challenge presented by A. S. Abell, in a statement scoffing the idea.

After the demonstration of the soundness of the idea, however, Abell went to Baltimore and founded a Sun there. And so appeared a tale of an Irish captain, a fifteen stanza poem of an August moon, "police office" items, miscellaneous bits of news, advertisements, etc., all led off by the statement, "the object of this paper is to lay before the public, at a price within the means of every one, all the news of the day, and at the same time afford an advantageous medium for advertising."

CURTAIN FALLS IN COURT ON KISS SHOOTING DRAMA

Mrs. King Refuses to Prosecute Husband.

The melodrama of the stolen kiss whose setting was the edge of the pool at the Knollwood Country club in Lake Forest, ended in an anti-climax yesterday in the Gun court of Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry.

There Judge McGarry formally dismissed a charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Albert Cleveland King, 49 years old, of 534 Stratford place, for want of prosecution. Mr. King, who was a witness to the kiss but not its recipient, had fired a pistol in the presence of his wife when she returned home the same night.

Wife Is in Court.

The wife, Emilie Englebach King, 29 years old, who brought the gun charge against King, stood far in the rear of the courtroom and came forward to face the bench when the judge summoned her. She then murmured in a hesitant voice that she did not want to prosecute. Mrs. King had failed to appear on the two previous occasions when the case was called and her appearance yesterday was in obedience to a subpœna issued by Judge McGarry.

Before the hearing closed, Mr. King lost two automatic pistols. They were confiscated by the court on the suggestion of Assistant State's Attorney Julius T. Sherwin over the vigorous protests of William H. Kailes, King's attorney.

"Where are the Scudders?" demanded Attorney Kailes when the hearing began.

Eric Scudder, president of the Citrus Products company, in which King is executive vice president, was the host at the country club party two weeks ago when the kiss was stolen alongside of one of the cabanas skirting the club swimming pool. It was Scudder who kissed Mrs. King.

The party was given to celebrate Scudder's becoming a member of the Knollwood Country club. When King surprised his wife in his partner's embrace, he knocked her down and called them both names, according to Mrs. King's complaint to police. Later the shooting incident occurred, the shot going wild.

Suggest Contempt Action.

The Scudders, who reside at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, had been summoned to court by subpœna, and Attorney Kailes pointed out that they might be held for contempmt for failing to appear. Their attorney, Jay Fred Reeves, spoke up.

"They are in my office," he said. "I can bring them here but they do not want to come if they don't have to."

After Mrs. King was persuaded to approach the bench, and had expressed her wish not to prosecute, Judge McGarry addressed her:

"In consideration of your children I would suggest a reconciliation," he said. "What is the state of your affections toward your husband?"

"I'm not prepared to answer," said Mrs. King.

"The only testimony here concerning the shooting," Judge McGarry continued, "is that of the nurse, who said it was accidental. It seems to be a regrettable accident that should not be allowed to part you. You must have had affection for him at some time."

Silence ensued, with Mr. King looking at the floor and Mrs. King glancing away. The hearing ended without further questioning of Mrs. King.

GERMANY DEMANDS FRENCH EMPLOYERS BAR JEWS FROM JOBS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 1.—Strasbourg merchants having branch stores at Kehl, across the Rhine, today were given written orders by the German customs to see that none of their employés in Germany are Jews. The director general of the Kehl customs office wrote the French merchants as follows:

"Not only must persons representing your houses be Aryan of origin but also other employés who, through their functions as managers or representatives, have business with the customs office. I invite you to verify whether the conditions specified are fulfilled by the persons in question."

A form was provided by the German official for the Frenchmen to sign testifying to the Aryan origin of employés.

G. S. MEREDITH, G. O. P. LEADER, ENDS OWN LIFE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—George S. Meredith, 62, chairman of the Milwaukee county Republican committee, close friend of former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, and a leader in the Conservative branch of the Republican party in Wisconsin, shot himself to death in his home today. Ill health is believed to have been the cause.

Meredith was president of Meredith Bros., general contractors, a firm built by his father, which had erected many of the chief buildings in this city. He returned from his office to his home, 607 East Lincoln avenue, during the afternoon, and went directly to his room.

A maid, Marie Voght, said she heard him enter, and half an hour later heard a shot. A double barreled shotgun lay beside the body.

Mr. Meredith genetally was conceded to have been the man who brought Mr. Kohler into active politics.

Woman Stricken at Golf Dies in Doctor's Office

Mrs. Helen Koch, 34 years old, 6517 North Rockwell street, died yesterday in the office of Dr. M. M. Rottman, 4788 Elston avenue, after apparently having been stricken with a heart attack at the ninth hole of the Edgebrook golf course while she was golfing with her brother, Earl Miller.

$2,078,000 CASH PAID TEACHERS; SIGN WARRANTS

Securities to Be Issued for Month's Salary.

Checks totaling $2,078,000 were mailed out last night to teachers and other school employés for their first pay day since May 18. While this cash pay roll for the first two weeks in January of this year was being met the machinery was put into motion to distribute 1933 tax anticipation warrants for salaries and wages for the last half of January and the first half of February.

Twenty thousand of the 120,000 warrants, bearing 6 per cent interest, were signed by Mrs. Elsa Z. Brinsley, proxie for James B. McCahey, president of the school board, during the day. The signatures of Mayor Kelly and Controller Uphan, through their proxies, and of Charles Gilbert, school board secretary, must be affixed before the securities can be distributed to the teachers.

$25 and $50 Denominations.

The signing is expected to continue all next week. The warrants will be issued in denominations of $50 and $25, upon the request of hundreds of teachers who told members of the school board that the securities could be used to pay their landlords and merchants.

The total of the pay day—in cash and warrants—is $6,126,915. This will reduce the pay roll obligations of the school board to $16,623,280, as of July 15. The amounts to be paid to the employés of various classifications are as follows:

Teachers	$4,976,370
Civil service	991,882
Building fund employés	109,713
Playground employés	48,950
Total	$6,126,915

The pay checks were released late in the afternoon after the board officials had been notified that the money was on deposit with the city treasurer. A sale of more than $633,000 worth of warrants to the Commonwealth Edison and Peoples Gas companies was completed by Mr. McCahey just an hour before the board meeting Thursday to obtain sufficient cash for the pay roll.

Hold Up Some Checks.

Mr. Gilbert, from whose offices the checks were being sent, said that checks for about one-third of the 14,000 teachers were being held for want of addresses. The teachers were notified at the close of school in June to send their summer addresses, but only two-thirds of the force responded, he said.

In addition, Mr. Gilbert pointed out, many of the teachers and school employés had already assigned their checks to department stores and other concerns. The January pay checks will be sent to the creditors in such cases. As the stretch between pay days lengthened the number of employés assigning their checks increased.

Although the pay checks will go to the creditors rather than the teachers in many cases, it was pointed out this settling of obligations will give the school employés new credit.

Bogan Confers on Work Plan.

Supt. William J. Bogan conferred with Joshua D'Esposito, engineer for the state advisory board on the national public works program, with regard to a federal loan of more than $10,000,000 to finance the building of fourteen new schools in Chicago. Further details will be furnished to the advisory board shortly to pave the way for a formal application for the loan and a public hearing on the matter.

A check for $174,392 from the state distributive fund for the schools was received yesterday by County Superintendent of Schools Otto F. Aken. Mr. Aken said that the money, which comes from the collection of 1931 taxes, would be turned over to the Chicago board of education.

PAY $18,000,000 IN RUSH BEFORE TAX PENALTY DAY

52 Pct. of 1931 Realty Levy Collected.

More than $18,000,000 has been paid in since Monday on 1931 real estate taxes to beat the penalty deadline on the second installment which fell at midnight last night. This estimate was made by County Treasurer McDonough, who said that this desperately needed revenue would be distributed to the various local governments from day to day, as fast as it can be audited, during the next two weeks. A penalty of one per cent a month accrues on the second installment of 1931 realty taxes. The penalty date on the first installment was April 8.

Yesterday's payments, made in the final rush to avoid the penalty, totaled about $7,000,000. Of this $1,564,000 was in straight cash, paid over the counters in the county building. These straight cash payments are the only ones which have been tabulated daily since the rush began Monday and they total about $6,400,000 during the five days.

Heavy Warrant Payments.

The heaviest payments, however, are made in tax warrants at the warrant bureau, 6 North Clark street, by business concerns. None of these payments, which always include a large percentage of cash, have been audited. They have been pigeonholed, with a statement of the accompanying cash, to be tabulated after the deadline rush is over.

McDonough said that $11,000,000 is a reasonable estimate for the week's total on these warrant bureau payments. In addition to the $11,000,000 warrant bureau collections, and $6,400,000 straight cash collections, McDonough estimated last night that there was about $800,000 in untabulated mail and country collections, bringing the estimated collections to $18,200,000.

52% of Levy Paid.

The $18,000,000 would bring the total payments on the 1931 realty levy up to $93,300,000, which is about 52 per cent of the total levy of $179,910,404. This is the first time that realty taxes have been paid in two installments.

McDonough said he considered the 1931 collections encouraging, because on the penalty date for the 1930 taxes only 48 per cent of the realty levy had been collected. At the present time 65 per cent of the 1930 levy, 76 per cent of the 1929 levy and 86 per cent of the 1928 realty levy have been collected.

Among the larger payments made partly in cash and partly in warrants at the tax warrant division yesterday were Marshall Field & Co., including the Davis store, $719,202; the Pennsylvania railroad, $636,728; Chicago and North Western railroad, $562,091; Union Station company, $486,575; Union Stockyards company, $346,533; International Harvester com., $271,667; L. J. McCormick estate, $178,976; 208 South La Salle Street Building corporation, $145,000; University of Chicago, $131,897; and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, $125,000.

Delay for Home Owners.

McDonough announced that he would allow that much more time to owners of homes and two and three flat buildings to pay at least between 80 or 90 per cent of their taxes before any penalty is added. He pointed out that even if the pending 15 per cent reduction order on such buildings is finally effected the saving on their tax bills will not be over 10 per cent, since it only affects the value of the building and not the land.

IRISH LEADERS VOTE TO UNITE TO FIGHT DE VALERA

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The Center party and William T. Cosgrave's Cumann na Gaedheal, at separate meetings tonight, agreed to accept proposals to merge with Gen. Owen O'Duffy's National Guard (Blue Shirts), which has been banned by the government, thus taking definite steps toward establishment of a new United Ireland party to oppose President de Valera.

Tonight's action came at conferences of leaders of the two parties, and it was subject to ratification by the respective general party conventions. The executives recommended that party conventions be held on Sept. 9.

Under the plan Gen. O'Duffy would head the new party and Cosgrave would serve as the party's chairman in the Dail Eireann. Frank McDermott, head of the Center party, was designated as vice president of the new organization. The three old parties would have equal representation on an executive committee of twelve members.

Word that O'Duffy would head the new party created a sensation. It was generally believed that any amalgamation would result in Cosgrave emerging as leader.

During the night a heavy police guard had been kept in and near the courtroom because of reports that there might be trouble.

Jail Guard Alibi Witness.

Charles Tobias, 533 North Artesian avenue, one of Sheriff Meyering's jail guards, appeared as an alibi witness for Jacobs. He testified that in May of this year he saw Jacobs visiting a prisoner in the jail. The defense followed this testimony up with the story of the wife of a prisoner, who said the visit took place on May 2, the day of the robbery. She testified that she met Jacobs in the jail while she was visiting her husband.

URGES BUYING OF AMERICAN ART TO AID U. S. ARTISTS

While American art stands at the top of the art of the world at present, many of America's great artists are almost destitute, Albert T. Reid of New York, national vice chairman of the American Artists Professional league and former Kansas publisher, said last night in an address in the Illinois Host building at the World's Fair.

"American women are being taken in and persuaded to pay large prices for poor art just because it is from abroad," said Mr. Reid. "A world of poor foreign art is making its way into American homes because of well organized promotion. We have no grudge against real art, but we do seek to shut out poor foreign art."

He urged that people of wealth in America back a proposed foundation to aid artists by educating the public to the values of American art.

Other speakers included members of the executive committee of the league, George Lober, sculptor, and Florence Topping Green; Lorado Taft, Chicago sculptor, and Dr. R. E. Hieronymus, community adviser of the University of Illinois. Mrs. Albion Headburg, art chairman of the Illinois hostess committee, presided.

Among the speakers will be William Weber, chairman of the county central Republican committee; John E. Northup, attorney; George E. Q. Johnson, former federal prosecutor, and Arthur F. Albert, former alderman. Mr. Albert will preside.

The day will be featured by pie eating contests, fat men's races, and various games for children and grownups.

"KISS OF DEATH" GIRL WANTS TO LEAVE CHICAGO

Margaret Mary Collins, the "kiss of death" girl with a record of seven dead sweethearts, told Judge Erwin J. Hasten in the Woman's court yesterday that she wants to leave Chicago forever. Sergt. Arthur Carroll then said that police wished to investigate her case of disorderly conduct further and it was continued to Sept. 7. At the last hearing Judge Hasten said he wanted to see the eighth sweetheart of Miss Collins, Sol Feldman, alleged burglar, but Feldman did not appear yesterday.

HOODLUMS IN JAIL AWAITING TRIAL UNDER VAG LAW

Edward "Spike" O'Donnel, Sanford "Gimp" Rosenbaum, Michael "Bubs" Quinlan, and James "King of Bombers" Belcastro, all classified as vagabonds by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, were in jail yesterday awaiting trial under the new law which permits vagrancy prosecution against persons known to have criminal reputations. They had been arrested in the campaign under the new law in which Judge Thomas A. Green has issued 34 warrants and Judge Joseph H. McGarry has issued 46 warrants.

The trials of O'Donnell and Rosenbaum were set for Sept. 12. Quinlan obtained his release on $10,000 bail last night and is to be arraigned on Tuesday. Belcastro will face Judge Robert J. Dunne Sept. 6.

The police are hunting for the other criminals named in the warrants.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The jurors—seven middle aged men and five matrons—were just on the point of learning further about Mexican border resort bungalow parties and about the difference between "being hugged" and "relaxing in my sweetheart's arms" in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought against Claire Windsor here today when Los Angeles' municipal preparations for its NRA parade intervened and Superior Judge Sproul adjourned court until Wednesday, when attorneys for Mrs. Marian Read promised both matters will be inquired into again.

Miss Windsor, as on the previous two days of her trial on charges of wooing Alfred C. Read Jr., Oakland, Cal., broker, was a poised and beautiful picture on the witness stand.

Clerk Reads Letters.

The famous profile which has ornamented so many movie closeups tilted high in the air as the court clerk read some of a packet of sizzling missives into the court records of the case, but the rest of the time the defendant presented merely a gold and pastel tinted life model of serenity.

Read, smoking incessant cigarets and stretching his long legs over the arm of his chair in the witness room, was a fidgety study in contrast.

"My wife promised me she would burn all those records," said Read, whom his wife divorced and who is waiting to appear as Miss Windsor's principal defense witness. "We became reconciled and agred to build a big bonfire of all the letters. I gathered up Miss Windsor's letters to me, to burn them, and Mrs. Read was to burn some letters of her own, but about that time relatives of hers stepped in and advised her not to go through with the idea of burning them, and that is how she got possession of my letters."

Banker Is Witness.

Miss Windsor temporarily left the witness stand in the middle of the morning court session. She was followed by E. F. Wharton, Long Beach, Cal., banker and long time friend of Mrs. Read's family. Wharton was the amateur detective who went to the Agua Caliente, Mexico, resort to see how things were going on Miss Windsor's appearance there with Read, he testified. This was in March, 1932.

Wharton saw Read dancing with the actress in a San Diego hotel, he testified, and later saw them across the border. They were at the race track, strolled about the patio, danced, ate together, and went into the gambling room, he said. It was this jaunt of her husband and the actress, following what had been announced as a family separation, which set off the divorce and alienation suit tinder in the Read family. Wharton's report brought Mrs. Read hurrying to Caliente.

Testimony About Letters.

Much of the testimony was devoted to reading of further love letters exchanged between the man, Miss Windsor today reiterated, "I asked many times, for the sake of his wife and children, to become reconciled with Mrs. Read."

Miss Windsor managed a sporting smile at occasional passages in her letters as they were droned into the intent ears of a courtroom with standing room only.

It was a quizzical smile when this letter, one of Read's, was read:

"Darling: I don't want you to have to worry in the smallest way. Your letters and our pictures have been taken care of. I can assure you there is no reason for your sweet self to bother about them. Love. AL."

Tells of "Fireworks."

The quotation was contained in a letter Read sent her after what he called "the fireworks" had begun in the Read home. She smiled again, evidently at the contrast between promise and performance, when another letter was read:

"Darling:

"I left Hollywood in one grand hurry due to family troubles. I was notified that my wife will never allow a divorce. As far as you are concerned she knows all about you. But I will not let you be dragged into this in any way, so do not worry. Love. "AL."

That letter was followed by another, making a new pledge of protection:

"Darling, the letter I wrote you yesterday was written in great hurry—the fact remains, however, that the fireworks have started, and that Marian [my wife] one minute is getting a divorce and the next minute swears I shall never have you—I certainly would never want your name brought into it—so do rest assured dear, that you will be left out of it completely. Much love. AL."

Feels Better "After Crying."

Still another letter from Read was this:

"Darling:

"Just came in and found a letter from beautiful sweetheart. I am so happy to know that you really miss me and thought of me when you came back to your room last night. I just can't get you off my mind, and I am just all choked up in the throat all the time, ready to cry. Well, dear, this afternoon I got out my pictures of my darling and proceeded to have one good cry. You would be surprised, dear, how much better you feel after crying, when you have been holding back tears for a long time."

U. S. Honors 30 Postal Veterans on Retirement

Thirty-three veterans in the postal service were honored by the government upon their retirement yesterday. Each veteran had served from 30 to 40 years. Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen represented the government at the ceremonies which were held at the United States courthouse. The men retiring were in all branches of the postoffice department. "It is men like you who make it possible for the postmaster to promise the people of a great city continued efficient and speedy postal service," Mr. Kruetgen said. "I give you thanks on behalf of the government you have served."

Goal Is 10,000 Jars

Women members of St. James Episcopal church were canning fruits and vegetables yesterday for the poor, in the church community house at 666 Rush street. They have set a goal of 10,000 jars within the next few weeks. Part of the produce, which they are canning, was raised on the "Friendly Farms" project of the church, in the gardens of Episcopalians throughout the state. Nine other church groups are taking part in the canning activity.

HAWKS FINISHES 4,500 MILE AIR TRIP IN 25 HOURS

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Glen View, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Speeding in from the west, Lieutenant Commander Frank M. Hawks landed at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport at 4:22 p. m. today, just 38 hours and 20 minutes after he took off from this field on a triangular flight of 4,500 miles on which he stopped at Los Angeles and Seattle. The completion of his flight was cheered by spectators at the international air races as he slipped his big silver Sky Chief monoplane to the ground.

Commander Hawks climbed stiffly from the all metal Northrup plane [Wright motor] and announced that his actual flying time on the triangular flight was 24 hours, 25 minutes. He said he had averaged 211 miles an hour on the flight. He was slowed down by a storm over South Dakota, which forced him to climb to an altitude of 22,000 feet to clear the turbulent area.

Today's program of closed course racing, stunts, and aerobatics attracted a crowd of about one-fourth the capacity of the stands. The outstanding performers of the afternoon were eighteen pursuit planes of the army air corps from Selfridge Field, Mich., commanded by Capt. R. C. W. Blessley of Chicago.

Roy Minor of Los Angeles won a fifty mile closed course race in Ben O. Howard's "Mike" (Menasco motor) at an average speed of 202.51 miles an hour after Gordon Israel, 21 years old, of St. Louis, was forced out of the race on the sixth lap when the Menasco motor of his "Readhead" racer developed trouble. Young Israel, who designed his own plane, was pressing Minor closely when he dropped out. The first race of the day was canceled for lack of entries.

Joliet Flyer Wins.

Arthur C. Chester of Joliet won a thirty mile race in a plane of his own design (Menasco motor) at an average speed of 163.77 miles per hour. Maj. Ernest Udett of Germany and Lieut. Tito Falconi of Italy did aerobatics. Twelve marine corps Boeing fighters (Wasp motors) landed late in the afternoon.

The results of today's events follow:

Thirty mile closed course, free for all, for planes with motors of less than 375 cubic inch piston displacement—First prize of $360, Arthur C. Chester, Joliet, flying a Chester Special [Menasco motor]; second prize of $200, Leland S. Miles, Los Angeles, Miles and Atwood Special [Menasco motor]; third prize of $120, George O. Hague, Los Angeles, Keith Rider R-1 [Menasco motor]; fourth prize of $80, S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh, Wis., Wittman Special [Cirrus motor], and fifth prize of $40, Roy Liggett, Omaha, Neb., Folkerts Special [Cirrus motor]. Average speed of winner, 163.77 miles per hour.

Parachute drops to a mark from 2,000 feet—First prize of $90, Jerry Wessling, Lansing, Mich.; second prize of $50, Joe Brown, Cincinnati, and third prize of $30, Lieut. E. Verne Stewart, Dundee. Distance of winner from mark— 21 feet 6 inches.

Fifty mile closed course free for all, for planes with motors of less than 550 cubic inch piston displacement—Firt prize of $810, Roy Minor, Los Angeles, flying a Howard Special [Menasco motor]; second prize of $450, Roy Liggett, Omaha, Cessna Bullet [Warner motor]; third prize of $270, Arthur C. Chester, Joliet, Chester Special [Menasco motor], and fourth prize of $180, George A. Hague, Los Angeles, Keith Rider [Menasco motor]. Average speed of winner—202.51 miles an hour.

Lee Gehlbach of Detroit won a fifty mile race in a Wedell Williams racer [wasp junior motor] at an average speed of 199.14 miles an hour. At the race horse start a collision between two of the racing planes was averted when Roy Liggett cut his throttle to avoid hitting Israel's plane. Second place wentto Arthur C. Chester, Joliet, Chester Special [Menasco motor]. Leland S. Miles, Los Angeles, in a Miles and Atwood Special [Menasco motor] was third; Gordon Israel, fourth; and George O. Hague, Los Angeles, in a Keith Rider R.-1 [Menasco motor] fifth.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED AGAINST LOUIS SWIFT JR.

Louis F. Swift Jr., member of the Chicago packing family, was sued for divorce yesterday by Mrs. Mary H. Swift, according to dispatches from Denver, Colo., where the suit was filed. Mrs. Swift charged desertion, alleging in her bill that her husband left her three years ago. Denver attorneys said that a financial settlement has been made outside court. No alimony was asked in the bill.

Swift, representative of his father's packing company in Fort Worth, Tex., since 1930, now is in Chicago and is making his residence at the Ambassador hotel.

Mrs. Swift is now residing in Aurora, Colo., a suburb of Denver. She married Swift in 1922, when the couple eloped to Crown Point, Ind. Mrs. Swift is the daughter of Judge Haymaker of Pittsburgh. She was divorced from her first husband, Frank Bennett of New York.

LOSS OF AKRON LAID TO SHIFTING OF ITS OFFICERS

Goodyear Zeppelin Head Denies Ship Was Weak.

Not structural faults, but the navy's policy of rapidly shifting commanding officers from airship to sea duty, caused the crash at sea of the dirigible Akron last April 3, with a loss of 73 lives, J. C. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation, asserted here yesterday. His statement was made at the opening of the aircraft session of the International Automotive Engineering congress at the Palmer house.

"The Akron had three commanding officers in the eighteen months she was in commission before the disaster," said Mr. Hunsaker. "The Los Angeles, a ship less sturdily built, weathered all sorts of service during the eight years before she was decommissioned. During that time she had only seven commanders.

Train Officers Too Fast.

"It seems clear at this time that the United States has been proceeding too rapidly in the training of lighter than air personnel."

The verdicts of the naval court of inquiry and of the congressional committee which investigated the Akron crash, Mr. Hunsaker pointed out, were in agreement with his theories. Both verdicts stated that the loss of the ship was due, in all probability, to an error in judgment of commanding officers in attempting to head through the storm which disabled the ship and smashed it into the Atlantic.

German Officers Veterans.

The three chief assistants to Dr. Hugo Eckener, the famous German Zeppelin commander, said Mr. Hunsaker, have each had 15 years experience in Zeppelin operation. They have developed a degree of judgment of weather conditions which enables them to take advantage of atmospheric disturbances instead of succumbing to them. Mr. Hunsaker cited the phenomenal three day crossing of the Pacific in 1929, when the Graf Zeppelin rode the tail of a typhoon all the way.

Mr. Hunsaker said the Germans and the fleet of Goodyear blimps have proved that airships are safe. He predicted transoceanic passenger and freight operations with biweekly schedules soon and stated that the fares would compare with first class rates on the best ocean liners.

MIDDLE WEST'S DEMAND GROWS FOR 'EASY MONEY'

State and Local Officials Indignant at Neglect.

Expressions of indignation over the neglect of the central sates in the distribution of the federal government's 3 billion, 300 million dollar easy money fund came yesterday from state, local, and even national officials in the affected area. Several tempered their indignation with expressions of hope that the injustice might still be rectified.

Governor Horner of Illinois, two United States senators of neighboring states, and a number of local officials were among those expresing concern over the apparent discrimination against the central states. As disclosed in Washington dispatches, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Wisconsin, while providing 13 per cent of the income taxes siphoned into the national treasury, are receiving only 3 per cent of the easy money poured out in public works allotments.

Blames Lack of Plans.

The junior Illinois senator, William H. Dieterich, and another Illinoisan, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, have implied that the situation might be ascribed to lack of diligence by state authorities. Governor Horner said the senator and the secretary were in error.

Mr. Ickes had declared that his department, as administrators of the easy money fund, was "most eager to get work started in big unemployment centers such as Chicago and Milwaukee, but that state officials had submitted no plans."

Senator Dieterich, echoing Secretary Ickes' explanation of the failure to secure a slice for the middle west while whole melons were going to California, New York, Tennessee, said no requests for allocations had been received.

Gov. Horner Replies.

Gov. Horner's answer was that an Illinois public works program had been in preparation since last winter. The rules for distribution of the public works fund, he pointed out, require that all projects be reviewed by federal advisory boards. The advisory board for Illinois comprises Carter H. Harrison, J. L. Houghteling, and James H. Andrews.

"One of the first issues settled by the unemployment commission I appointed last winter was that public works should be substituted for the dole," said Gov. Horner. "The commission then conducted a survey in every town to discover what public works might be inaugurated. The program was drawn up and was laid before the federal advisory board within a few days after that board was appointed."

The program lists building projects in 167 communities and calls for an expenditure of $120,000,000, Gov. Horner explained. So far, it was learned, the federal advisory board has given consideration to thirty of these projects, among them the outer drive link bridge, the lake front airport, the county nurses' home, and various projects of the board of education. Decisions on all these projects are being awaited.

Projects Mean More Taxes.

How many of these projects the advisory board would recommend, and Secretary Ickes might see fit to grant, was a question he could not answer, the governor said. Indeed, he indicated, there might be some doubt as to the wisdom of granting all of them, due to the added tax burden involved.

As pointed out by G. A. Deveneau, secretary of the state unemployment commission and now secretary for the federal advisory board also, a distinction exists between "hundred per cent federal funds," such as those allocated for Boulder dam or the Tennessee valley project, and "thirty per cent funds," such as Illinois is asking. In the former instance, Mr. Deveneau pointed out, the government makes an outright grant to cover all expenses, while in the latter, the government advances only 30 per cent outright, requiring the state or municipality to collateralize the remaining 70 per cent for a loan bearing 4 per cent interest, which loan must be amortized within a stated period.

Some May Be Unable to Pay.

"I can't help feeling chagrin at the enormous outright grants which have been awarded other states, such as at Boulder dam," the governor said. "In the case of the 'thirty per cent' money, I feel there may be danger that some of the municipalities applying for the funds may not be able to carry them. Such loans, of course, mean an increase in the local tax burden."

Out in Iowa a different problem has arisen over the public works fund, according to United States Senator L. J. Dickinson. While criticizing the Roosevelt administration for its lading out on a 'hundred per cent basis" of $38,000,000 to Boulder dam, $63,000,000 for Grand Coulee dam, and $50,000,000 for the Tennessee valley, Senator Dickinson said there was a grave doubt whether the "thirty per cent" money offered the middle west would be usable at all in Iowa.

"The rules for construction of the public works, as promulgated out here, call for a $5 minimum wage," said Senator Dickinson from his home at Algona, Ia. "In this state, that appears to be not the living wage prescribed in the bill, but an excessive wage, the payment of which may cost the state more than the 30 per cent grant allowed by the federal government.

May Cost Less Without Loan.

"It appears as if Iowa could construct its own public works cheaper without a federal grant than to pay the wages required under the federal rules and pay 4 per cent for a loan as well."

Senator Dickinson's Democratic colleague, Senator Louis R. Murphy of Dubuque agreed that the central states were getting the short end of the deal.

"It's a fact," said Senator Murphy, "that there has been a good deal of delay in getting the public works program moving. However, the government has done something for the middle west by allocating $11,500,000 for improvement of the upper Mississippi river. The only way to get more is to raise a demand for it."

CAT ATTACKS TWO WOMEN AND IS LOCKED IN HOME

"Mitzie," a large Persian cat, was locked in the library of her owner's home at 1401 East 57th street last night, after she had severely scratched Mrs. Dora Boder, wife of Dr. David P. Boder, professor of psychology at Lewis institute, and a Negro maid, Julia Green. The women were taken to Billings Memorial hospital.

The cat apparently was stricken with a fit while the maid was feeding her, for she leaped upon the Negress and inflicted deep scratches on her neck and arms. When Mrs. Boder went to the aid of the maid the animal attacked her. The women ran from the room and telephoned to Dr. Boder, who hurried home and locked the cat in the library.

He summoned the Hyde Park police. Sergts. William Tapscott and Joseph O'Hern responded, but said they would be unable to capture the cat alive. Dr. Boder insisted he wanted the animal's life saved and decided to let the cat remain in possession of the library until morning to await the arrival of attendants from the dog pound with a net.

Late last night police were summoned to the home a second time when the cat escaped from the library when Dr. Boder opened the door in an attempt to calm it. Two policemen pursued the animal through various rooms until they finally cornered it in an office used by Mrs. Boder. Once more they locked it in and went back to the station after advising Dr. Boder to leave it alone.

BERENGER FEARS U. S. RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 1.—An excellent bill of health was given American economy today along with a grave warning to Europe by Senator Henri Berenger, eminent French financial authority, former ambassador to the United States and co-author of the Mellon-Berenger war debt treaty.

The financial condition of the United States is so sound fundamentally, Berenger said, that even worse for France and other gold countries than the devaluation of the dollar will be the rush of funds to the United States when it climbs back on the gold standard.

Writing in the Agence Economique et Financiere, Senator Berenger said:

"A sudden repatriation of masses of reappreciated dollars can cause such difficulties that European currencies will be seriously staggered, if not caught up in catastrophe.

"The dollar undoubtedly is worth more than the 18 francs paid for it today. Its former gold coverage has not changed. The dollar remains the strongest in the world compared to any other currency."

GOVERNOR SEEKS NEW FUNDS FOR IDLE RELIEF HERE

Gov. Henry Horner is to confer here today with officials of the Illinois emergency relief commission on methods of financing idle relief for the last four months of the year. When the governor left Springfield last night he said he did not believe the sales tax, which is expected to produce $3,000,000 a month, would be sufficient to cover the cost of relief.

Henry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, has notified the commission that the federal government will advance only one dollar for every three dollars raised locally, and will reject other requests for aid from Illinois because of the heavy drains on the "discretionary fund" from other states. The Illinois relief commission expects a deficit of $1,800,000 this month.

Wilfred Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission; Joseph J. Rice, state director of finance, and De Witt C. Billman, executive secretary of the legislative reference bureau, conferred with Mr. Hopkins in Washington this week and will report to Gov. Horner today.

BOOKS

Readers Can Understand Her Autobiography.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas." [Harcourt-Brace.] Published yesterday.

"ABOUT six weeks ago Gertrude Stein said, 'It does not look to me as if you were ever going to write that autobiography. You know what I am going to do? I am going to write it for you. I am going to write it as simply as Defoe did the autobiography of Robinson Crusoe.' And she has, and this is it." Thus ends the most fascinating book of the year for many of us.

For years intelligent readers have known of, if not actually followed, the work of Gertrude Stein. No person with any feel at all for modern American literature has missed "Three Lives" or the "cuttings" from it which have been grafted into the literary work of Ernest Hemingway [to name only one of the young writers who have been influenced in their very pen-rhythms by Gertrude Stein]. "Three Lives" was one of the great books of our day, and it is little known to the great mass who find entrancing the work of writers who have eaten of its nourishment.

From "Three Lives" Gertrude Stein went on to a more complicated, a less assimilable theory of writing, which culminated in the idea that this is an age of the sentence as opposed to previous ages of the paragraph. Much amused and bitter criticism of its obscureness gave the work of Gertrude Stein the same sort of fantastic praise and blame that was attached to the work of the modern painters [intent upon expressing ideas rather than facts]. The fact that Gertrude Stein was the first appreciator, the first intelligent critic of many of the young painters [who are today as accepted as cellophane] linked her in the minds of the unknowing with "those crazy moderns."

But to those who know that all art [in all of the seven arts] must in every generation have not only its practitioners but its creators to keep it alive, the story of the creators is really the only thrilling one. The other, the story of the practitioners, is mere carving on the tombstone. The story of the "crazy" creators is the lifeblood which courses through art.

Gertrude Stein's critical pen has been dipped in that lifeblood, her creative pen has been a duct through which it has flowed. There is in Europe today no single person who has been of more influence in the modern arts than Gertrude Stein. In pictorial art that is recognized by ever one. In literature her influence has been that of personal contact, perhaps, rather than that of remote control. The young writers who have been her brilliant followers have been her close friends, have come under the influence of a mind which is without question one of the few really brilliant ones in the world.

You cannot talk with her, or listen to her, for a half hour without knowing that you have met a mind whose ultra violet rays are piercing life. I know, because once I made a pilgrimage to Belignin, her country place near Aix-les-Bains, in France, a little skeptical that some one whose later work I had been frankly unable to understand could convince me that one did not need to understand to know that what she was doing was worth doing. When I left I understood little more than I did when I arrived of the theory of her work, but I knew that for one day I had been with a mind so many faceted, so brilliant, so intense, as I had never before met.

I knew then, too, that if she chose Gertrude Stein could write so simply, with such pure line of drawing in her words, that her most violent detractors would be shouted down by the sheer thunder of her simplicity.

For years every one, and by every one I mean every one who knows about such things, had been trying to get Gertrude Stein to write her autobiography. "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas" is Gertrude Stein's novel way of answering that cry without giving up her theories of the new forms of writing. Alice B. Toklas is "a pretty good housekeeper, and a pretty good gardener, and a pretty good needlewoman, and a pretty good secretary, and a pretty good editor, and a pretty good vet for dogs," the autobiography says, "and I have to do them all at once and I found it difficult to add being a pretty good author," so Gertrude Stein wrote her autobiography for her, choosing thus unusually to write her own.

Miss Toklas is inseparable from Gertrude Stein and has been since 1907, and in writing the "autobiography" of her constant companion Gertrude Stein has been able in an amusing form to detail her own life completely. "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas" is really the autobiography of Gertrude Stein.

No book that I have read for months has given me the sheer pleasure in its writing that this book has. It has the subtlest undercurrent of humor and satire. It is sharp as the edge of a scalpel. Its sentences are often spikes upon which are carried the heads of a whole generation's foibles, sentiments, critical mistakes, and rightnesses. It is wise and it is brilliantly cruel [as truth is].

If one began quoting sentences one might quote a third of the book. It is all stimulating to the mind of the reader . . . any reader. He needn't know the work of the artists and writers which fill its pages. He need only float in the vivifying tangy words to be refreshed and involuntarily surer about the importance of creative art. Not that the autobiography is a treatise. It is neither that nor a credo . . . merely a record, but one set down with such clarity and such rich humanity that it becomes itself a work of creative art.

Pauline Smith Is Completing a New Novel

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—All who remember the surprised delight with which they read (on Arnold Bennett's recommendation) a book of South African stories called "The Little Karoo," and the relish they had from a novel, "The Beadle," in which the author of "The Little Karoo" showed that she could make a success of the longer tale, will learn with pleasure that Miss Pauline Smith, who wrote these books, has nearly finished another novel.

BEVERLEY NICHOLS.

Miss Smith has been ill, and the book has been much delayed in consequence; but she is better, and is on the point of taking a voyage to South Africa. The voyage is for health; but the visit to South Africa will enable her to finish her book in the appropriate surroundings. Like its predecessors, it is a story of South African life, and it should be ready either in the late fall or the early spring.

Another new book, but one of a different order, is to be entitled "The Thatched Roof," and its author is Beverley Nichols. In this book Mr. Nichols is going to do for the interior of his cottage in the country what he did for its external delights in "Down the Garden Path." Mr. Nichols used to be regarded as a smart young man about town; but he discovered the delights of rustic seclusion, and although he is too wise to cut himself off entirely from the world he knows that a cottage and a garden are better than all the cocktail parties in London.

Having told us all about his garden in "Down the Garden Path," he is going to tell us all about the furnishing of his home in "The Thatched Roof."

S. P. B. Mais, who began writing novels a good many years ago, when he was a young schoolmaster, and who has since become one of the most successful of all radio talkers, has written another novel, apparently in the vein of his early books, called "These I Have Loved: The Story of an Affectionate Man." Mr. Mais loves not only people, but games and books. He nearly went to prison last year in defence of his right to play cricket on the local village green, and he then went all over England for the British Broadcasting corporation for the purpose of studying the provision of centers for unemployed men.

"More meat in it than in a dozen previous efforts to interpret Hitler and Hitlerism."

DEATH FOR ALL MURDERERS.

Two armed men boarded a street car to rob the conductor. The conductor resisted. One of the robbers thereupon shot him to death.

This killer has just been given a life term—his companion 14 years in the penitentiary.

This jury, in our opinion, did not do its full duty. There was no doubt about the facts. The only excuse offered for the killing was that the murderer was so drunk he did not know what he was doing. It is no excuse at all. The killer had armed himself. He knew enough to go after the conductor's money. He knew enough to draw and shoot his victim twice. The jurors were weaklings if they allowed themselves to be restrained by such an excuse. Their verdict falls short of justice and public duty.

It is important to the restraint of savage criminality in this city and country that the death penalty for murder shall not be shirked by juries. When a man has willfully destroyed another human life he should be held to have forfeited his own. In this case the man who killed was 27 years old, a mature man. He had indulged his own evil impulses and appetites. He destroyed the life of an honest and industrious man who was earning his living blamelessly and serving the community usefully. There is no reason why the community should support him for years, but the chief reason for giving him the extreme penalty is its effect upon other reckless brutes whose imagination can only be reached by the fear of the electric chair.

Citizens who serve on juries in murder cases should not shirk their unpleasant duty to the community. They should note the obvious relief of this murderer's lawyer when the life sentence was announced, the satisfaction of the so-called Tiger Woman when she was given the equivalent of a life sentence, and the efforts of virtually every criminal to escape the death penalty. When sentimentalists say a life sentence is worse than the death penalty they are not themselves making the choice. Condemned criminals do not agree with them.

The savage violence of crime in recent years must be dealt with sternly. The strict application of the death penalty to the criminal killer will not abolish deliberate murder, but it will largely repress the kind of reckless destruction of life which the laxity and delay of our administration of criminal laws have encouraged. The electric chair should be brought before the mind's eye of every ne'er do well who goes about this town armed to deal death whenever he wills it.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION AND THE REMAINING STATES.

The declaration of the people of Texas for the repeal of the 18th amendment is perhaps the most serious blow yet dealt the expiring régime of dry bigotry. The dry bosses, of course, try to belittle it on the ground that it was the result of political pressure. No one will deny that the explicit pledge of the Democratic party and the influence of the President were respected by Texas voters, but they do not account for the overwhelming majority won for repeal. Professional drys cannot afford to admit it, but the people of Texas know they are fed up with the dry régime and, like most of their fellow citizens, propose to get rid of it as soon as possible. The dry bosses will prevent them if possible, even to the extent of using their remaining political power to deny voters the opportunity of voting on the issue. In the heyday of their power they prated about the will of the majority, but they now are hoping to save it by the will of a small minority. The tyranny of the bigot dies hard and in its last throes reveals the nature of the dry régime. No wonder the American people will have no more of it.

The people of the states yet permitted to speak should and we think will recognize the real issue. It is whether a mandate which no longer has the support of a large majority of their fellow citizens shall be retained in the body of the law, though more than ever unenforceable and the object of just resentment and general nullification.

That such a situation has anything to do with temperance, is anything but the stubborn folly of bigots heedless of public morals and responsible government, only blind partisans can pretend. The remaining states have upon their consciences a responsibility to the rest of the nation to prevent it whether they are wet or dry. Any or all of these states may have state prohibition if they wish it. What they are now to decide is whether an unenforceable and demoralizing mandate shall fail to be removed from the body of our law by the will of a quarter of our states and less than a quarter of our people. It is not a question whether national prohibition shall die. It is already dead and should be buried.

NEW YORK'S DAY OF RECKONING.

The financial crisis which confronted the government of New York City as the Sept. 1 interest date approached was by no means unique. These crises have been recurrent and will become increasingly menacing to New York's credit until drastic economies are undertaken. Chicago knows all about that. New York today is about in the position in which Chicago's governments found themselves some eighteen months ago. The bankers are becoming increasingly reluctant to lend and the taxpayers are finding it increasingly difficult to carry the immense burden which has been thrust upon them. The tax delinquencies are enormous and seem destined to grow larger.

Chicago's local governments began to default sooner than New York's, chiefly because of the delay in tax collection caused by the reassessment. Had New York been obliged to face a comparable aggravation of its difficulties, its default could not have been postponed. As matters stand, Chicago is in much the better position today, not only because some of its governments, like that of the city itself, have come through the worst without a default, but also because, out of sheer necessity, a substantial attack has been made here upon extravagance and the trend of Cook county tax bills is definitely downward.

Progress was made under Mayor Cermak and more has been accomplished in the conservative and capable administration of Mayor Kelly. At the moment when New York is just discovering that bankers can not only threaten to refuse loans, but actually say no with finality, Chicago is approaching the time when its more solvent governments can again command credit.

In this connection the proposal of Mayor Kelly for the setting up of an unofficial board of estimate, which should apportion tax revenues among the governments in proportion to their importance in the community, is excellent. As matters stand, the reduction in tax collections has not resulted, as it should have, in the virtual suspension of some of the governments and little change in the appropriations for others which were performing more vital services. Obviously it is more important to maintain the fire department than the forest preserves, but without some kind of a board which could apportion funds they have fared alike.

In view of the fact that virtually all of the major governments in the county are now being administered by members of the Democratic party, the task of creating a joint budgetary management of all of them is by no means insurmountable. Mr. Kelly, by himself, can bring in the city and the south park board, and perhaps the school board as well. The county, the sanitary district, and the other principal park boards will join if the party leaders and public opinion demand it. If Mr. Kelly can bring this centralized financial management into being he and his associates in the other governments will have made a great contribution to the solvency of the local governments of this community.

OF LAW AND NOT OF MEN.

It is not surprising that the abolition of the constitutional system of the United States declared by the attorney general of Michigan was promptly protested in the gathering to which it was announced, the American Bar association. Attorney O'Brien had asserted that no court in the land would dare to challenge the constitutionality of NRA. United States District Judge Tuttle of Mr. O'Brien's state replied: "No court in the land is going to be dictated to, nor is it afraid. The courts of the United States will not stand in the way of recovery, but they will interpret the constitution of the United States to the best of their ability. That is their job and they will do it."

We cannot predict what the courts will say as to the constitutionality of NRA or of any provision of the acts passed in the interest of recovery. But if we have not substituted an absolute monarchy or superconstitutional dictatorship for the American republic the courts will not abdicate their duty because a decision may not please the executive or the congress or even a prevailing public opinion. Mr. Dooley once said that while the constitution followed the flag the Supreme court follows the election returns, which was a rather cynical and extreme way of saying that judges are human and share the changes of thought and sentiment and interest taking place in the society of which they are a part. It is fortunate that they do. Law, even constitutional law, is a living organism, not only through legislative changes and adjustments, but through the process of judicial interpretation. But when the courts merely register the force of temporary opinion or sentiment, regardless of justice or the principles which underlie our system of law and government, they will have abolished themselves and the liberties of the people.

We have for nearly a century and a half cherished the ideal of a government of law and not of men. An independent judiciary is essential to that ideal. Attorney O'Brien's threat was no service to the New Deal, but it is a warning that heedless enthusiasm and reckless partisanship need restraint if what is good in our efforts for recovery is not to be purchased for more than it can be worth.

Editorial of the Day

RAILROAD RECOVERY.

[Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald.]

The highly gratifying travel to the World's Fair in Chicago has been a mighty influence in putting the railroads on their feet. Entirely gone is the doleful expression which for several years was worn by the conductors and brakemen on the great through trains of the fine systems. Instead of walking through virtually empty Pullman cars on their long runs, instead of twiddling their thumbs in idleness day after day, the conductors now find that their hands are full in taking care of their long, crowded trains. The change is so marked as to be almost unbelievable.

Some of the trains pulling into Chicago from the south have been running in as many as four or five sections, and a few of the railroads from the east have brought special excursion trains into Chicago with as many as 14 sections. Instead of dreary and deserted halls of stone and steel the Chicago terminals are beehives of activity.

What is taking place in connection with the Chicago Fair is being repeated to a certain extent in almost every city in the United States. In some of the eastern cities, for instance, Pullman reservations are being made three days in advance because of the demand for accommodations—on the more popular trains. And this travel has nothing whatever to do with the Chicago Exposition, except that perhaps the widespread talk about "going to the Fair" has served to break the spell of reluctance and to make the country tend to be travel-minded again.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MAJOR, Franklin Delano's police dog, has bitten three persons on the White House lawn within a week, according to Washington reports, and if you don't wish Major to bite you on your White House lawn stay away from the President's mansion. We share with Tommy Atkins, our almost human Sealyham, in a deep dislike for police dogs. Tommy acts just the same when he sights a police dog as he did when he heard the wolves howl up in the Algoma bush in Canada; he bristles up and shrieks to be let at them. Up in a little town in Canada the old bus stopped for gas and Tommy, as usual, was the first out. Immediately a police dog somewhat larger than a Jersey cow made a dash for Tommy, and Tommy, in spite of the fact that he was about one-tenth the size of the police dog, gave a joyous yelp and dashed to meet the foe. They clinched and went to the ground and rolled over in a fine rough and tumble. I tried to push the police hound away with my foot, but he wouldn't push. Being afraid he would swallow Tommy with one gulp, I picked him up by the collar while Jennifer Jean grabbed up Tommy, who begged in wild screams for another go at the enemy. Franklin D. and lots of people may like police dogs, but personally I'd rather have a hyena or a jaguar for a pet.

SAPPHIC.

Love songs are by Sappho.
The Greek turned to her lyre
Where steps of porphyry led down
And columns mounted higher.

Smooth ran the theme and Sappho
Strummed lightly on her lyre,
She was a likely female
And full of natural fire.

But neither man nor woman
Escapes the rage of time,
Yet Sappho gained distinction,
Remembered by a rhyme.

That Greek deserves our honor,
By all her gods above,
Wisely knowing nothing
Can die, attuned to love.

HARVEY HELP HELP said yesterday that somebody had put over a stolen poem on him while he was running the Line and says he asked me once if I ever printed a poem that had been swiped and I had told him yes, that things like that happened in the best regulated columns. I may have told Harvey this several years ago, but not since I put into operation the plan of selecting the best contributions by throwing them all up against the ceiling. The best ones will stick and can be taken down by the aid of a stepladder. A stolen poem, being invariably a good poem, or else the rhyme thief wouldn't have swiped it, will naturally stick to the ceiling, but if left up long enough it invariably turns a pale, sickly green with yellow spots like a hobnailed liver. Then it can be removed with a pair of tongs and carried out and thrown in the garbage can.

And Henry Ford doesn't believe yet that the United States is bigger than he is.

H. G. WELLS in his new book says that after a horrible war in Europe in 1940 there will come the collapse of the world system as we know it and from the ruins will rise a reconstructed world in which:

There remains no way of becoming passively wealthy. Gambling is ruthlessly eradicated. Usury ranks with forgery as a monetary offense. Money is given to people to get what they want and not as a basis for further acquisition. There are no speculators, shareholders, private usurers, or rent lords.

Which ought to convince anybody that Mr. Wells is the greatest fiction writer who ever lived.

DISTANCES.

To childish eyes the distances how far!
Spaces illimitable and undreamed.
My childhood friend who crossed the ocean seemed
As though he lived upon another star.
My earlier manhood overleaped this bar,
But now the graying shadows creep apace,
I stretch out wistful hands through time and space

In the few shortening years that yet remain
The distances will lengthen more and more,
Faces recede and voices die away,
Until I enter in time's womb again.
There will be dark and silence as before,
Then the wide glories of the larger day.

STRAIGHTENING THE TEETH.

THIS column receives many letters from persons who have had unsatisfactory experiences in having their children's teeth straightened. Some object to the cost of the treatment and ask for places where they can have the work done free. When told that having the teeth straightened is done usually for the purpose of improving appearance and, therefore, it is a luxury and not a necessity; and whereas there is some logic in a community supplying out of public funds the necessities of life for those who otherwise would suffer, there is no reason for their supplying luxuries. Following such answers come other letters asking where the teeth can be straightened at small expense.

Others complain of the pain and discomfort, or the unsightly appearance of the apparatus, or of the length of time required for treatment. But all of these combined are relatively few as compared with the number who complain that the work had to be redone. Acting on the advice of competent men they had had the teeth straightened in childhood. When completed it was satisfactory. A few years later it was found that the alignment was again at fault. The work done in childhood had to be repeated during the period of adolescence.

All of the face, from the eyebrows down, is a sort of superstructure built around the openings for the eyes, the air passage, and the food passage, and built on to the train box after the fashion of a bay window or a Boston front. In a sense, it is an architectural ornament, though many of the parts are put there for very useful purposes. It has length from above downward, breadth and depth from before back, and the third of these dimensions is just as important from the standpoint of appearance as is either of the other two dimensions.

The size and shape of the face in that region between the tip of the nose to the point of the chin and extending back to the ears undergoes change at every period of life from the cradle to the grave. The impulse to grow is a part of the program of growth with which the individual starts life. In the mouth region a second impulse is added, it being the need of room for the two sets of permanent teeth.

The rate of growth is far from uniform. Speaking generally, it is most rapid during the period which starts just before the first permanent tooth is cut and extends to the time for cutting the wisdom teeth. This, fixed by years of life, is from about the beginning of the sixth year to about the end of the twenty-first. During this period the rate of growth of the whole is not uniform, nor is there evenness of growth in the different sectors of bone, nor in their different dimensions.

Those who advocate straightening the teeth early stress the importance of the teeth as an urge for the development of the jaws. They say if the teeth are pushed and pulled into line and held there and this is done early, say soon after the fifth year, the jaws tend to develop larger and in better shape. If the work is delayed beyond the twelfth year this urge to development of the jaws is lost, in part, at least. Those who advocate beginning the work at about age thirteen say that when the work is done in childhood it must be redone in adolescence. The treatment must be kept up over a period of several years if this is to be avoided. If done at a later period the likelihood of relapse is less. The operator can form a better judgment as to when the teeth should be placed. Enough time yet remains to get such development of the jaws as the teeth can supply.

Both sides are right. There are advantages and disadvantages in both plans of procedure.

MAYBE HE IS RIGHT.

Miss B. L. writes: What causes the eyes to cross? What is the cause of double vision? This has happened to me several times. It would last about five minutes. It is a peculiar sensation to have the eyes actually turn in and up and down. My health is in good condition. I went to an eye specialist and he said I should have glasses. I am 35 years old.

REPLY.

Probably the specialist was right. Glasses that fit properly should prevent this if worn under all conditions that cause eye strain. In fitting glasses for such a case as this, account must be taken of the peculiar kind of work the particular pair of eyes are called on to do and especially of the conditions which cause strain at the time when turning occurs. Some cases are not relieved by wearing glasses that are right from the optical standpoint. In such cases it may be necessary to cut some of the fibers of the muscle which has outpulled the antagonizing muscle. Other cases are due to such causes as brain tumor, failure of the brain to fuse the two eye images, and to botulinus poisoning and epidemic encephalitis. Neither wearing glasses nor cutting a muscle attached to the eyeball will relieve when such causes as these are responsible.

POISON IVY.

W. G. B. writes: Re inquiry in your column recently on how to cure poison ivy blisters, I recently found that ordinary gasoline applied liberally was a most efficient cure after a bottle of drug store medicine had failed. Apply as soon as possible after poison is noticed.

REPLY.

Folks have been writing me that for several years and I have been printing it. Get on the circuit and stay with us. Thanks

ADMINISTRATOR OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What penalty does the state of Kansas place upon a person who, as administrator of an estate, did not fully turn in every item of expense and income or full financial amounts of the estate before final settlement in Probate court? If he has spent money that his brothers should have received in the settlement of the estate [2] what system is best for them to secure a just settlement? 3. How can a trustee be appointed for a farm that is undivided among the brothers? 4. How can two brothers force the third to sell his share of the farm to them? He has also taken one of the brother's automobiles and he is using it without the brother's permission. 5. What can owner of car do? G. C. T.

1. Without having additional facts before us, we cannot determine whether criminal proceedings would be advisable, if that is what you mean to ask.
2. See 1.
3. If all of the owners can agree they can convey by a trust deed, the instrument specifying the terms of the trust. We advise the employment of an attorney on both matters.
4. They cannot force him to sell to them, but they can force a public sale at which they may bid.
5. One course would be a replevin suit.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STOCKHOLDER'S LIABILITY.

Argo, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and myself each own stock in a small bank in a Texas town. The bank opened after the banking holiday but was taken over by the R. F. C. in June. The only way the stockholders learned of this was through a notice in the town paper as to change of the bank's name, etc. A federal man is in the bank now and tells us we have lost all our stock but will not be assessed. However, we are still liable, and if the bank even now should fail, we would still be assessed. 1. Can they hold us to this? 2. If so, can they hold us liable after the new banking law securing depositors goes into effect this coming January? 3. The stockholders are anxious to prosecute the directors, as the foolish unsecured loans they made ruined the bank, but of course, our hands are tied as we don't dare shake confidence in the bank if we are still liable. P. W. W.

1. The liability of stockholders is not discharged by the banks being placed in the hands of a conservator. It is not entirely clear what facts are back of his statement that you have lost all your stock. This wording would imply that there has been a formal reorganization. We cannot say just what the effect would be without knowing exactly what steps have been taken.
2. This and other recent legislation makes it improbable that banks will be permitted to close and hence make it improbable that stockholders' liability will be assessed.
3. Attorneys on the ground can advise you to better advantage than we can as to the practical weight of these considerations. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NRA Question Box

Among the questions being received by the Chicago Recovery Council concerning the NRA are the following:

Q. What about the NRA and hotel employés? My husband works for a hotel in receivership and, although it flies the Blue Eagle, he still works 12 to 15 hours a day.

A. Whether the hotel is operating under the receivership or not, as long as it signed the reëmployment agreement it has obligated itself to pay the minimum wages and operate under the maximum working hours. If your husband cannot make the hotel manager see the light, it is suggested that you submit your complaint in writing to NRA headquarters, 201 North Wells street. Your name will be kept confidential.

Q. I work for a toy company. You will find that this place is "chiseling" on the NRA. What shall I do about it?

A. Follow instructions given in the previous answer.

Q. I worked as a fitter in a dress shop at $25 a week. Recently the owner signed the NRA, changed the hours, and because he had to employ an additional fitter, reduced my pay $5. I protested, saying he could not reduce my salary under the code, but he said he could not afford to pay any more, so I quit my job. Can the NRA do anything to him?

A. Nothing can be done in your behalf. Your employer, by reducing hours, created another job and added to his pay roll, all of which was in accordance with the purpose of the recovery act.

Q. What is the ruling concerning legal holidays? With Labor day coming up, having signed the NRA, we don't know just what to do.

A. The ruling on legal holidays has just been received. Employés are to be paid for such holidays just the same as if they had worked on that day. Employers are not to work them longer hours during the remainder of the week to make up for the lost time.

SAFETY IN THE HARBOR.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—In your editorial comment of Aug. 30 relative to the collision between the cabin cruiser Visitor and speed boat Miss Chicago, which resulted in the death of three persons, reference is made to the recommendation of the coroner that a separate lane for speed boats be set aside at the mouth of the river.

In the early spring, before the opening of A Century of Progress, the coast guard, in anticipation of the abnormal marine traffic incident to A Century of Progress, which would unquestionably prove an additional hazard to all boats operating in and along the Chicago water front, called a meeting of the federal, commercial and yachting interests concerned to devise supplementary rules to govern and safeguard this expected traffic. As a result of this conference certain rules for the duration of the Exposition were recommended to the department of commerce as supplementary to its circular number 247 which promulgates certain rules to promote the safety of life on navigable waters. These rules were approved and are now a part of the regulations referred to, and a violation of same is subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars.

Sections A and D of the supplementary regulations referred to provide specifically for lanes outside the inner breakwater, properly marked by spar buoys, to which north and south bound traffic is obligated to confine itself, and was especially devised and marked for motor boat convenience and safety.

These rules were given wide publicity through the press and to all yacht clubs and commercial operators and to any one interested in the safe operation of his boat. There appears to be little excuse for not being aware of their existence. H. R. SEARLES,
Captain, U. S. Coast Guard; Commander, Chicago Division, U. S. C. G.

QUITE A LONG WAY.

Toulon, Ill., Aug. 22.—I have read your editorial in this morning's paper as to the government's paying a bonus to cotton farmers who are now indebted to the government on existing claims for money advanced for seed and feed.

The government is going to do the same thing with the wheat grower. But the amounts due the government are much larger than to the cotton grower. McKenzie county, North Dakota, expects to receive $210,000 of this bonus money next month. There are farmers out there who will receive this bonus who are owing the government for over 5 years and who never expect to pay the government.

How much further is this matter going? L. M. BURKEY.

THE ROOSEVELT GRANDCHILDREN.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Since the inauguration of our President his grandchildren have been referred to in the newspapers as Sistie and Buzzie, which no doubt means sister and brother. Will you please find out what their real names are and make them known to us the next time the children's picture appears in THE TRIBUNE? MRS. J. S.

HOW LARGE IS THE DEFICIT?

Chicago, Aug. 26.—The citizens' committee has just informed us that our board of education faces a deficit of $35,000,000; our board admits a deficit of about $8,000,000; certain citizens who should be in a position to know say there is no deficit, and others who are just as competent tell us that there will be a surplus at the end of the year. These groups cannot all be right, neither can they all be wrong. Under the circumstances what is the average citizen to believe? Is there no person or group of persons who can give him dependable, reliable information? He can be sure of only one thing: That the teachers have not been paid for five and a half months.

Our board has a research department, headed by a high salaried worker, housed in a fine office, with fine equipment and a stenographer, but the citizens of Chicago cannot obtain dependable information about their schools. The time for a decided change is at hand.

GRETA S. DEFFENBAUGH.

JAPANESE RELATIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—You have an editorial today that says in effect that we will have no war with Japan if our statesmen are tactful. But on another page of today's TRIBUNE you print a long dispatch from Tokio that says Japan looks to the United States for a trade alliance. It seems that the latter circumstance is more pertinent.

Japan is the United States' third best customer and we are Japan's best. Surely Japan wants no war with the one nation in the world that buys most of its goods. No sensible merchant shoots bullets at his best customer.

Japan tea and Japanese silk are two of the best reasons for our Japanese friends wanting to retain our friendship. As long as we continue to drink Japan tea and use Japanese silk, and as long as the Japanese import such a great amount of cotton, America's greatest agricultural product, desire for war on the part of either nation is preposterous.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—An increase of four cents per quart in the cost of milk and a reduction in quality imposed by Secretary Wallace and the NRA make a brand new deal for babies, just babies.

NO ADMITTANCE.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—So, Mr. Machado intends to make his home among the lovers of liberty. What a paradox! A tyrant such as Mr. Machado is as much a danger as would be Mr. Trotzky, the communist. Our government should class him as undesirable and forbid him entrance. EDWARD J. CAHILL.

THE MILK PROBLEM SOLVED.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Maybe your milk problem can be solved. I was just talking to a conductor who says he thinks his company would be glad to deliver your milk free in order to get the wagons off the car track.

ONE OF 3 HELD TELLS STORY OF TORTURE DEATH

Danville Man Admits His Part in Crime.

BULLETIN.

Robinson, Ill., Sept 2 (Saturday).—(Special.)—Victor Wright, 35 years old, was shot in the abdomen early this morning by State Policeman Don Clark of Flora in a fight a block away from the jail. Wright had been questioned earlier in the Schraeder murder case and released. He returned with a shotgun, vowing to "get" the police. Policeman Clark tried to disarm him and during the scuffle shot him. Wright's condition is serious.

Robinson, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—John Allen, 26, of Danville, late today confessed that he was one of the three men who visited the home of Mrs. Mary Schraeder near Newton Tuesday night in an attempt to obtain money which they believed her brother, Bernard Weldon, had hidden in the house. Mrs. Schraeder was tortured and fatally injured and Weldon and Mrs. Schraeder's daughter, Anna, were seriously injured. Both women were raped.

Allen's story practically cleared one of the suspects, Harold Peck of Indianapolis, arrested with Allen and Harry Shelby of Tilton, Ill., yesterday at Danville. Peck admitted that he had "loaned" his car.

Allen said he borrowed Peck's car for a "date" and that Peck was not a member of the bandit trio.

Late tonight Shelby made an oral confession similar to that of Allen's and was later taken to Danville, where it is understood the third man in the case lives.

Names Uncle as One.

Shelby, oldest of the trio and uncle of Allen, was identified as one of the bandits, but the identity of the third man was withheld pending further investigation. Allen was reluctant to reveal the identity of his companions and claimed that the third man was a stranger whom he had met Sunday.

Allen stated that they came to the farm home two miles east of Newton because they heard Weldon had "lots of dough." They left Danville at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, he said, and stopped in Robinson for sandwiches and drove on to Newton where they made inquiries concerning Weldon's whereabouts, but were unable to get accurate information and spent the night on a side road.

They remained there most of the day and made further inquiries the next day and were directed to Weldon's home. It was this man that became suspicious and took the auto license number which resulted in their capture within 48 hours after the crime.

Allen Tells His Story.

The three went to the Weldon home about dusk that evening, Allen told the officers, and found the three people outside the house. They first asked if they could spend the night at the schoolhouse nearby, and then pointed guns at them and took them into the house.

Allen, said Mrs. Schraeder had a spading fork in her hand and when he attempted to take it away from her she scratched his arm and he picked her up and carried her into the house. She sat on the side of the bed while he searched the house for money, he said. The other two bandits handled Weldon and the daughter, according to the story.

Allen claims he had no part in the attacks, saying that he thought the money might be hidden in the barn and went to look for it, and that the three were not injured when he left.

Tells Officer He'll Talk.

The confession came unexpectedly upon the arrival here of C. L. Farber of the state bureau of criminal investigation and identification. Farber was formerly finger print expert at Pontiac reformatory where Allen served on a petty larceny charge. They were friends at the institution and immediately recognized each other. Allen called Farber aside and said he was ready to talk.

Farber was sent here by Gov. Horner to assist local officers together with T. P. Sullivan, superintendent, and Lawrence Taylor, acting chief of state police.

A large crowd milled about the jail throughout the day as Anna Schraeder and Weldon were brought to the jail and positively identified Allen and Shelby as two of the bandits.

CLAIMS GERMANY COULD GO TO WAR WITHIN A YEAR

French Paper Points to "Preparations."

STRASBOURG, France, Sept. 1.—(AP)—An article asserting that Germany could be ready for war in the air and on land within a year will be published tomorrow by the Strasbourg newspaper Dernieres Nouvele.

German industry has been working to full capacity since May 1, the article says, and is capable of starting to produce sufficient poison gas in six weeks, explosives in three months, rifles and machine guns in six months, and heavy artillery in ten months.

Aerial Network Developed.

Air warfare, the article declares, could commence sooner because factories are equipped for quick production and commercial planes have been especially designed for conversion into military craft.

The article says that the German aerial network has been developed far beyond commercial needs and "the same applies to strategic roads, bridges, and railways," which are especially adaptable for troop movements.

The Rhineland's demilitarization has been nullified, the article continues, by replacement of Prussian troops with much stronger forces of Nazi shock troops and other Hitlerite units.

It asserts German copper, cotton, and rubber imports for the first half of 1933 would be ample for war needs and states the army could be completely motorized in four months.

Claims Germany Has Edge.

"Germany has an inestimable advantage over the old military powers: she has no superannuated war material," the article says. "What arms she produces today are based on the best and most recent experiments made by all the powers, and may surpass if possible in quality the arms of the old military powers. This is particularly true in the case of the air service."

Bandit Slain, His Pal and Policeman Shot in Holdup

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 1.—(AP)—A bandit was killed and another bandit and a policeman were seriously wounded late today after four men had robbed the Consumers Milk company office of $800. The dead bandit was not identified, but the wounded one was believed by police to be a former deputy sheriff here. Police captured all the bandits and recovered the loot.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

IT was at Mackinac island, on the occasion of the naval ball held there the other evening. Eight naval reserve boats were lying at anchor, and the entire island extended its hospitality to the naval men.

Tapping— The Butternuts. Westerner.

Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald, who with Commander McDonald had come ashore from the Mizpah, which was cruising in northern waters, to attend the ball at the Grand hotel, was dancing with Admiral Wat T. Cluverius when a youth cut in. He was one of the ROTC boys from Northwestern university who were on the trip, and for purposes of explanation we point out that his rank was approximately that of a midshipman. The admiral stepped aside for the lad and bowed courteously.

"I am very glad to be of service to you," he said.

THE small sons of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maher accompanied their parents to the Kellogg Fairbank summer place in Lake Geneva on a recent week-end. As they entered the great central hall with its family pictures, its mottoes, its high ceilings and old family furniture, Hilary, the younger boy, looked about with interest.

"Well, Mr. Fairbank, this IS old-fashioned," he said to his host.

HILARY'S remark was true but inadequate, as probably he and his brother Boolie themselves realized before the week-end was over. The charm of The Butternuts has been a source of inspiration to at least four novelists, but the Victorian manner of the house and its furnishings are only part of its attraction. There is a tradition of pleasant and friendly living in the very air of the place. The visitor is conscious that there have been delightful house parties held there for generations: that girls with pompadours and long full skirts played tennis on its grass court, and chatted, in the shade of the elms and butternuts, of occurrences of the late nineties. Indeed, the fat little guest book in the hall bears testimony to these house parties of the past. Beginning in the early nineties, Winterbothams and Carpenters, Ayers and Bells, McCutcheons and Shaws inscribed their names on its pages, and the signatures on later pages disclose the romances of many of the guests.

MANY things contribute to the atmosphere of The Butternuts: The faint marks on the jamb of the drawing room door and the barely decipherable names and dates that established the growth of the Fairbank children from year to year. The open fires, lit whenever a slight chill creeps into the air. The study, where Mrs. Fairbank does her writing, it walls covered with photographs of family friends and relatives, including many of the famous of the world. The little chapel on the third floor built by Nathaniel K. Fairbank, with its pews and priedieu and stained glass windows. The small worn high chairs in the high ceilinged dining room.

GUESTS swim, or go sailing, or play tennis—casual tennis—because Lictor, the police dog, and his young son, Copper, frequently tumble about on the court, and a ball sent too high may bring down a shower of horse chestnuts about the net. They gather for tea or cocktails on the wide veranda, where hors d'œuvres for the cocktails are served side by side with thin bread and butter and old fashioned "hermits" for the tea drinkers.

A BREAKFAST tray, bright with colored linen and flowered china, with hot blueberry muffins flanking the bacon and eggs and sliced peaches, gives opportunity for the overnight visitor to absorb the Victorian tradition of the room with its flowered carpet and tall, chintz-hung windows, and its amusing glass and china receptacles for pins and powder. But all of these things are, after all, incidental, and as inadequate as Hilary's comment to summarize the charm of the place, except insomuch as they reflect the personalities of the people who live there.

BECAUSE, in the final analysis, it is personality that counts, and were The Butternuts a hut, or a nightmare of gilt and mirrors like that palace built by Mad Ludwig of Bavaria at Chiemsee, under its present occupancy guests would find pleasure in stopping under its roof.

A SEPTUAGENARIAN, wearing a ten gallon hat and boots, wandered through the lobby of the Stevens the other day, an expression of helplessness on his face. Finally he turned to a hotel attendant for assistance.

"It is durn easy to find a stray cow in 1,000 acres back home, but I can't even find the elevators in your joint," he said.

A Pretty Debutante of Season of Pretty Debs

Miss Virginia Thatcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. William Thatcher of East Delaware place, is to be a debutante this coming season. She is one of the prettiest of the many pretty girls who will make their bows to society this winter, with an ethereal, fragile beauty that is particularly effective in evening dress. Last winter she went to Sarah Lawrence college, but this year she will stay at home to enjoy to the utmost the debutante festivities.

Vacation Resorts, Country Clubs Call Society to Holiday Events

Long Week-End Will Find City Devoid of Socialites; Movement of Travelers Starts.

BY JUDITH CASS.

BY train, automobile or airplane society is getting away to the country for this long week-end and by late this afternoon there hardly will be a couple whose name makes social news left in the city. Not all are going for the whole week-end, however, for some will sleep in town and just spend the days—and most of the nights, perhaps—in the country, but every one who possibly can manage to do it will be in the country most of the time from noon today until early Tuesday morning.

The country clubs, of course, will be the Mecca of those who aren't leaving the city for the entire week-end and at all of them there will be golf events for men today and on Monday. Some are having dances tonight, but not all, for dancing is not nearly so routine a Saturday night event this summer as it used to be when members didn't think as long as they do now about the expense of such entertainment.

There are house guests in almost every house that boasts a guest chamber on the north shore and in Barrington, Wheaton, Geneva and the other outlying towns where there is much social activity, and there are house parties galore at all the clubs and hotels popular with socialites in Wisconsin and Michigan.

The Onwentsia club in Lake Forest, which was the scene of a gay dinner dance Thursday night when the English rugby players were the especial guests, isn't having anything but golf events for men over this week-end. The members are to have a rest from dinner and dancing until the United States-Australian Davis cup team tennis matches on Sept. 12 and 13, when the club will awaken to fresh life and gayety.

Dance Tonight at Exmoor Club.

The Exmoor club in Highland Park has been having one of the most exciting weeks in its long and colorful history this last week, for the national women's golf tournament is being played there, as every one undoubtedly knows. Today the finals will be played, so there won't be much playing by members, for every one will want to be in the gallery that will watch Virginia Van Wie and Helen Hicks battle for the national women's title.

Tonight there is to be a dinner dance and tomorrow and Monday the men will golf to their hearts' content, unless they are discouraged by the beautiful golf the women stars have been playing on their course the last few days.

The Glenview Golf club had a dancing party Thursday night, so nothing of that sort is planned for the week-end—just golf events for the men. The "high spot of the golf season" at this attractive old club at Golf will be Saturday, Sept. 16, when the "invitation golf tournament, party, and general good time get-together for men" is held. Twenty-two trophies will be played for that day.

Events for Women at Indian Hill Club.

The Indian Hill club in Winnetka, which is more of a community club than most country clubs for all its members are Winnetkans, always is planning something for the entertainment of the women and children as well as for the men, so on Monday there is to be a luncheon and bridge party as well as golf events. Tonight there is to be a dinner dance, and next Saturday night a dancing party for the girls and boys who will be returning to school shortly.

The Midlothian club also has planned bridge for the ladies, both today and Monday, and it is having its holiday dinner dance on Labor day. The Chicago Golf club in Wheaton, the Flossmoor, the Knollwood, the Barrington Hills, and the Geneva clubs are some of those that are having Labor day dances tonight. At Flossmoor there will be a card party this afternoon and at Knollwood the equestrians will enjoy a breakfast ride Monday.

Members of the South Shore Country club and their guests will see some excellent tennis this afternoon, for four great women net stars will play exhibition matches on the club courts, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Mary Heeley of London, members of the 1933 English Wightman cup team, and Miss Josephine Cruickshank and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of the United States will play.

There will be a dinner dance tonight at this large club which now belies its name, for it no longer is in the country, the city extends so far south. There will be another dinner dance on Labor day, too, following the annual golf battle for the President's trophy.

Polo Series at Fort Sheridan.

The polo field at Fort Sheridan will be the scene of three interesting matches tomorrow and Monday, two tomorrow and one Monday, for the new polo trophy named after Maj. Gen. Frank Parker is to be the prize of the series.

Outside of a game of rugby and one of cricket, this week-end will be comparatively free for the Vandals to come and go at will. They are playing "rugger" at 3 o'clock at Stagg field this afternoon, and cricket at Washington park tomorrow, starting at 11 a. m. with time out for tea at 2 o'clock. Usually cricket games last for two or three days, but this one will be played against time, or until a certain score is reached, bringing the game to a close around 5.

On Monday and Tuesday the Vandals, who are so capably captained by Percy M. Heywood, will play a cricket game against the Chicago Cricket club in Winnetka on the Skokie athletic

One Sunday afternoon in a dentist's chair. The first occupant is Roscoe Karns, with a cute little curl right in the middle of his forehead. He's sitting there for lack of a better place to sit, while he and his buddy, the dentist, are having a few man sized drinks together and talking about old times.

The second occupant is a former acquaintance of both, who, on a visit to his home town, is afflicted with a toothache and comes for removal of the painful molar. He happens to be the one man for whom Biff Grimes has an undying hatred, having been twice injured by him. A pompous, stupid person, he places himself in Biff's hands. The mask is adjusted, the gas turned on and the screen flashes back to show the early events leading up to this situation.

We find the three men in their palmy days—Gary Cooper, looking like nothing human in a striped suit, striped shirt, celluloid collar, and a derby. Two winsome maids figure in the story, and Neil Hamilton, as the wealthy, handsome Hugo, wins pretty Virginia, whom Biff adores in his gawky way. So the lumbering creature accepts Amy's suggestion of marriage—not because he recognizes or returns her love for him, but in order to keep up with Hugo and Virginia—and he never realizes that he has by far the best of the bargain until that eventful Sunday afternoon.

The film holds your interest and the prewar costumes and sets are lots of fun to see. Mr. Cooper is excellent as the slow moving and slow thinking Biff, and Miss Frances Fuller [a newcomer, I believe] is quite touching as the devoted but unappreciated Amy. Mr. Hamilton is able in an unsympathetic part. I didn't care a great deal for Fay Wray's Virginia, and thought the characterization a bit exaggerated in the last few reels. Good old Roscoe Karns is always an addition to any film—his face as he watches the extraction of the molar is worth the price of admission.

Gold Glitters on Frocks for After 5 Wear

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The stuff that glitters this fall will really be gold and silver. . . . Some of the most effective "after five" dresses have been unpacked for instant approval these last few days and most of them are shining examples of what the fashion conscious clothes collector will wear.

One positively knockout model is made of black and gold, the material being dull black silk peppered with small floral designs in dusky gold. It is made with the new revealing sheath silhouette that will hug your best reductions like nothing has ever hugged them before.

Flying loosely in the back is the newest revival, the flying panel. . . . The dress is long, with just a small suggestion of a train, the fullness flares just below the knee and the intricately fashioned sleeves ripple twice as enticingly because they are lined with glowing gold lamé.

Buyers just back from the fashion front promise all kinds of lamé . . . gold, silver, copper and colored lamé, blouses, trimmings and resplendent evening gowns made entirely of this regal fabric. For the velvet collectors . . . all kinds of new velvet dinner dresses, in rich, picturesque shades, with dramatic slithering trains, clinging silhouettes, high necklines in front and deep flattering V backlines, and long picture book sleeves.

A particularly lovely creation is made of soft almond green chiffon velvet. . . . It swathes itself high around the neckline, drapes distinctively around the hips and skirtline, and trails decoratively in a short train at the back. But the unusual feature is the soft, short ruffled peplum that makes the entire gown look like the illustration in some enchanted court scene, showing medieval ladies-in-waiting and resplendently appareled courtiers.

Launch Sale of Fair Token at Luncheon

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

More than one husband straying from the domestic doorstep of a pleasant autumn evening may pay a midnight visit to A Century of Progress. Armed with a World's Fair certificate of attendance, his name neatly engraved thereon, he is provided with a perfect alibi.

"At least that is the way I have figured it out," commented Dr. Allen D. Albert, yesterday at the luncheon that marked the formal issuance of World's Fair diplomas of attendance done by those two bachelors, Thornton Wilder and William Welsh.

"The luncheon, held on the veranda of the Trustees' lounge in the Hall of Science, was given by the Association of Arts and Industries which proposed and sponsored the execution of the certificates. It was attended by members of the board of the association with Col. William Nelson Pelouze as the toastmaster, also by representatives of the Exposition.

"Most of all," continued Dr. Albert, speaking for President Rufus C. Dawes, "I am pleased with the design of the certificate and its reference to the wonder of the Fair. It gives us credit for a feeling for design as well as mechanics. To tell you the truth, A Century of Progress has been managed as if design were unrelated. But through this little souvenir that in the words of its author, Mr. Wilder, is to be passed to my grandchildren and their grandchildren the Fair will receive credit for an appreciation of beauty unearned."

The design, done in the myriad colors of the Fair with a machine man harnessing a ray of light, is the work of Mr. Welsh. The text which Mr. Wilder described yesterday as done in "a rather solemn vein" goes on to say "that I, [name to be inserted] was present at A Century of Progress, an Exposition brought forth in a time of doubt and hesitation by the gallantry of the American spirit and lighted through the genius of Man by the rays of Arcturus; and that there I derived instruction, entertainment, and the sense of wonder."

Today the certificates go on sale in a dozen World's Fair concession, strung from blue and silver trees and wrapped in blue covers that are stamped with the greeting, "I was there." In another week 100 concessions will be offering them for sale.

"I hate to think of the 12,000,000 possible sales we've already missed this summer," mused George B. Woodruff, thinking of the revenue it would have meant to both the Fair and the Arts and Industries.

"But think of the crowds that are yet to come," consoled Dr. Forrest R. Moulton. "The last two months of an exposition always bring the biggest numbers. I expect the certificates to do a better business than the 'guess your weight' men, and they've already done $100,000 worth. They've exhausted all the canes in the United States. Now 35,000 are ordered from Japan."

The Hayden Harrises were guests at the luncheon. And so were Miss Norma Stahle, secretary of the Association of Arts and Industries; Mrs. Woodruff, Tage Palm, and Grimm Provence, French commissioner to A Century of Progress.

Charities Will Hold Tag Day on Sept. 11

Final arrangements for the annual tag day of the Chicago Federated Charities on Monday, Sept. 11, were made yesterday it was announced by Miss L. Ellen Babcock, president.

On that Monday 5,000 women, including society and club women and business women, will distribute the red heart shaped tags with the printed plea: "Have a heart for Chicago Federated Charities."

There are 47 institutions sharing in the proceeds this year, the number having been increased from 35 in 1927 by the depression. Each organization tagging last year gave up locations to those participating for the first time this year.

Conditions are now such that leaders of the tag day are optimistic of better receipts than those of last year, but have no gauge as to the amount they may expect to realize. A figure of $75,000 was mentioned as a goal.

"The cloud of depression has lifted," said Miss Babcock. "This is encouraging on the eve of tag day."

To join in the tag day and meet the requirements of the city council and the Chicago Association of Commerce each institution must show that it is strictly charitable in aim and operation and has no paid solicitors, and also that its deficit is not less than $2,500 a year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—German film workers, who remain abroad when existing contracts have expired or are now traveling abroad, will find it impossible to obtain jobs in Germany in the future, the Filmkurier warned today. The trade paper said that such persons are not interested in the work of the reich's cultural reconstruction.

Revealing the plans of the new movie authorities in Germany, the Filmkurier brands as "traitors" those who are employed in foreign lands by Jewish producers who have emigrated from Germany, or by companies displaying an inimical attitude toward the new Germany. The paper says:

"The new Germany will act with all the means at its disposal against such traitors to business and German ideals."

Gentile German motion picture employés abroad were further warned that they run the risk of being classed with Jews. Authorities of the German film world propose to give them a brief period of grace to return to Germany.

BLOOD MONEY

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's stepbrother, keeps a private written account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a débauché. The Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important of the servants, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray finds, spread out on Cresap's desk, a new will, disinheriting Florence. As it is unsigned the old will stands. Cresap had disapproved of Florence's moneyless sweetheart, Gregory Thorpe, who had arrived the day before Cresap died, having driven east from his home in Ohio in response to an urgent wire from Florence. Thorpe can't be reached at the local hotel where he registered as George Thomas. Florence is on the verge of prostration. A strange launch, towing a skiff, approaches the boathouse on Kettle pond late at night and is trapped, with two men on board, by Bray and his men.

LIQUOR DEALINGS.

"I wanted to sneak this launch back to where she belongs," said Tontini. "Maybe so tonight, maybe so tomorrow night. But tonight about dark I seen the papers. A fellow I know came off from Block island wit' the papers. That's the first I knew about this killing here. So I thinks it's better I don't lose no time sneaking her home and leaving her and slipping away again. Tony Tontini, he don't want to be mixed up in no moider racket."

"Strikes me you're out of luck then."

Tontini shrugged resignedly.

"Don't get me wrong," amended Bray. "This is no enforcement agent's deadfall you birds have walked into. It's not even a pinch—yet. And if you keep on behaving yourselves and come clean, it may turn out not to be a pinch at all."

Relief showed on the faces of both scared prisoners.

"That's what we was scared of," confessed Tontini. "Now I feel better chief. I tell you the truth, wotever you want to know. Me, I got nothing to hide. You wouldn't toin me in, honest now, would you?"

"Cut that out! Leave those prohibition dicks do their own snooping and let 'em skin their own cats." Bray snorted disgustedly. "You boys shoot straight with me and I'll shoot straight with you."

"A guy couldn't ask for it no squarer than that, chief," said Tontini. "This guy here"—he indicated his aide—"his name is Lew Driscoll. He works for me—kind of a deckhand."

"Hello Lew, me lad," said Bray to the roustabout. "Say, I tell you what: It's getting kind of chilly and biting here on the water. Suppose we all four go upstairs and rest our hands and feet while we're threshing things out."

—He herding the docile pair ahead of him.

He had a key for the back door. He pressed a push button set in the lintel and we climbed the stairs, he herding the docile pair ahead of him. At the end of the short corridor above they slowed as though reluctant to enter the room, and Tontini crossed himself. But inside was no daunting spectacle, no gruesome reminders of what had happened there. The blooded rug had been removed and clean sheets covered the couch and the arm chair by the flat desk. The desk top had been tidied up, too.

The captain placed seats for his guests where a good strong light would fall upon them. As Tontini opened his raincoat I saw that he wore a gaudy silk sweater. A large diamond stud was screwed into the breast of the sweater. He had on patent leathers with giddy cloth tops and pearl buttons, and a jaunty pearl gray hat.

Bray perched on the edge of the desk, one leg swinging. He made me think of a wise gray cormorant on a cliff.

"You were in here this last Monday night?" he began, addressing Tontini.

"Yes, chief."

"How long were you here?"

"Anybody with you?"

"Yes. Lew here—he was wit' me the whole time."

"Anybody with Cresap?"

"Yes, Wong Gee, the old Chink. He was here, too. But nobody else, only the four of us."

"How did you come to be here Monday night of all nights?"

"Cresap he sent me woid. I was outside here wit' my tug waiting for a load off'n a ship wot I do business wit' sometimes. And a guy he tipped me off by signaling that Cresap wanted to see me."

"What guy?"

"I kind of hate to say."

"Say it and save yourself trouble. Maybe I know anyhow."

"Well, it was one of the coast guard boys. We had a kind of 'rahgement. If Cresap wanted to see me he'd pass the woid to—somebody else."

"Party named Verity, eh?"

"Since you already know, I'll say yes. Verity would pass it along to this coast guard pal of mine and he'd pass it along to me, if he could."

"And usually he could, eh?"

"Sometimes there'd be a delay. But this time there wasn't no delay and no hitch. So me and him here we dropped in."

"Go on. What came off after you dropped in?"

"Well, me and Mr. Cresap we had one whale of a row—him jawing at me and coising at me and me jawing back at him."

Bray looked across at me and gave a wry wink and proceeded to moralize:

"What a tumultuous day it must have been for that deceased relation of yours—the last day he spends on this here earth. If 'twas me, now, and I'd gone through all he went through betwixt ten o'clock of the morn and ten o'clock of the evening all in the one day—rows with this one and with that one and the next one—I'm not sure but I'd welcome death, even though 'twas death by assassination, as a blessed release.

He relit his stub of a cigar, which had gone out, and for a briefened space stoked it hard.

"Excuse me, gents," said Bray when pungent smoke encircled his head like a blue gray veil, "I had to get that off my chest. Let's see, whereabouts were you?—O, yes! About how long is it, Brother Tontini, that you've been having dealings with the late Mr. Uncas Cresap?"

"Since oily last spring. Call it six months and you ain't far wrong. I runs on this place sort of accidental and I guess I sees wot a swell dump it'd make for landing small consignments quick and easy. So I asts questions, getting a line on wot kind of a guy this Cresap is. And wot I hears sounds good to me. So I picks a time when he's feeling O. K. and I propositions him. And he falls for the spell I hands him. The deal we makes is that on the split——"

"Never mind the bookkeeping details. I could do a little guessing myself. So you line up, you two, and the thing clicks, eh?"

"Youse never seen nothing click sweeter, chief. This here friend of ours that I spoke of he gives me the office whenever it'll be safe for me and my boys to ferry a jag of goods, skiff load at a time and them nights I've got one of my trucks waiting here—a truck fixed up to look like one of these here vegetable vans—and we makes the shift and it's all jake. A truck traveling out of a swell private dump lik this ain't liable to set nobody to thinking, even if they see it coming out. They'll just say that these parties wot live here must be sending some garden stuff in for the early market and let it go at that. Anyhow, I got a lookout to pipe us off when the lane is clear and no people passing. . . . Well, it goes along like that wit'out never no trouble, and always Cresap gets wot's coming to him out of the money end of it, not to speak of all the bottle goods he wants for his own use. I'm on the up and up with him every minute.

"Well, here only last Sunday it is, I gets woid down in Joisey, where I live at when I'm home, that he wants to see me about something impoitant. Well, I'm heading this way anyhow for a fresh cargo, so I shoves along and next night we're just outside here; and we hooks onto the bottom and gets the signal like I told youse, so me and Lew Driscoll here comes on in same as we done tonight. Ain't that so, Lew?"

"That's so," vouchsafed Lew. It was the first time he had opened his mouth. It was almost the last time he opened it.

Child Should Be Told Truth About Stories

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I have received an interesting letter from a mother and teacher which clarifies for many of us this matter of story telling. Many of us hesitate over the folk legend, fairy story, or animal story, but the distinction this mother makes seems to me to be a good guide for all of us.

Here is the letter:

"I wonder why so many people believe a child cannot enjoy fairy stories unless he believes them to be true. This is the way I preface such a story:

"'You know, there are three kinds of stories—true stories, about something that really happened, made-up stories, like those about giants and fairies [we like those, but we know they couldn't possibly happen], and stories about things that might have happened, but we don't know whether they did or not. The story I am telling you is one of the last kind' [or the first, as the case may be].

"I do not believe one of those children enjoyed my story any less, or found it any less beautiful because it was not told them as an absolute fact. My own children always enjoyed fairy tales, but they knew they were imaginary, and for that reason there was never the fear of goblins, and so forth, that some of their little friends had, nor was there the sadness of disillusionment experienced by so many when they learn that the good fairies are not real.

"As for the stork, I do not think a child should be told that story until after he knows the truth about babies. Then it can be told him as a funny legend that has grown to be symbolic of birth.

"I admit Santa Claus is much more of a problem, and in the case of an only child or an oldest child his meaning should be explained before the youngster is in second grade, or disillusion will be swift and sure—and not always easy. Where there are several children in a family it works out easily and naturally.

"Maybe I am wrong, but I have grown to believe that one of the main causes of misunderstanding between parents and older children is the fact that when the children were little the parents told them as facts things they later learned were not so. This undermines their faith in and respect for their parents' opinions and there is a constant [though, perhaps, unconscious] doubt of their truthfulness. On the other hand, if a child knows things have always been explained and reasons given truthfully, he will be much more likely to heed suggestions and advice later on.

"Little children are capable of understanding so much more than we sometimes believe. There should be no reason why they should not enjoy fiction, knowing it to be fiction, just as much, or more than if they believe it to be true."

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

CLASS DAY.

"Now, boys, there's not much to this except that I am going to require a speedy answer. Thirty seconds is the limit."

"My nephew," he continued, "Worth Carnahan, whose father was my first cousin, was visiting me over last week-end and looking for excitement. It so happened I was working on the Berg kidnaping case, so I took him along when the ransom was supposed to be paid. Of course, we had laid a trap for the gangsters.

"Berg was to be set free upon his father, or his agent, placing $50,000 in a watering can at a certain spot in the Mount Olivet cemetery at 2 a. m. on Saturday morning.

"The gang had definitely stated, over the telephone, the call of which could not be traced, that if there was any police interference Berg's dead body would be found on the doorstep of his home.

"In spite of the threats of the gang Inspector Kelley, myself, Worth, and several police officers were hiding near the appointed place at 2 o'clock. Kelley and I were, naturally, armed, and carried flashlights. I cautioned my nephew to keep absolutely quiet. He was thrilled at 'being in' on a real kidnaping and promised to follow my instructions implicitly. Well, he did his best, but when he saw two dark forms appear near our hide-out he just couldn't repress an exclamation and . . ."

Crane-Trowbridge Nuptials Today.

If all of the Chicago and Lake Forest friends of Cornelius M. Trowbridge Jr. could travel east today by plane and motor for his marriage to that attractive young lady from Boston, Miss Catherine Crane, the drawing room of Miss Priscilla Crane's house in Cheshire, Conn., where the ceremony is to be performed, would be filled with out of town guests.

Only the members of the Trowbridge family and a very few intimate friends summering in the east are to witness the service, which will be read by the Rev. Theodore Hume at 4 o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Hume is a Chicagoan by adoption, since he came out here to take the position of assistant pastor of the New England Congregational church after his graduation from Yale with young Mr. Trowbridge. Joshua Crane will give his daughter in marriage.

The Calvin Trowbridges have motored east for the wedding and Mr. Trowbridge will serve his younger brother as best man. Attending Miss Crane will be Miss Jane Trowbridge, a sister of the bridegroom.

A small reception is to follow the ceremony and then Mr. Trowbridge and his bride will leave on a motor trip. They are to make their home in Chicago.

Mrs. Sterling Morton and her daughter, Miss Suzette Morton, have issued invitations for a dinner party next Thursday evening at their Lake Forest home for Miss Lucy Harrison, who is to be a debutante of this season. After dinner Mrs. Morton and Miss Morton will take their guests to the Onwentsia for dancing.

Gives Luncheon for Debutante.

Thirty-six of the young girls who will be debutantes this season were guests yesterday at a luncheon Mrs. Frank D. Fulton gave for her daughter, Helen, who is to make her formal bow to society during the Christmas holidays. The luncheon was given at the Fultons' residence on Hill road in Winnetka.

Miss Fulton will be leaving on the 24th of this month to resume her studies at Leland Stanford university in California, where she will continue her activities as a tennis champion also.

Some of those who enjoyed the luncheon party yesterday were some of Miss Fulton's classmates of the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka, including Barbara Hobart, Harriet Fentress, Jean Lamson, Dorothy Ott, Eleanor Janney, Jean O'Brien, Barbara Bastien, Patty Calkins and Marie Louise Gardner. Also Betty Alexander, Virginia Ashcraft, Mary de Tarnowsky, Mary Kay Downs, Lucy Harrison, Jean Wilhelm, Margaret Hixon, Pauline Selpp, Barbara Lawrence, Marion Newcomet, Roslyn Paine, Virginia Thatcher, Barbara Shaffer and Jeannette Schreiner among others.

Miss Charlotte Hubbart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hubbart of Evanston, is giving a tea tomorrow afternoon in the Hubbarts' new apartment on Grove street for her house guest, Miss Mathilda McKeller of Louisville, Ky., who arrived Thursday for a week's visit. Miss Hubbart is not making a formal debut this season, but she will be included in many of the debutante activities, for she is to be at home and will not return to school.

Overalls Dance at Desbarats

There's Hardly a debutante who wouldn't prefer overalls to velvets and chiffons and a couple of fiddles and a cornet to a sixteen piece orchestra for at least one of her coming-out parties, yet how many have the opportunity?

This rare experience, however, is to be the week-end highlight of that attractive young woman Miss Patsy Keith, who is to be given a ball this evening at the log cabin hotel in Desbarats by her friend, Miss Jane Morton. Hillbillies are coming to furnish the music. The guests are going to appear in overalls [the blue denim variety] and square dances are to be the program of entertainment.

Dr. Theodore Proxmire is arriving at Desbarats this morning to assist Mrs. Proxmire in giving one of the largest "around the fire" dinners before the dance. Among the guests will be the Uri B. Grannises, who went up to Desbarats this week-end with their sons and Miss Lydia Swift, the James B. Forgans, and Miss Narcissa Thorne, who is the house guest of Miss Adele Proxmire.

On Labor day all of the Desbarats colony will turn out for the annual sail boat race.

A camp in the Wisconsin woods is the choice of Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Hulburd for the perfect holiday vacation. They left last Wednesday and they won't get back before next Wednesday or Thursday. With them as their guests are Mrs. Hulburd's sister and brother-in-law, the Taylor Strawns, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. DeLong.

More News of Holiday Travel

Mr. and Mrs. Hallett Thorne and their little daughter, Betty, have gone up to Les Cheneaux islands for this long week-end. Mr. Thorne's sister, Mrs. Dewey L. Pierce, and Mr. Pierce and their young son, of Riverside, Conn., went up to Les Cheneaux when they left Chicago after a recent visit to the Fair and they still are there, so the Thornes will join them.

The David Pecks are among those who have deserted Lake Forest in favor of Desbarats for this week-end. The Boyd Hills of the same north shore town have gone to Traverse City, Mich., for the holiday.

The Philip Mahers and Mrs. Helen Walker Szukalska have postponed their trip to Desbarats again and now they are planning to leave next Wednesday. The Mahers are to be members of the large house party the Kellogg Fairbanks will entertain at Butternuts, their large and hospitable home at Lake Geneva, this week-end. Mrs. Szukalska and her little daughter have just moved into town to an apartment on Lincoln Park West after a summer spent in Geneva.

Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry of Winter Park, Fla., who has been summering in the Adirondacks, is arriving this morning for a visit with relatives and friends. She is spending this week-end in Geneva as the guest of John J. Finlay, who also will have as guests the Prather Knapps, and then she will be with Mrs. William E. Casselberry in Lake Forest. The younger Mrs. Casselberry is the former Mary Elizabeth Leonard of Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Graham are entertaining the Van Gorder Kirks at their little colonial cottage near New Buffalo, Mich., this week-end. They motored over Friday and will return on Tuesday. The Graham cottage is on the property of Mr. Graham's parents' summer home.

Diver Proves Athlete Can Be Feminine

Jane Fauntz Tells How to Develop Form in Diving

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Miss Jane Fauntz, whose fancy diving has won her national recognition and championships, is but another of our young moderns bent on destroying the myth about athletics and feminine charm not being synonymous.

Miss Jane is an all round athlete, plays a good game of tennis and golf, goes in for all kind of school sports at the University of Illinois, where she is a student—and is at the same time as feminine a girl can be. Tall, slight, with one of those figures you wish were yours to take with you on your dress outfitting days, with curly nut brown hair, she executes the most difficult dives, creating a picture of line and motion in midair comparable to few other known exhibitions of grace.

We saw her performance the other night over at the Fair and asked her for a few "diving" tips for the uninitiated.

Jane says the mistake common to the beginner is raising the head instead of lowering it preparatory to the plunge. Another common mistake is attempting to straighten out the body before it is entirely submerged in the water. The entire body should be under cover before you begin to straighten out.

Miss Fauntz tells that at the Olympic games she went down a depth of 17 feet.

"Keep knees straight, the whole body stretched rigid, and head down for your dive," is her advice. There's a difference, she cautions, between stiffness and rigidity. Stiffness makes for awkwardness; rigidity—complete control.

"The whole idea in diving," she continues, "is timing and coördination and taking it easy. Posture must be correct on the diving board. Stand flat on feet not on the balls of the feet; hands down at sides—not on nips, shoulders squarely forward. Then jump on the board, getting spring up in the air so that the whole body arises as one part, so to speak. Stretch hard—toes, everything! Stretch so that stomach is in, back flat, posture good."

Miss Fauntz took a lot of dancing before she went in for diving and believes that dancing helps the diver. She has no fear that her athletic pursuits are ever going to land her in the big muscle class. At the current moment, we testify, that there appears no danger whatsoever.

Welsh Singers Take Part in Programs Presented at Fair

Choral singers and soloists are expressing the musical gifts of the Welsh people in the ceremonies devoted to this racial group at A Century of Progress. Last night the Orpheus Male chorus of Cleveland, O., gave a concert on the floating stage in the north lagoon. Today's program will be held in the Court of States.

There will be an afternoon concert from 2 to 4 o'clock, and an evening concert from 8 to 10, each containing eleven numbers. Much of the singing will be in the ancient tongue of Wales. The Rev. J. Toifian Richards, chairman of the afternoon program, and S. J. Phillips, chairman of the evening program, will deliver addresses.

THE STAGE

New programs of stage entertainment were offered by the Chicago and Palace theaters yesterday in connection with their changes of cinema bills. George Burns and Gracie Allen, experts in "dumb" comic dialogue and radio favorites, are the leaders of the Chicago's show. Their last personal appearance here was with the Jack Pearl-Paul Whiteman radio revue.

Sophie Tucker, dowager of the cabaret singers, is the chief vaudeville attraction at the Palace theater. Joe Penner, comedian; Britt Wood, harmonica player; Ruth Miles and Eddie Kover, and the Case brothers and Marie are other numbers on the bill.

The Garrick theater will reopen next Monday night with a revue called "Ethiopia," given by a company of Negro entertainers.

After an unsuccessful attempt to bring Jane Cowl into Chicago for a fall engagement in her revival of "Camille," the management of the Blackstone theater is now negotiating for a comedy by P. G. Wodehouse, recently staged by a summer stock company in Newport, R. I. If the play comes to Chicago it will have a new cast.

BY MARY MEADE.

"How do you make an apple sauce and orange cake filling?"

"Can one revamp a tasteless kumquat marmalade and make it good?"

"How does one make 'everlasting yeast' and how do you use it?"

Well, there's a start, at least, for a busy column! Remember, if you have questions with no answer hanging around, or a longing for a food—but no recipe—write us about it.

First for an orange and apple sauce cake filling for Mrs. J. C. C. This by the way, is delectable located between the layers of a lemon flavored sponge cake:

ORANGE-APPLE CAKE FILLING.

1-3 cup sifted flour
1 cup sugar
Grated rind 1 orange
½ cup orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2-3 cup sweetened apple sauce
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 teaspoons butter

Blend the flour and sugar in a double boiler, then add the remaining ingredients, stirring in carefully to avoid lumping. Cook over boiling water for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. This will fill 2 nine inch layer cakes.

Next comes Mrs. M. S. T. with her distressingly tasteless kumquat marmalade. Yes, it is possible to "doctor it up" with a fair certainty of achieving a better result than you have. However, since it is bound to be an experiment, I suggest that you try it out with only a few glasses at a time. Ripe plums, pitted and cut fine and added half-and-half with the marmalade would be a good start. I should add also the juice of 1 lemon for 1 quart of mixture. The addition of sugar and water is hard to estimate. Try ½ cup of water and 3 cups of sugar for 1 quart of mixture, boil up and simmer slowly until thickened, or simmer 15 minutes, then bring to a full boil and stir in ¼ to ½ cup of commercial pectin, depending upon the thickness of the mixture. Remove at once from the fire and turn into clean glasses. Seal. Sorry to be so indefinite, but long distance preserve repairing is rather difficult business.

And now, about the amount of meat or fowl to serve folks. Mrs. M. M. G. makes the request. Here is a good little table—better clip it out and post it:

MEAT AND POULTRY ALLOWANCE PER PERSON.

Meat.
Roast turkey or chicken served without dressing	¾ to 1 pound
Roast turkey or chicken served with dressing	½ to ¾ pound
Roast duck	1 pound
Chicken served in pie, a la king or creamed	1-3 pound
Fricasseed chicken	¾ to 1 pound
Boned roast meat	1-3 pound
Meat with bones	1-3 to ½ pound

And, finally, for the last query there's time for this morning—"What about 'everlasting yeast'?" asks Mrs. H.

"Everlasting yeast" is just one cup of the sponge reserved when you are starting to make bread. Place this sponge in a clean, glass covered jar, sprinkle generously with sugar, and keep in a cool place. Then, when you set another sponge use a recipe which makes about 3 loaves of bread and add this reserved mixture instead of yeast. It will not be necessary to add sugar in setting the sponge because the sugar had been sprinkled on the "everlasting yeast." And with each process of breadmaking one cup of sponge is treated as described above and saved for the next baking.

GIANTS TRIUMPH TWICE; BRAVES IN THIRD PLACE

48,000 See 2 to 0 and 5 to 3 Victories.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The New York Giants twice defeated the Boston Braves today, 2 to 0, in ten innings, and 5 to 3, before 48,000, the largest major league crowd of the season in Boston. The victories gave the Giants a seven game lead and dropped the Braves into third place, a percentage point behind the Pirates.

CARL HUBBELL.

Stars of the Giants' pitching staff turned in masterful exhibitions for the double victory as Carl Hubbell blanked the Braves in the first game for the tenth shutout and his twentieth victory this season, while Fred Fitzsimmons held Boston in check except for one inning in the second game and himself drove in the winning run in the ninth with a double after the Braves tied the score with three runs in the eighth.

Hubbell Strikes Out Six.

Hubbell drove in the winning run in the opening contest when he hit a single in the tenth inning. The young southpaw yielded only four hits and struck out six batters.

Errors by Baxter Jordan and Rabbit Maranville, who had fielded brilliantly in the opener and connected with two of the four hits the Braves obtained, paved the way for Hubbell's run scoring hit. The Giants scored another run in the same inning on Joe Moore's long fly.

Six Hits Off Fitzsimmons.

The eighth inning rally was the Braves' final effort, for they went hitless in the ninth as Luque replaced Fitzsimmons, who had made his own ball game safe. The Giants' two runs came on singles by Mancusco and Ryan, Fitzsimmons' double, and a long fly by Critz.

Chicago Wins Legion Series Opener, 14-5

New Orleans, La., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The National Tea post of Chicago defeated Trenton, N. J., 14 to 5, today, in the opening game of the 1933 American Legion junior baseball championship series. The championship will be decided in a three game series. The second game will be played tomorrow.

Chicago jumped into the lead with two runs in the first inning, scored in all but three innings, and coasted to victory after a five run rally in the sixth which sent Johnny Manczak, Trenton pitcher, to the showers.

Trenton made its one big rally in the eighth after Coach Percy Moore had sent Philip Cavarretta, Chicago's starting pitcher, to center field.

CINCINNATI JINX PURSUES CUBS; REDS WIN, 7 TO 3

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 1.—The Cubs started off well enough this afternoon, but didn't finish that way. After inaugurating their day's work with a three run inning, they were pulled down to defeat before the tail end Reds by the evil hand that has directed them here throughout the season. The score was 7 to 3, making eight setbacks in ten starts here for the Chicagoans and putting another crimp in the lingering hopes of those who still believe the Cubs will catch up with the leading Giants.

Included in today's suffering, which was confined to 1 hour and 34 minutes, was Pat Malone, for whom victories are as elusive as pots of gold at the end of the rainbow. The three run start gave the big right hander a great chance to catch up on his luck. That advantage lasted only until the Reds could enjoy their first whack at the visiting speed baller. The lead melted into a tie and remained that way until a run in the sixth broke the deadlock. That one run might have been enough, but to make sure the Reds accepted three more in the seventh, mainly because of Lynn Nelson's wildness and an error by Manager Grimm.

Frey Stops Cubs.

The boisterous fashion in which the Cubs led off with three runs proved of greater harm than help. Because of this attack, it was deemed prudent to remove the veteran Larry Benton. The removal made room for Benny Frey, who lost no time showing that the Cubs are his benefactors. After cleaning up the first inning mess, he encountered four innings of annoyance, none of which hurt him in the least. Then he settled down in earnest and in the four closing innings restricted the Chicagoans to one single.

The rush of business in the first inning began when Benton walked Hack, the Cubs' temporary leadoff man. Billy Herman drove a two bagger into left, Hack halting at third. Cuyler contributed a single to right, to move Hack and Herman across the plate. Babe Herman walked, and there was no further desire to keep Benton in employment. Frey took over the job, and Stephenson beat out a bunt, filling the bases. Hartnett's long fly to Rice let Cuyler register. There was an abrupt halt to the Chicagoans' merriment when Grimm grounded into a double play.

Malone Wild at Start.

Malone lost no time showing that he wasn't going to be outdone in the matter of generosity. He walked Adams, Moore, and Hafey without throwing more than a couple of strikes. Then Pat suddenly switched around and stopped Lombardi on strikes. Bottomley slammed a fly to Stephenson, and Adams slid safely across the plate after the catch. Rice followed with a single on which Moore

WEDS POLO STAR

MRS. STEPHEN SANFORD.

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Stephen [Laddy] Sanford, internationally famous polo player and member of a distinguished family, and Mary Duncan, stage and screen star, were married this afternoon at the municipal building. The ceremony was performed by Deputy City Clerk Philip A. Hines, in the presence of Capt. and Mrs. C. T. I. Roark. Capt. Roark is a member of the Hurricanes, of which Sanford is the leader.

Sanford and his bride met three years ago in Santa Barbara, Cal., where he was playing polo and she was engaged in motion picture work. It is understood they had contemplated marriage for several months, but it was not until a few days ago that they definitely decided to be wed today.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford are occupying the estate at Kings Point, Great Neck, L. I., of Mme. Frances Alda, opera and concert singer, where they went immediately after the ceremony.

Mary Duncan, who won national fame by her portrayal of Poppy in the stage production of "The Shanghai Gesture," was born in Luttrellville, Va., daughter of William S. Duncan.

MR. KHAYYAM IS 6-5 CHOICE IN CHICAGO DERBY

Entries and results of races at Hawthorne, Coney Island, Saratoga Springs, Detroit, Fairmount Park, and Rockingham are published on the next page.

BY FRENCH LANE.

It's a little late in the season for the running of a Derby, but they're going to stage one at Hawthorne today.

It will be the revival of the Chicago Derby, first run back in 1890. A prize of $10,000 has been posted for this one and it is quite appropriate that such a race should be run this year. It will help solve the big puzzle of American racing—the identity of the 3 year old champion.

Ever since Brokers Tip got his rough riding decision in the Kentucky Derby early in May, the chase for the 3 year old title has been in a turmoil. Head Play won the Preakness. Mr. Khayyam won the Wood Memorial in New York and the American Derby in Chicago. Hurryoff captured the Belmont Stakes. War Glory was first in the Dwyer Stakes in New York.

It's About Time.

Arlington's Classic, decided over a heavy track, went to Inlander. The same colt captured the Travers Mid-Summer Derby at Saratoga, also on a muddy track.

Study of those races convinces something ought to be done about a decision. The Hawthorne association thought so and that is the reason why many of the leading contenders for the title are here today seeking the Derby purse.

Mr. Khayyam, which is running head and head with Inlander for the high money winning honors in his division, was the overnight favorite at 6 to 5.

His Record Is Convincing.

He had an outing at Hawthorne last week when he ran third behind the champion, Equipoise, and Gallant Sir in the Gold Cup race. His performance was brilliant. He made the pace most of the way and hung on gamely against his two older rivals in a desperate drive down the stretch. On that race and on his impressive victory in the American Derby, Chicagoans naturally made him the betting choice.

Sarada and Okapi, two others from the east, were commanding much backing. Okapi was at 6 to 1 and Sarada at 5 to 1. Esseff, unbeaten in her last five starts, also had considerable following. She races for Dixiana stable of Kentucky and was at 8 to 1.

The Derby is at a mile and a quarter and this running will bring down the curtain on the annual summer season of 30 days at the Hawthorne track.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—E. Phocion Howard, who was 64 years old, died of a heart attack today at Saratoga Springs, and any one who tries to depict him to you might as well grab up all the paint cans and just sling them at the page.

Mr. Howard was a human rainbow, inside and out, and the only color which had no place in his scheme was yellow. But there was a bit of purple to him. He often wore a purple plaid suit and purple tie with a pink shirt and collar and ruby studs and links. This combination, with his white spats, white hat, and gold headed stick, he used to refer to as his mourning costume. When he really dressed up he sometimes went in for effects that were almost gaudy.

He came out of Danville, Ill., as a boy to serve as page in the United States house of representatives under Uncle Joe Cannon, his personal sponsor. Since that beginning he had been a Washington political correspondent, a financial editor in New York, and a promoter of oil wells in California, Texas, and Louisiana, and of a real estate subdivision in Florida. He was always a horse and faro player and sport in the old meaning of the word.

Mr. Howard Had His Own Language.

His last enterprise was the New York Press, a weekly turf paper of which he was the spark and spirit, and which he referred to sardonically as the fireside companion and the family journal. He made it a curious mixture of news of the world and the underworld, for he had more acquaintances in the underworld than any other journalist now in practice and, moreover, he knew the aged veterans as well as many of those whom he called contemptuously the young punks.

He was the only man who ever practiced something which I might go so far as to call friendly exhortation, by flattery. Mr. Howard's policy with the New York Press was to butter his victims all over for weeks on end. Every woman mentioned in his paper was charming or sweet as a peach, and every man was a giant and standout in his line and noted for his private philanthropies. "Gives away more scratch than most people handle in a lifetime and never says a word about it," Mr. Howard used to write. Scratch was his word. It is in the language now, but he put it there.

Phocion had a very severe and strict code of morals, but he never saw anything wrong in taking a sap. Yet he wanted money only for the pleasure of giving it away or spending it, and among "our kind of folks" he was always good for at least half of what he happened to hold at the moment. Or if he didn't hold anything and a friend had to have some, Phocion would release his "trained wasp" to go out and "put the bite on somebody" who had some. These were his phrases which contributed to the most enchanting conversation I have ever listened to.

One day his friend, Hy Schneider, the tall Texas horse writer, was needing a little money and dropped in to collect $20 which Phocion owed him for a story printed in the Press.

Phocion had just come, somehow, into $250. He paid Hy Schneider his $20 and they started down in the elevator to buy a drink. There were eight or nine broke horse players in the elevator and Phocion began shoving bills into their pockets as the elevator descended. When they reached the street level, Hy had to buy the drink.

Two Young Punks Heist Phocion for His Hoop.

On the night before the Schmeling-Stribling fight in Cleveland, Phocian was thought to be holding about $20,000 in stakes. Walter McGinley of California had made some bets on the fight and the boys had handed the money over to Phocion. But he had put it away. As he sat in a bed room in the hotel drinking some beer with an old gambler from Chicago, the door opened and two boys walked in with little automatic pistols.

"Get 'em up, boys," they said, and Phocion and his friend put them up. As he did so, however, Phocion remembered a large diamond ring on his finger and turned the stone around toward his palm.

"And then," he said afterward, "as I put 'em up that rock glared right in one little punk's eye like the headlight on a locomotive. 'Get it off,' the little punk said. 'Get it off and throw it on the bed.' So I got it off and threw it on the bed. Then one punk went over with a pair of nippers and cut the phone wires and the two of them said: 'Get it out, boys. Get it out and fire it on the bed.'"

CHICAGO GIRL ROUTS BRITISH CHAMP, 6 AND 5

Miss Orcutt Loses, 6 and 4.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The American women's golf championship is safe for these United States for another year at least. Virginia Van Wie, the Chicago girl who won the title last year, attended to that little item of keeping the title in America at the Exmoor Country club yesterday by crushing the tawny haired Enid Wilson, three times champion of Great Britain, 6 and 5, in their semi-final match.

MAUREEN ORCUTT.

Today Miss Van Wie will attempt to make the trophy as safe for Chicago as she did for the republic yesterday when she plays her friend, Helen Hicks of Inwood, N. Y., in the 36 hole final match. Miss Hicks, champion in 1931, advanced to her second title argument within three years by eliminating Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., 6 and 4.

Results Never in Doubt.

Playing almost faultless golf against the two women who had submitted the best performances of the week prior to yesterday, neither Miss Van Wie nor Miss Hicks left the ultimate outcome of the two semi-final battles in doubt from the start.

The fact that Miss Wilson had won the qualifying medal on Monday with a record round of 76 and had augmented that with a brand of the most amazing golf ever produced with a woman's clubs did not hinder Miss Van Wie from literally running away with the match. Even without the surprising collapse of the English champion's play, in sharp contrast to her scintillant work in the early days of the tournament, it is doubtful if she ever could have caught the Chicago girl yesterday.

Miss Hicks was playing the girl who had eliminated her in the first round of the 1929 national tournament at Detroit, and who had tied the record of 76 in winning her third round match against Mrs. Opal S. Hill, but that didn't prevent her from going around in even fours for the 14 holes played, three under par.

Virginia One Over Fours.

Miss Van Wie did some of that kind of shooting herself, finishing the 13 holes of her match in one over fours, and two under par for that distance. Both victors traveled the first nine in 37, one over men's par.

Miss Van Wie and Miss Hicks will tee off on their first 18 holes at 10 o'clock this morning and will get away on the final 18 holes at 2 p. m.

The most surprising feature of the two semi-finals yesterday was the complete reversal of form by Miss Wilson. The suspicion which arose on Thursday that her short game was beginning to crack was more than borne out yesterday, the most tragic evidence of it coming at the 5th green, where she took a seven after having trapped her second shot at the right of the putting carpet.

Despite her reputation as one of the longest drivers in women's golf, her shots were generally short of Miss Van Wie's in every instance. It was in pitching and putting, however, that the English girl's game was awry, nearly every attempt from off the green being timid. Miss Wilson won only one hole during the match, the 10th, where the American champion

THE THIRD HOLE—WHERE THE BIRDIES SING IN NATIONAL WOMEN'S GOLF

Both Virginia Van Wie (center) and Enid Wilson of England (right) made birdie fours on the third hole of their semi-final match yesterday in the national women's golf tournament at Exmoor. The English girl is sending her approach putt up to the cup, where it is an easy matter to drop her next shot for one under par. Miss Van Wie had chipped her third 12 feet past the pin, but she ran down her putt to halve the hole. From the start it was all Van Wie, the Chicago girl permitting her opponent to win only one hole before ending the match with a 6 and 5 victory at the thirteenth. Today Miss Van Wie will play Helen Hicks in the 36 hole final match, which will be a duel between the 1931 and 1932 national champions. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SASSAFRAS WINS SARATOGA STAKE BY LENGTH, HALF

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—C. V. Whitney's Sassafras, a gelded son of Chicle, was an easy winner today in the second division of the Consolation Claiming stakes at six furlongs. The test was run over the first fast track in more than two weeks. The Whitney youngster went to the post at 7 to 5 choice and scored by a length and a half over Sonrisa. R. Pinchot and Sir Kai completed the field.

Favorites Come Through.

Form prevailed during the afternoon, Sassafras being the third successive choice to win. He carried 104 pounds and was well handled by the apprentice jockey, J. Stout. Sonrisa had Jockey Johnny Westrope up. The sensational western youngster scored his two hundredth victory of the year when he was first with Mrs. Mirian Cassidy's Willie Klein in the curtain raiser.

In the featured event Westrope sent Sonrisa right to the front. Sir Kai was second for the first furlong, with Sassafras third. At the far turn Stout shook up the Whitney colorbearer and moved to contention. R. Pinchot, receding second choice at 2 to 1, also made a move at this stage.

Westrope Tries Hard.

Rounding into the stretch R. Pinchot's brief challenge died and Sassafras had Sonrisa headed. Westrope gave the filly a great ride through the stretch, but Sassafras was the better. The value to the winner was $1,350 and the time for the six furlongs was 1:12 4-5.

Vandals Play Final Rugby Game Today

The Cambridge university Vandals will play the third and final game in their series of rugby football matches today at Stagg field at 3 o'clock, meeting a team from the Illinois Rugby union. The Illinois team is composed of the best players in this district and will include several who did not play against the Vandals in the opening match at Oak Park.

The Illinois rugby fifteen has practiced for several weeks and is expected to give the British team the strongest opposition it has encountered. Among the new men to face the Vandals will be Walter Bolgner, a former star player in the Berlin police department. He will appear among the three quarter backs with J. O. Smith, Harold Watt, and Lou E. Dolan, a combination that has speed and passing ability. Chauncey McKeever will play at full back while the half back positions will be filled by Mathias and Riordan. The Vandals expect to play their regular team, but one or two of the men are nursing bruised legs incurred on the first two games here.

A full sized rugby field has been marked out at Stagg field. The goal posts are 100 yards apart and the side lines 75 yards apart. This will help the backs on both sides in making end runs.

Boy Scouts and girl guides in uniform will be admitted free today.

Hunting Laws of State Available in Chart Form

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois hunting and trapping laws for 1933 have been published in a new form by the department of conservation and copies may now be obtained by Illinois sportsmen. This fall the information on game seasons [exclusive of water fowl], daily bag limit, and possession limit is given on a special card about 10 by 4 inches instead of being included in the complete game code. Any hunter who wants one of these cards may have one by writing the department of conservation at Springfield. Chicagoans may obtain copies from the loop office of the conservation department in the Foreman Bank building, La Salle and Washington street.

This large card shows that the 1933 dove season opened yesterday and continues through the month. The common dove is a migratory bird and now gets a season like other migrating game birds, such as the ducks and geese.

Not many middle western hunters consider the dove a sporty game bird and comparatively few are shot in the north, where ringnecked pheasants will draw 500 hunters afield to one for dove shooting. However, in the south the sportsmen consider quail and doves their two big bets in upland game. Dove hunts are an established feature of the winter hunting program from Tennessee southward to Florida.

On this new chart of hunting periods, the pheasant season is Nov. 10 to 15, inclusive, the same as last year. The new regulation on prairie chickens, no open season for 1933, also is given. The chart shows that quail may be hunted from Nov. 10 to Dec. 10, with a daily bag limit of 12.

The jacksnipe season will open on Oct. 1, according to the Illinois state law. The jacksnipe comes under the jurisdiction of the migratory bird treaty act. Final word on the season for this tricky game bird must be given by the department of agriculture.

Squirrel shooting now is open in both the northern and southern zones of the state. In the northern zone it became legal to hunt squirrels yesterday. The limit is 10 per day.

PARAFOUR, never far back, responded to light pressure after reaching the final five-sixteenths and, wearing down THERON when drawing out. SMUGGLED IN hustled along from the start, saved ground on the turn and weakened in closing eighth.

BROMBO, under strong restraint until reaching stretch turn, pulled away fast after straightening up for final quarter and weakened, but retained command without need of punishment. SALUT D'AMOUR lost ground and held on resolutely. ESCOBILLA, a factor throughout, faltered in final eighth.

BACKLOG, forced far out of it when sharply cut off soon after the start, failed to make up ground when under strong urging on the turn, but gained fast after straightening up in the stretch and headed PORTONDINE in the closing strides. The latter had speed from the start, saved ground after first quarter, and held on gamely. BATTLING KNIGHT began fast, rallied mildly after dropping back on the stretch turn, and tired in the late stages.

DON MANUEL, in close quarters soon after the start, was taken to outside with difficulty after reaching the turn, moved up fast when settled in his stride, and shook off WACOCHE just in time. Latter, taken over sharply soon after the start, was poorly rated and weakened after reaching the final eighth. POSTSCRIPT taken back on the turn, lost ground entering stretch, and came with a rush when urged in final eighth.

BATTLING GIRL, a fast rated closing under-sung contender for three-quarters, raced wide when working her way into command, bore over entering final eighth, and came away slowly near the end. PING COATES bore over soon after the start, was cut off when losing the back position, saved ground on stretch turn, where he moved up and weakened in the final sixteenth. HARAMZADA, fractious at the post shortly after the start, lost ground in the final seven-eighths and closed fastest of all.

KING PIN, steadied in the early proceedings and saving ground throughout, failed to withstand ROYAL GUINEA'S challenge but, holding on well, gained the lead when ROYAL GUINEA weakened and outstayed MR. SWIFT. Latter, repeatedly shaken up after reaching final half mile and brought out when entering stretch, could not get by ROYAL GUINEA, under restraint for seven-eighths, weakened after setting to the front.

Mitchell. Went to post at 5:20. At post 2 minutes. HOPULIKIT, much the best and well ridden, saved ground while following the pace, disposed of SID LEA gradually, and came away without need of strong urging. SID LEA had the most speed, bore out on far turn, stood pressure gamely for a quarter, and weakened in the final eighth. FAIR BOY slow to begin, raced wide and headed YAMOTE in final stride. Latter had no mishap.

Platers Have Their Day and Run to Form

The cheapest horses that ever raced on a major track in Chicago were on the program at Hawthorne yesterday fighting for a meal ticket and shipping money.

They ran to form better than many of their more stylish brothers and sisters.

Four odds on choices in the betting rolled home to victory, most of them by wide margins. They were Drombo in the second race, Backlog in the third, Don Manuel in the fourth, and Good and Hot in the seventh. Para Four was another favorite to triumph but he was better than 2 to 1 in the betting.

The shortest priced daily double of the Chicago season developed when Drombo, paying $3.14 in the mutuels, won the second race and Backlog, at $3.28, won the third. The double tickets were worth $5.70.

Entries for the opening program at Lincoln Fields Monday will be accepted both at Lincoln Fields and at Hawthorne this morning. The $2,500 added Joliet handicap, which will feature the opening program, promises to attract one of the best field of 2 year olds racing in the west this year.

Good and Hot, the 1 to 2 favorite, which won the seventh race yesterday, had won but two races in the last two years. He had made 40 starts during that time. He is trained by R. F. Carmen Sr., who several years back was one of the leading trainers of the country.

B. S. Mitchell, trainer of the American champion, Reigh Count, a few seasons back, saddled the first winner for his new employer. Attorney Albert Sabath, in the last race. Hopulikit, which had won one race in 44 starts in two years, came from behind and got the decision by a handy margin from Sid Lea and Fair Boy. Hopulikit was the even money favorite and was ridden by Jockey L. Ruder.

FOXX LEADS A'S TO 12-3 VICTORY OVER SENATORS

Bats In Four Runs; Hits 37th Homer.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx, slugging first baseman, led the Athletics' homecoming party with a perfect day at bat for a 12 to 3 victory over the league leading Washington Senators in the opening contest today of a three game series.

His 37th homer, a triple, and a single batted in four runs, and he scored three runs himself. Meanwhile, Merritt [Sugar] Cain set the Senators down with only 10 hits, holding them scoreless until the eighth inning.

PIRATES WHIP CARDS, 2-1

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Pittsburgh won its seventh straight victory today in its belated drive for the National league pennant, defeating St. Louis, 2 to 1, in eleven innings, and going into second place.

Pie Traynor's line single with Paul Waner on second base and one out, ended a pitching duel between the star southpaws Wild Bill Hallahan and Larry French. Waner had walked and moved up on a passed ball by O'Farrell.

Traynor scored the other run for the Pirates in the seventh with a triple, which was followed by Suhr's single. Score:

SIREN LEADING IN YACHT RACE TO BLACK LAKE

Siren, owned by the Karas brothers, took an early lead in the annual 100 mile race to Black Lake, Mich., sponsored by the Chicago Yacht club, which started last night.

Two other entrants in the racing division are Ken Brown's Fortune and the Robinson brothers' Hope, which is the favorite to win.

The others, all cruisers, are William Steele's Privateer; W. Butler's 54 foot schooner, Ben Bow; Comet, owned by Dr. W. Redlich, and V. Lewis' Fairmaid. The Privateer jumped into the lead at the start, with the others well bunched a short distance astern.

After the finish of the Black Lake race today the first of a series of three races in the pup class for the Gerryman trophy will get under way. The race is over a six mile triangular course off Belmont harbor, and is the only series race in the pups class.

The Cubs might have broken the deadlock in the second inning if their bunting game hadn't flopped. Jurges opened with a single. Malone tried to sacrifice him to second, but bunted into a double play. Then Hack singled to center, but Billy Herman rolled out. The third also started well. Cuyler opened with a single to left and luckless Babe Herman did nobly. But a wicked drive by the Babe came to naught when Rice accomplished a diving catch. A fly ball put Stephenson aside. Hartnett then sent Cuyler to third on a single to center. Nothing happened because Grimm rolled into a forceout at second.

Frey Wiggles out of Trouble.

In the fifth, Frey revealed more of his ability to wriggle free when it appeared as if the Cubs were going to pin him down. Billy Herman led off with a two base drive into the left field corner. Infielder Billy never got beyond second base. Cuyler was thrown out by the pitcher. Babe Herman was retired on a tall fly to Rice. Stephenson was the only remaining hope. He slapped a grounder that Bottomley picked up without trouble. The Cubs let out only one feeble peep after this. Hartnett opened the ninth with a single. Bottomley made a one handed leap for Grimm's liner and tagged Hartnett for a double play.

Malone gave up a scratch hit through Jurges in the second which was the only outburst by the Reds until they finished his day's work by scoring once in the sixth. One was out of the way in this unhappy inning when Lombardi doubled off the left center field scoreboard, 400 feet from the plate. He took third while Billy Herman was tossing out Bottomley, Rice coaxed Pat for a pass. Morrissey then looped a single over short and Lombardi scored. Bluege ended the incident by lofting to Stephenson.

Pass Gets Nelson in Trouble.

Nelson's debut in the seventh was marked by a pass to the pitcher, always a luckless procedure. Adams put Frey on second by sacrificing. Nelson threw out Moore. Hafey was intentionally passed, but it developed into a poor bit of strategy. Lombardi spoiled it by delivering the only hit of the inning—a single to right. It scored Frey. Bottomley walked, loading the bases. Rice then rolled to Grimm, but the manager let the ball slip through his hands, Hafey and Lombardi scoring and Bottomley going to third.

Beginning with the arrival tomorrow morning of the team from Salt Lake City, the visitors will be shown every point of interest in the city. The tournament, which will attract three out of state squads and five from the Chicago area, will open Tuesday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock at Comiskey park.

Vergez's Condition Good After Emergency Operation

Boston, Mass., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Johnny Vergez, New York Giants' third baseman who was operated on last night at St. Elizabeth's hospital for appendicitis, was reported in "good condition" this afternoon. Vergez was taken from the Braves' field yesterday following the opening game of the series here and rushed to the hospital where an emergency operation was performed.

NEW CARDINALS LIMBER UP

New Stars and Coach Brighten Cardinal's Hopes

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Cardinals professional football team is loaded for bear. To be more particular, the Cardinals are loaded for the Bears and all the other members of the National league which starts its schedule the latter part of this month.

More than 40 players from all parts of the country except the eastern seaboard began their two a day drills yesterday morning at Mills stadium under the direction of their new coach, Paul Schissler, who nine years ago migrated to Oregon State and stayed until the end of the 1932 season. And not since 1925, when the Cards came within one game of winning the championship, has the one time south side eleven been as well fortified at all positions.

Many Are Collegians.

Many of the players are just out of college and while they lack professional experience their physical condition and youthful verve should offset their lack of seasoning.

Headliners among the newcomers are Gil Berry and Pete Yanuskus of Illinois; Jim Bausch, Olympic decathlon champion and one time Kansas university star full back; Tom Yarr, 1931 Notre Dame center; Herb Tipton, Southern California half back; Dave Nisbet, University of Washington end, and Harold Moe, Oregon State half back. While this list doesn't include all of last year's crop of college players who hope to be retained when the squad is cut to 22 under the league rules, they are better known.

Bennett Joins Squad.

Now with a fresh crop of backs, including Berry and Yanuskus, the two best on the Illinois team last year, and Moe, who was outstanding in the Pacific Coast league, the Cardinals should have an offense as well as a defense.

Chuck Bennett, who won THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE trophy for the most valuable player in the Big Ten in his senior year at Indiana university, also is a candidate for a half back position. Bennett played with Portsmouth in 1931 and last year, in addition to coaching a high school team, played with a Cincinnati eleven.

Lamb Seeks Berth.

Roy Lamb, who played in the pro league several years ago, has been an assistant coach under Schissler at Oregon State. Murel Nemecek, a candidate for full back, was an assistant coach at Center college, Danville, Ky., last fall.

Another player of many years' service who is trying to come back is Herb Blumer, one time football captain of the University of Missouri. Blumer played regularly with the Cardinals at guard and end since 1925, but last year he was in Europe studying. Walt Kiesling, veteran guard, is still ready to step into a guard job.

The Cardinals have three practice games. Another may be included in the preparations for the opening league game against Pittsburgh on the night of Sept. 27. The practice games are:

Sept. 10—At Aurora, Ill.
Sept. 17—At Freeport, Ill.
Sept. 20—At Indianapolis, Ind.

The Cardinals' league schedule includes the usual two game series with the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field. In all the Cards will play five times on the north side. The schedule:

Sept. 27—At Pittsburgh.
Oct. 1—At Portsmouth, O.
Oct. 8—At Cincinnati, O.
Oct. 15—Bears at Wrigley field.
Oct. 22—At Boston.
Oct. 29—At Brooklyn.
Nov. 5—Green Bay here.
Nov. 12—Cincinnati here.
Nov. 19—Brooklyn here.
Nov. 26—Open.
Nov. 30—Bears at Wrigley field.
Dec. 3—Boston here.

Wood Defends Harmsworth Trophy Today

Algonac, Mich., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Final preparations were made today for the first of the races tomorrow afternoon for the Harmsworth trophy. Gar Wood, veteran sportsman, who has successfully defended the cup against all comers, while not willing to make a prediction, announced that his giant boat, Miss America X., was ready.

Nearby, Hubert Scott-Paine supervised the workmen who placed a triple coating of graphite on the hull of Miss Britain III., the English built hydroplane with which he hopes to win the coveted trophy. Scott-Paine, like Wood, refused to issue a statement, contenting himself with the remark that he hoped to finish each race.

First Race at 3 P. M.

The first race of the series is scheduled to start just north of this village, Gar Wood's home town and where all his boats have been built, at 3 p. m. tomorrow, Chicago daylight saving time. The course finishes north of Marine City.

Each race will be 35 nautical miles, five laps of a seven mile course. The second will be run Monday. The winner is decided on a basis of two out of three races. The third race, if necessary, will be run Tuesday.

Last inspections of the course also were made today. Patrol crews and traffic squads, who will be called on to handle thousands of people who will line both sides of the international course, received their final instructions. Along the right of way many grand stands have sprung up and owners of buildings have arranged for vantage spots, all for a price. It is estimated that a million people might see the race, but many thousands less will be in attendance.

Wood Never Has Quit.

Wood's record of never having been forced out of a Harmsworth race may stand him in good stead. This cannot be said of his rivals, all of whom except Kaye Don in 1931, who won a heat, have been followed by misfortune that clogged gas lines, fouled spark plugs or caused other motor trouble.

REIS WINS GOLD CUP

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—El Lagarto, from Lake George, N. Y., piloted by George Reis, had no difficulty winning the gold cup here today. El Lagarto won the first two heats and finished second in the third.

Reis sent his boat over the 30 mile course at a speed better than 60 miles an hour in the first two races and was not threatened. The gold cup is second in importance only to the Harmsworth trophy, possession of which will be decided in the races starting tomorrow. After piling up a point lead and needing only a third place in the final heat, Reis took no chances and came in second.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR Wake: A Helper recently referred to the opening of McVicker's theater in 1857. The exact date was Nov. 5, 1857. I have a good picture of the theater as it looked at that time. The building next door to the east, which also appears in the picture, was Frank Monroe's Green Room. Monroe was a leading man in the McVicker stock company. My grandfather, Frank Harrington, was stage manager.

I have the book of the play which was used to prompt actors on the opening night. The play was "The Honeymoon," by John Tobin. In this same play Junius Brutus Booth made his first appearance in the character of Compello at Deptford, England, Dec. 13, 1813.

Theater folk of the time considered it good luck to open with "The Honeymoon." Apparently it was, because the theater is still doing business under the old name in the same location. H. P. Junkins.

In June, 1860, the first street car ran on Sedgwick street. There was still only one car in 1862. The driver's name was Tim Sullivan, and the conductor, I think, Mr. Peterson. One day a resident of the neighborhood stopped the car and asked the driver if he would ask the company to let the car come out one night for a June wedding, as most of the invited guests hadn't horses and buggies and no way to get home. Both driver and conductor spoke up at once and said they would bring out the car anyway without asking the company, and they did. D. S. H.

About 50 years ago seven Chicago railway postal clerks helped Uncle Sam to one of the biggest helpings of gold bullion he'd ever had. The express company wanted too much money for transporting the bullion across the continent. So these seven clerks were put in charge of a chartered special train, loaded $20,000,000 worth of bullion at Frisco, came through Chicago and on to Washington. The event has lived in railway history as "The Passage of the Postal Gold Train." J. L. Graff.

Do You Remember Way Back When:

Publisher Howard Dies at Saratoga

it out and threw it on the bed, a hundred dollars or so, but not the big stakes which the boys were expecting.

"On the level, boys," Mr. Howard said, "that's all there is. And ordinarily you boys could touch me for more than you are taking off me right now. I don't mind, except that it seems to me you and me are in the same business, only we use different tools. And I would like to get that hoop back. It speaks for a grand in any hock shop and it's worth more to me than it is to you, so if you don't mind, why just get in touch with Al Capone in Chicago and I'll buy it off you."

The boys said Mr. Howard might hear from them and were starting to leave when he said, "If you want to run that money up, I can give you something to bet on tomorrow that might be as good as 8 to 5." They thanked him for the tip and turned at the door.

The Hoop Never Rolled Back Home.

"Who, me?" Mr. Howard exclaimed indignantly. "I spend my time keeping guys out of jail. No beefs. But if you can see your way, get in touch with Capone."

Phocion's elaborate chivalry, his courtly manners, his sentimentality were part of the most fascinating character that I have ever met. His voice was soft, his face was round and baby pink, and a thousand courteous little attentions were instinctive with him. He had known all the great, rich gamblers of the last 35 years and his acquaintance ranged from Bar Harbor to the old Barbary coast.

Broke or not, he always rode in a Rolls-Royce, lived at the Plaza in New York or the Blackstone in Chicago, wintered in Florida, and when traveling by train had at least a compartment. He was constantly attended everywhere for 20 years by his colored valet and chauffeur, Ben Jones, of whom he often said: "Ben is beginning to ask for money, so I'm afraid I got to fire him."

Somehow, too, he always managed to raise the pay roll for the New York Press and either meet the printing bills or stand them off. And somehow, also, he could always find provisions to feed old tige at the faro bank, though he hadn't won much in the last four or five years.

"It's only money anyway, and your life don't go with it" was one of his philosophies, and another which I believe was original with him was, "All horse players must die broke," as I believe he did himself.

"All Horse Players Must Die Broke."

Phocion was not one of your typical cheap honest Johns of the underworld. His word to a friend was better than most government bonds, and he died with a hundred dollars owing to him for every dollar he may have owed. He had manners and honor.

It will be said that he was the last of his kind. He had to be. There was only one of him. There never was a close imitation. They are taking him back to Danville to bury him. The honor is Danville's, but I think that is wrong. He ought to have a little plot in the middle of Times square, with a rail around it for busted horse players to sit on in the cool of the evening. And for an epitaph on the stone there should be his favorite phrase, "All horse players must die broke."

WHITE SOX AND INDIANS RESUME SERIES TODAY

Milt Gaston Will Pitch for Chicagoans.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Four more chances remain for White Sox fans to view their heroes in 1933 American league play at Comiskey Park—this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon with the Cleveland Indians and Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 with the St. Louis Browns. If you miss these opportunities, however, you'll still have the city series, which probably will open at Wrigley field on Oct. 3 judging from the way things are going.

There are no more double headers on the Chicago home schedule and only three carded for their long trip to six cities, which begins tomorrow night when the lads push off for a one day stand in Detroit.

Heving Tomorrow.

The Sox this afternoon will employ Milton Gaston in an attempt to even the series with the Indians. If this is done the Sox will have won eight this season from the Indians as compared with ten lost. On Sunday Manager Fonseca will call upon his only recently consistent pitcher, Joe Heving. The Indians have Pearson, Ferrell, and Hildebrand eager to appear against the Comiskeys.

They Can Use $350.

The first eastern stop for the Sox is Washington. The last time the Sox were in Washington, in mid July, they licked the Senators three out of four. Then some of the Sox notables busted into print with the announcement that the Yankees would win the pennant eased up, showing again, of course, that experting is as uncertain as making basehits.

The Sox have something more important to think about than interviews, though. They have not lost sight of the fact that each player on the team which finishes fourth will cut about $350 of the world series dough. And $350 will buy a lot of stove wood.

PLAY DETROIT CHAMPIONS.

The fifth annual inter-city baseball game between the champions of the Detroit Church Athletic association and the pennant winners of the Chicago Union Church A. A. will be played today at Normal Park stadium. St. Stephen A. M. E. is the Detroit champion and St. John A. M. E. of Englewood will represent Chicago.

CHILDREN SEND GIFTS FOR ICE AND CAMP FUNDS

Tell in Letters How They Earned Money.

The beginners' department of the Bryn Mawr Community church yesterday contributed $5 to the Camp Algonquin fund, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, which provides vacations for weary tenement mothers and their children at the camp on the Fox river.

A letter attached to the $5 gift, apparently written by the teacher of the department, said that the children wanted "to help a mother have a little vacation, so she will feel happy and better able to care for her family this winter."

Camp Algonquin received another gift, $2, from V. H., bringing the total for the day to $7. Previously acknowledged contributions total $1,953.62, making a grand total of $1,960.62.

Children Send Gifts.

Contributions from children also were among the day's gifts to the Free Ice fund, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE for the benefit of families which are too poor to buy ice during the summer months.

Dorothy Ellen Myrick, 14 years old, Margaret Stockdale, 10, Dorothy Helen Stockdale, 7, and Phyllis Marie Kovacik, 6, sent a money order for 80 cents with a letter explaining that they earned the money selling homemade candy.

Another gift was for 96 cents, money earned by Marjorie L. Golder and Nancy J. Ascher by selling lemonade, as they explained in an accompanying letter. A familiar contributor, the Bookhouse for Children, 360 North Michigan avenue, sent $4.

Day's Gifts to Ice Fund.

F. H. Rawson	$ 10.00
Bookhouse for Children	4.00
Marjorie L. Golder and Nancy J. Acher	.96
Dorothy Ellen Myrick, Margaret Stockdale, Dorothy Helen Stockdale, and Phyllis Marie Kovacik	.80
Total	$ 15.76
Grand total	$1,699.04

Contributions to either the Free Ice fund or to the Camp Algonquin fund may be addressed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower. They will be acknowledged in the columns of this newspaper.

SIX CHICAGOANS SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO CRASHES

Six Chicagoans were seriously injured, two possibly fatally, yesterday in two automobile accidents in Indiana. In one Dr. Basil Lambrakis, and his wife, Ourania, 28, 4701 North Washtenaw avenue, were critically hurt when their car was forced into a ditch 10 miles from Michigan City. Dr. Lambrakis was not expected to live and his wife suffered the loss of her right leg. Two others in Lambrakis' car were less seriously hurt.

In the other accident, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rothschild, 420 Surf street, and Mr. and Mrs. Nate Jacobs, 515 Briar place, were injured in a head on collision near La Porte, Ind. All were taken to the Holy Family hospital in La Porte. Mrs Rothschild suffered a fractured skull and may die. Mrs. Jacobs was injured internally. Rothschild is a former part owner of Colosimo's cafe. Jacobs is an insurance broker at 166 West Jackson boulevard.

Miss Edna McIntyre, 62 years old, 1138 Columbia avenue, was killed Thursday at Mercer, Wis., when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a beer truck.

There were no automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday and the 1933 toll remained at 684.

19 ARRESTED IN SHACK COLONY RAID SENTENCED

Municipal Judge Leon Edelman yesterday sentenced Frank Garci, 34 years old, a Mexican, to a year in the Bridewell, and also sent 18 other Mexicans, all living in a shack colony at Jeffery avenue and 95th street, there to serve out fines ranging from $25 to $100.

The men were arrested in a drive to rid the South Chicago district of panhandlers, following the fatal stabbing of a man, who had refused to give alms to his assailant. Capt. Michael Lee of the South Chicago police told Judge Edelman that most of the fights and stabbings in the shack colony resulted from the use of marihuana cigarets.

Garci, it was charged, was under the influence of the drug when he stabbed Louis Laya, one of his neighbors, in the hand. He was charged with assault with a deadly weapon. Sylvester Perez, in whose possession a quantity of the cigarets were found, was sent to the Bridwell to work out a $100 fine.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Through an unfortunate transposition the name of Miss Clara Schilling, 22, 2131 North 31st street, appeared in the Milwaukee marriage license list Aug. 31, with George Luchon, 26, 844 South 76th street. The license was issued to Miss Schilling and to Henry Van Willigen, 21, 19 North 31st street.

Signora Maria Luisa Astaldi, official Italian delegate to the international conclave of women writers held here in July, writes from Rome to ask correction of a statement attributed to her at that time, that women writers in Italy have been much repressed. Quoting her address, she declared that "women writers in my country do not stand in a position of fight or defense, but work with men in a veritable communion of ideas and feelings." Since the war, she added, Italian literature reflects the lightest, most humorous mood in its history.

JAMES A. WALKER, DAIRY INDUSTRY LEADER, IS DEAD

James Alexander Walker, president of the Blue Valley Creamery company of Chicago, died in his home at Pasadena, Cal., yesterday. For 30 years Mr. Walker, who was 67 years old, had an apartment in the Auditorium hotel.

Mr. Walker is credited with the idea of retailing butter in cartons. He also was the first manufacturer to make butter from hand separated cream, making it possible for farmers to ship pure cream to his creameries in a dozen states. Formerly the farmer had to send the whole milk to a creamery.

Walker first started a small creamery on the banks of the Blue river at Marysville, Kas., almost 50 years ago. Until his death he was active in promoting general dairy interests. More than 40 years ago Walker with his brother, C. J. Walker, and two other men organized the Blue Valley Creamery company which now has branches in many cities.

Surviving are the widow, a son, Ralph F. Walker of Chicago; a daughter, Mrs. Kathryn Willett, formerly of Chicago, who now lives in Pasadena; a sister, Mrs. Hattie C. Meeker of Wichita, Kas., and his brother, Carl J. Walker of Chicago.

JAPAN DENIES CHARGE SHE ARMS PACIFIC ISLANDS

TOKIO, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The navy office today handed vernacular newspapers a mimeographed statement denying charges that Japanese harbor works in the mandated Pacific islands were providing bases which would be useful to the navy in war time.

These accusations were said to have come from American sources and were tied in with the recent announcement of Admiral William Harrison Standley, chief of naval operations, that the United States Atlantic fleet would remain in the Pacific indefinitely.

A navy spokesman remarked that the keeping of the Atlantic fleet in the Pacific indicated that President Roosevelt's far eastern policy is the same as former President Hoover's and that this policy assumes that the Manchurian question still is unsettled.

AIR POLLEN COUNT IN AUGUST EXCEEDS FIVE YEAR AVERAGE

The pollen content of the air, during August, as counted on the top of the United States courthouse building, was slightly above the average for the last five years, according to O. C. Durham of the Abbott laboratories of North Chicago. It was, however, 50 per cent lower than that of August, 1932, which was the worst month for hay fever sufferers in the last five years, he said.

Figures for last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday showed the pollen count reduced to 45, 75 and 156 respectively. The count represents the number of pollen grains in 1 cubic yard of air. The month's peak came on last Saturday, when the count reached a figure of 437.

It may be that the worst of the season is over, as it started early this year, in which case the peak of hay fever suffering has been reached at the earliest recorded date, Durham said.

Harrison, who now is collector of internal revenue and also heads the Illinois advisory board for federal public works, worked with Mr. Kruetgen when he was president of the school board and Mr. Kruetgen was a trustee.

The new postmaster was sworn in by former Judge George T. Page of the United States Board of Appeals. James F. Bishop, vice president of the Iroquois club, was master of the ceremonies in Postmaster Kruetgen's flower banked office in the United States courthouse. The room was crowded with Democratic officeholders.

Postmaster Kruetgen's first official act was to choose as his secretary Gustave M. Wenzel, chief auditor of the postoffice, and a veteran of 24 years of government service.

FEAR SLEEPING SICKNESS KEEPS VISITORS AWAY

St. Louis Moves to Allay Alarm of Outsiders.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Hearing that visitors were avoiding St. Louis and Missouri because of the "sleeping sickness" outbreak, city and federal health officers today issued statements intended to allay fear in the minds of outsiders.

Out of town students were canceling registration in St. Louis and Missouri schools, Dr. Joseph Bredeck, city health commissioner, said.

"People are unnecessarily alarmed," said Dr. Bredeck. "They dread visiting St. Louis or even going through the city. There is no evidence the disease is contagious. The number of cases per population is low. Business is going on the same as usual in St. Louis and schools will be opened here Tuesday.

"The disease is more prevalent in suburban areas than in the city proper and I feel that business men and others who have business here may do so without undue risks."

Senior Surgeon J. P. Leake, who is directing United States public health service studies here, said that in his opinion "there is no good reason for students refraining from pursuing college work in the state or from passing through the metropolitan centers en route."

Dr. Bredeck said no cases had been found to originate in the business and hotel districts.

STUDENT'S FATAL FALL ACCIDENT, INQUEST DECIDES

A few words spoken to a friend by William Martin, 20 years old, a Dartmouth college senior, as he lay dying yesterday, caused a coroner's jury to decide that the youth had accidentally fallen from a window of his seventh floor room in the Brevoort hotel while he was ill. Young Martin stopped in Chicago yesterday to act as a delegate to a fraternity convention while on the way east to school from his home in La Crosse, Wis.

Martin's dying statement was recounted by his companion, Charles Brown of Donora, Pa., who said that he, his brother Allen and Martin had spent the day at the Fair, attended a dance at the Palmer House, and had a few drinks during the evening. When they went to their hotel room Martin had complained that he was ill but finally retired, Brown said.

Young Martin's father, William G. Martin, partner in a textile mill in La Crosse, attended the inquest, having flown to Chicago when notified of his son's death.

LEVY ON EDITH M'CORMICK'S ESTATE FOR DEBT

The American National Bank and Trust company, as successor of the Straus National Bank and Trust company, yesterday levied on a portion of the Villa Turicum estate of the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick to satisfy a $48,728 judgment obtained shortly before her death in August, 1932. The land on which the levy was placed is at the south end of the estate at Lake Forest and does not include the residence. The judgment was obtained in the Circuit court of Cook county on Aug. 15, 1932, on a note executed by Mrs. McCormick. Yesterday it was recorded in the Circuit court of Lake county by Gottlieb & Schwartz, attorneys for the bank, and Sheriff Lester Tiffany was instructed to execute the levy in satisfaction of the judgment.

ITALY PUTS BAN ON PUBLICITY FOR ALL BUT IL DUCE

ROME, Sept. 1. — (AP) — Publicity seekers who make their presence at public gatherings the occasion to get their names and photographs into public print have been called to order by Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party.

Starace issued an order tonight prohibiting the publication of photographs and names of persons attending meetings. The order affects Starace himself and all others except Premier Mussolini and a few other government officials. Photographs of objects or crowds, however, may be published.

The new order follows closely Il Duce's recent personal order that Fascist officials discontinue the use of high hats and lead a more simple life.

STOCKS FIRMER ON OUTLOOK FOR LABOR DAY TURN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—Most traders stayed out of the stock market today, brushing up the old rabbit's foot and waiting for Labor day to happen.

There is a tradition that things with a business rating are destined to grow better or worse after this so-called turning point of the seasons. While the rule very often fails to click, veterans of the stock speculative game never fail to pay it a deep and abiding respect. If the date was just one more red square on the calendar last year it is sure to bring some change this one, they say, and if it should fail to do so, well, 1934 is ahead and that will be another year.

Oils and Rails Strong.

Thanks to a little extra attention they devoted to the oil and railroad shares, they made it look something like a market. There was quite a sprinkling of buying orders toward the end, in fact, so that the list went into the week-end record displaying quite a healthy looking collection of small sized gains, some of them amounting to as much as a point or so.

Atchison, New York Central, Illinois Central, and a few others gained a point or so each, and Union Pacific rose about two points. Some of the rail equipment issues showed mild improvement.

Oil shares staged the best performance. They got their kick, of course, from rising gasoline prices and the "understanding" that the administration is preparing to fix better basic prices for petroleum products under the NRA scheme of things. Amerada once more claimed the spotlight, rising to the best levels in its history, and Barnsdall, Consolidated, Continental, Houston, the Standards, Ohio Oil, Pure Oil, Phillips, Texas corporation, and Mexican Seaboard were all well bought.

Farm Issues Given Whirl.

Some effort was made to stir up interest in the farm shares on rumors that recognition of Russia is near, but the group was content to idle along with the rest. Montgomery Ward was slightly unsettled by opposition of a stockholders' group to the management. It sold off about a point, but later rallied to erase all but a small fraction of its early loss.

The gold shares were firm, but little enthusiasm was manifested in their behalf. The trading community is still trying to get set in its view on the outlook for inflation.

Among individual issues to stand out were Freeport Texas, which advanced 9 points on a single sale; Helme, which rose over 2 points to a new peak for the year; Johns-Manville preferred, which tumbled 6 as good measure for its tumble of 12 yesterday, and American Metals preferred, which rose 5 points on a couple of sales.

Elsewhere gains ranging from major fractions to about one point were returned by U. S. and Bethlehem Steels, National Biscuit, American Telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, Case, American Tobacco, Kennecott, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, and Woolworth.

Federal Plan, Banks' Policy Are Opposed

BY HOWARD WOOD.

With Washington insisting that the banks lend more liberally and the banks, recalling the excited mobs that surged through their lobbies in 1931 and again in 1932, stubbornly refusing to take longer chances with their depositors' money an interesting situation has developed.

The administration leaders, particularly the NRA group, demand that bank loans be made to flow more freely, in order that industries that have increased their operating costs through code signing may have plenty of credit to produce more goods for the increased consumption that is promised as a result of increased employment.

The bankers say that they will lend to borrowers who can convince them of ability to repay, but that they can't base their lending policies on the promise of increased business where the orders aren't actually on the books.

Banks, they say, can't match the lavish lending policy of the federal government because whereas the government can print more money if it lends and spends itself into too tight a spot, the banks do not possess such an out.

First, if the NRA plan results in the definite assurance of improved profits for business concerns more of them will qualify for loans under existing bank lending policies.

Second, the administration has various powers over the banks the exercise of which might bring such pressure on the banks that they would be forced to liberalize their lending. If pressure is resorted to, however, the government would have to be prepared to pour "asset" money into the banks in the event the scheme failed to work out as intended.

Here's a story told by the head of one large bank which illustrates the banker's viewpoint

"I received a letter the other day from a small manufacturer downstate who complained that our loan officers had refused to make him a perfectly good loan," he said.

"This man wanted $25,000 to finance him in the manufacture of a certain amount of goods. On the facts contained in the letter it looked like a good risk and I called our loan officers on the carpet.

"It developed that the manufacturer had no orders for the goods he planned to manufacture, that practically all the 'accounts receivable' mentioned on his balance sheet were hocked with finance companies, and that the company was heavily in debt to a number of its big stockholders.

"Requests for loans from concerns in similar condition come in every day. No doubt many of them write to Washington as they write to me. On the evidence they present in their letters it looks as though the banks are turning down good legitimate borrowers. It's only when you dig into the facts that you turn up the real condition of the petitioners."

How this tug of war between the administration and the banks will turn out nobody will predict at this time. The bankers say they won't take greater risks unless they are forced to.

Great pressure has already been laid on the banks from Washington. The manipulation of interest rates on short term government securities by the treasury, acting through the federal reserve banks, has reduced the yield on such paper to 0.12 per cent per annum. Loans of the type acceptable to banks are scarce. The banks are loaded with excess cash and carry excess reserves with the reserve banks.

These things alone appear to be insufficient, however. The banks have demonstrated that they will sacrifice earnings rather than make what they regard as injudicious loans or investments.

Some inkling as to the outcome may be forthcoming next week when the American Bankers' association gathers in Chicago to hear talks by Controller of the Currency O'Connor, Gov. Black of the reserve board, Chairman Jones of the R. F. C., and Mr. Berle of the brain trust.

Armour Plan Defeated by Junior Stock

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The defeat of the Armour & Co. financial reorganization scheme was due principally to the holdouts among the holders of the junior securities, the A and B stocks. This was disclosed yesterday when the management made public a report on the proxies received in support of the plan.

La Salle street was amused by the fact that it was the junior security holders who blocked the adoption of the plan. In financial quarters the view was widely held that the plan favored the junior holders. The report showed that 72 per cent of the preferred stockholders supported the plan, while only 66 2-3 per cent was necessary to ratify. Only 64.88 per cent of the class B common stockholders got behind the plan, while 67.29 per cent of the A holders supported the management.

Preferred Holders Back Plan.

The preferred stockholders stood to lose $10,000,000 in back dividends due them through adoption of the plan. But they gave it more support than either of the other classes of stock holders. As long as the present preferred stock remains outstanding, the chance of the junior holders ever receiving a dividend is extremely remote. Despite this, they were comparatively cool to the scheme.

The meeting of stockholders yesterday in the Armour gymnasium was a quiet affair in contrast to the first meeting Aug. 22. Although the management had previously announced its decision to discard the plan of recapitalization, the meeting attracted over 250 persons. No vote was taken on the plan. President T. G. Lee explained that adoption of the plan would necessitate too great a cash outlay to the dissenting stockholders.

Suggest Compromise Plan.

J. L. Kraus, New York attorney representing a group of protesting stockholders, made peace overtures to the management in suggesting coöperation in forming a new plan or reorganization. Referring to the defeat of the management's plan, he said: "If the management continues headstrong and obdurate, if it indicates the desire to play the part of a spoiled child and refuses to play the game at all unless it can be played its way, we give it solemn warning that no such government can continue."

Nothing was heard from the representatives of the committee headed by M. W. Borders, known as the Prince committee.

American farmers will harvest the smallest corn crop this year since 1901 with one exception. Despite what the trade regarded as more favorable weather conditions during the month of August, leading Chicago statisticians reduced their estimate on the crop 135,000,000 bushels as compared with the returns of a month ago and showed a drop of 38,000,000 bushels as compared with the government figures. Indicated yield of 2,235,000,000 bushels is 641,000,000 bushels below the final returns of 1932.

In many late districts late planted corn failed to pollinate and shorts formed but did not develop, says R. O. Cromwell's returns. This reduced the benefit of late rains below expectations. There will be many small kernels and ears, and much chaffy grain. After allowing for the higher per used in converting conditional figures into terms of bushels, B. W. Snow said the potential loss in the corn crop during the month was around 200,000,000 bushels.

Around 15 per cent of the oats acreage was not threshed this year according to Nat C. Murray, and the probable crop of this grain in bushels is below 600,000,000. Details follow:

	*Corn.	*Spring wheat.	*Oats.
B. W. Snow	2,300,000	149,000	678,000
N. C. Murray	2,241,000	153,000	672,000
R. O. Cromwell	2,223,000	157,000	655,000
H. C. Donovan	2,250,000	155,000	655,000
E. H. Miller	2,168,000	139,000	644,000

Govt., August	2,273,000	160,000	667,000

R. F. C. RATE CUT MAY AID CENTRAL REPUBLIC BANK

The Central Republic Trust company, which still owes a large amount to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, would be benefited substantially if plans to make a further reduction in interest rates is carried out. Washington reports indicate that the federal agency may make another cut as a means of stimulating credit expansion.

The last published statement of the Central Republic on April 20 showed a balance of approximately $69,000,000 owed to the R. F. C. of the original $90,000,000. On this balance the bank would pay a yearly interest of $2,760,000 at the present interest rate of 4 per cent for closed banks. A cut of one per cent would mean a yearly saving of $690,000. Stock of the trust company is currently quoted at 2¼ to 2½.

Carey Sees Satisfactory Code for Grain Exchanges

Conditions in Washington are working favorably to the grain exchanges, said Peter B. Carey, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, who with Lowell Hoit and Robert P. Boylan returned from that city yesterday. It was intimated that it will take a week or two before all details of the grain code are arranged. Washington officials are said to be aware of the necessity for grain exchanges for the economical marketing of grain as the best system that has ever been devised.

Fisk Rubber Corp. Reports Large Gain in Employment

Chicopee Falls, Mass., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Employment records of the Fisk Rubber corporation here today showed an increase of 2,736 workers for April to Aug. 19, when they totaled 3,428.

Treasury Sets Up New Rules for Gold Sales

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—A limited American market for the buying and selling of gold was set up today by regulations issued by Acting Secretary of the Treasurer Dean G. Acheson.

Permitting trading in gold under strict government supervision, the regulations allow the licensing of sellers and purchasers, who must report their transactions to the treasury. The regulations which bring about the first important lifting of the domestic gold ban, are based on President Roosevelt's recent executive orders.

Applications Ready.

Application blanks for licenses to acquire, sell, and hold gold will be available at federal reserve banks, mints, and assay offices tomorrow, Secretary Acheson announced.

Although permitting dealings in gold, the treasury is keeping strict supervision over them, the regulations reveal. All purchasers and traders must be licensed.

After securing a license a purchaser who wishes to use gold for exportation or for settling transactions will be allowed to buy the precious metal only from the federal reserve banks. Gold purchases for the settlement of obligations will be allowed only if other kinds of money will not suffice. In addition, records must be kept of these settlements.

Can Buy up to $100.

Purchasers who are seeking to obtain gold for use in industry, trade, or art, or who are traders supplying gold for industry and art, may buy gold from licensed dealers without a license as long as all the gold they have does not amount to more than $100. If the total amount exceeds $100, a license must be obtained on a record of all purchases and sales kept.

By allowing licensing of persons who are engaged in supplying gold to industries and other consumers, the regulations legalize a new system of government supervised gold dealers. Through them most of the gold for commercial uses will flow.

Must Report on Deals.

In addition to keeping records and obtaining licenses, all industrial consumers of gold must report to the treasury each month the amount of gold acquired during the month, the amount still on hand, and the disposition of gold no longer held.

Gold which industrial users may legitimately buy was specified by the treasury as follows: "Gold bullion received from natural deposits in the United States and sold under consignment" to the treasury, "gold held under a license to hold for use in industry, profession or art, or scrap gold in amounts not exceeding $100 owned by persons regularly engaged in industries, professions, and art."

INVESTORS WILL GET 391 MILLION DURING MONTH

Disbursement of $391,588,593 will be made during September to investors in the United States, in comparison with $442,540,172 for September, 1932, according to the New York Journal of Commerce.

Dividend payments aggregating only $90,700,000, against $130,100,000 in September, 1932, will be the smallest for any month in recent years. Interest payments will be well maintained, totaling $300,888,593, against $312,440,172 in September, 1932.

Dividends declared in August rose to a total of $215,851,119 for 540 corporations, against $127,985,998 for 563 corporations in July. In August, 1932, dividends were $250,104,547 for 615 corporations.

"PENNSY" TO RUN EXTRA CHICAGO HOLIDAY TRAINS

More than seventy-five extra and special trains will carry the greatest volume of passenger business over the Labor day holidays ever to be handled by the Pennsylvania at the Union station, according to a statement made yesterday by H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the Pennsylvania in Chicago. Between 30,000 and 35,000 people will move in and out of the station over the Pennsylvania, it is estimated.

The "Fort Dearborn" will arrive in eight sections from New York on Sunday, bringing passengers from New York, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh. The "Liberty Limited" will arrive in six sections with passengers from Baltimore and Washington.

GRAINS WEAKEN; TRADE EVENS UP OVER HOLIDAYS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Evening up operations for the triple holiday ahead and spreading between the various deliveries furnished the bulk of the trading in grains yesterday. Prices held within narrow limits. A bearish construction was placed on Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's statement regarding inflation, in which he expressed the belief that such action would make the farmers' position worse instead of better.

At no time were the leading grains, except rye, above Thursday's finish. Wheat closed ¼ to ½ cent lower, while corn was ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower; oats unchanged to ⅛ cent lower; rye, ⅜ cent higher to ¼ cent lower, and barley, ⅛ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower.

Closing Prices Shown.

September wheat finished at 85⅝ to 85⅞ cents, and December at 89¾ to 89⅞ cents. September corn was 48½ to 48⅝ cents, and December, 54⅝ to 54½ cents. September oats were 37 cents at the last and December, 40⅜ to 40½ cents. September rye was 76⅞ cents and December, 57 cents.

Issuance of private crop estimates, which indicated a tremendous shrinkage in feeding grains for the 1933-'34 season, failed to affect the grain markets to any extent. Bulk of the trading consisted in changing over from the September to the December future by cash interests, who absorbed the liquidating sales in the former.

Deliveries on September contracts in Chicago aggregated 9,133,000 bushels, including 2,145,000 bushels of cash wheat, 4,816,000 bushels of corn, and 1,494,000 bushels of rye, with moderate amounts of oats and barley.

Corn and Oats Crops Shrink.

The average estimate on corn was 2,235,000,000 bushels, against 2,876,000,000 bushels harvested last year. After allowing for the estimated amount on farms on Sept. 1, plus the commercial visible supply, the available amount of corn in all positions was estimated at 2,690,000,000 bushels, or 540,000,000 bushels less than last year.

The shortage of oats in North America is even more startling. Based on Murray's estimate on the Canadian crop and the average of the five Chicago statisticians on the American crop, the total available supply, exclusive of the amounts on farms, is around 977,000,000 bushels, including the visible supply, compared with 1,661,000,000 bushels on the same basis last year. The aggregate supply of all feeding grains in North America is estimated around 1,325,000,000 bushels less than in 1932.

Big Canadian Export Sales.

A big export business was put through in Canadian cash wheat during the day, with sales exceeding 1,250,000 bushels. Removal of hedges against this grain lifted Winnipeg ⅜ cent for the day in the face of the easiness in American markets.

Liverpool was affected by the lack of rain in Argentine and finished ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. Broomhall's Australian agent estimated the probable wheat crop of that country at 152,000,000 bushels, against 210,000,000 bushels harvested in 1932.

A detailed report from the department of agriculture on the world's wheat conference recently held in London indicates that the United States will have a minimum export quota of 90,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1934 and Canada a minimum of 263,000,000 bushels.

BUTTER AND EGG TRADING SETS AUGUST RECORD

Trading in butter and egg futures set a new record for August on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, sales totaling 8,435 cars—4,540 cars of eggs and 3,895 cars of butter. The largest total set in that month prior to this year was 8,244 cars in 1925. The volume this year compared with a total of 4,770 cars in 1932.

Sales for the eight months period were 24,602 cars of eggs and 21,935 cars of butter, compared with 10,091 cars of eggs and 11,972 cars of butter in the same period last year. The total for the period in 1931 was 14,208 cars of eggs and 15,589 cars of butter. The combined total of 46,358 cars this year compares with a 12 months total of 50,428 cars in 1932 and a 12 months total of 54,533 cars in 1931.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—An almost fourfold subscription to the latest offering of United States treasury discount bills and a further reduction in the cost of such financing to the government were announced tonight by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Acheson.

Subscriptions to the $75,000,000 of 91 day bills offered on Wednesday totaled $272,935,000, Acheson said. Accepted bids ranged from 99.966 to 99.977, affording yields from 0.09 to 0.13 per cent on an annual bank discount basis. The average price was 99.971, affording a yield of 0.12 per cent. The bills are dated Sept. 6 and will mature Dec. 6.

Wholesale Commodities Advance for Sixth Month

Dun's index number of wholesale commodity prices made its sixth consecutive monthly advance in August. On Sept. 1 this figure stood at $160,265, an increase of $4,131, or 2.65 per cent, over Aug. 1, compared with a rise of $9,247, or 6.6 per cent, during July. The index was 19.5 per cent above Sept. 1, 1932.

U. S. Deficit 234 Millions in Two Months

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—The federal government had a deficit of 234 million dollars at the end of the second month in its new fiscal year, the treasury department announced today. Without the expenditures of the various emergency agencies, the budget would have been approximately balanced

Expenditures for all purposes during the first 62 days ended Aug. 31 amounted to 580 million dollars, or about $9,6000,000 a day. Receipts during the same period amounted to 346 million dollars, or about $5,700,000 a day, leaving a deficit of $3,900,000 a day.

Two-Fifths for Emergencies.

Approximately 214 million dollars, or two-fifths, of the total expenditures were made by the emergency agencies created by the Roosevelt administration. On the receipt side of the ledger the emergency units could show only nine million dollars collected from the processing taxes.

If both emergency receipts and emergency expenditures were deducted, all except 30 million dollars of the 234 million dollar deficit would be wiped out, and the budget would be closer to balance than at any time since the beginning of the depression.

Even including the extraordinary expenditures, however, the deficit thus far in this fiscal year is only about a third of what it was during the same period last year. In the first two months of the previous year, revenues were 185 million dollars and expenditures 659 millions, compared with 346 million and 580 million, respectively, this year.

R. F. C. Big Spender.

Of the emergency expenditures thus far this year exactly half have been chalked up by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The bulk of the rest has gone to the public works easy money fund and the forest army, with Muscle Shoals, federal land banks and the farm and industrial control administrations getting minor sums.

Out of the ordinary expenditures, which aggregate 366 million dollars, 40 per cent has gone to the veterans' administration and bonus fund. Another 20 per cent has gone for national defense. Old line departments have cost 17 per cent, leaving the remaining 23 per cent for minor items.

DOLLAR SLIPS UNDER 70 CENTS; POUND STEADY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—The dollar cheapened further today. In terms of the gold standard exchanges its reaction was substantial but against sterling the United States unit showed only a small loss and it was slightly higher against a few currencies in the sterling group.

The French franc rose 4 points to 5.61½ cents, at which level the dollar had an indicated gold value of 69.78 cents, against 70.27 cents at yesterday's close. Sterling rose only ½ cent to $4.53¼.

STEEL CHIEFS EXPLAIN CODE TO 300 LEADERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—About 300 representatives of the steel industry assembled at the American Iron and Steel institute today to attend a meeting called by telegraph. The steel code was explained by Robert P. Lamont, president of the institute; A. W. Irwin, president of the United States Steel corporation, and Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

It was announced that 97 per cent of the industry had joined the code which, it is estimated, has already increased the monthly pay roll of the industry by $5,000,000. No figures were available on reëmployment. The institute serves as the board of control, together with three representatives of the government, under the code, and steel companies are required to file their prices with the institute.

Kaspar-American Receiver Pays 15% to Depositors

As ordered Thursday by Judge Robert E. Gentzel of the Superior court, the receiver for the Kaspar-American State bank made a payment of 15 per cent on the bank's deposits yesterday. On Thursday Judge Gentzel refused to rescind an order he had entered previously, which demanded the payment be made. It had been contested by a group that asked that it be deferred while reorganization plans were in progress.

TRADE IN STOCKS FALLS IN AUGUST, BUT PRICES RISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—The volume of business on the New York Stock exchange for August was on an extremely lower scale than in July, Saturday holidays throughout the month contributing to the dullness. Sales of stocks in August, as compiled by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, totaled 42,466,352 shares, compared with 120,300,463 in July and 82,649,154 in the same month a year ago.

Stock prices moved gradually higher and recovered the greater part of the losses made in the reaction of the preceding month. The market, as measured by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE combined averages, was, toward the end of August, within about four points of its high of the year of 98.05, made on July 18.

The combined averages gained 10.12 last month. This increased the advance of the year to date to 35.31.

MOST OF MAJOR MARKETS CLOSE TODAY, MONDAY

The nation's major commodity and security exchanges will begin a three day holiday this morning. The Winnipeg grain market will also be closed today and Monday. The Liverpool markets will remain open both days.

Oil Chiefs Argue Far Into Night on Prices Under Code

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—Members of the oil planning and coördinating committee appointed by President Roosevelt for the code for that industry after meeting with Secretary Ickes late today went into what promised to be an all night session as a result of an order from the interior secretary to submit recommendations to him by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning on provisions of the petroleum code for which regulations must be issued. The code is scheduled to become effective tomorrow and will effect the 1,200,000 employés of the twelve billion dollar oil industry.

Leaders estimated the working hour and wage provisions would necessitate the immediate employment of 250,000 more men and increase annual pay rolls $30,000,000.

Production Not Big Problem.

It is not considered that production allocation presented a major difficulty. Changes are expected to be made in this section of the code to tighten it up, with a view to having the federal government promulgate the allocation to each state instead of only making recommendations to state authorities or commissions.

The discussions today centered around the price control and production allocation sections of the oil code.

The price control provisions are the ones that are providing the real difficulties. After spending practically all of yesterday's and today's sessions on that section, it was temporarily laid aside so that other questions of a relatively minor character could be ironed out.

Seek Maximum Prices.

It is understood that there is considerable sentiment in the committee for establishment of maximum retail prices for petroleum products. The ratio in the code, which provides that prices of crude oil must be 18.5 times the refinery wholesale price of gasoline has also received consideration. Minimum prices for crude oil were expected to be set in the neighborhood of $1 a barrel.

It was a question whether the code went into effect at midnight or would at 10:27 p. m. tomorrow, two weeks to the minute from its approval by President Roosevelt, but it was evident it would not be fully operative for several days, because of time needed to put into effect price and production schedules.

Receivers Act as Officers Defend Conduct.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—Federal receivers for the First National Bank-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce today took the offensive in the court battles growing out of the closing of the two big banks. They filed assessment suits against eight directors and promised "plenty of action" in seeking to compel the directors to pay 100 per cent assessments on their stock.

A formal statement by the receivers was issued while three directors of the banks were defending the conduct of the banks and denying charges made by Senator Couzens before Judge Harry E. Keidan, sitting as a one man grand jury to investigate the cause of the banks' collapse. They blamed the failure of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for failure to furnish financial aid and also the bank examiners for their severity.

Receivers Blame Officials.

"Officers, directors, borrowers, and depositors had their chance while the banks were running," said B. C. Schram, receiver for the Guardian National Bank of Commerce. "Had they functioned as they should we would never have been here.

"We came here to collect assets and to distribute them to their owners, the depositors. We feel the time has come to act and from now on there will be plenty of action. During the long controversy the fact has gradually but certainly gained ground that in the final analysis the one champion of the depositor is Uncle Sam and his appointed representatives, and under the law our one duty is to the depositors."

The assessment suits were based on ten shares of stock held by each director, as "qualifying shares." Most of the stock of the two banks was held by the Detroit Bankers company and the Guardian-Detroit Union Group, Inc.

Bank Directors Testify.

The bankers who testified before Judge Keidan were Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the First National bank; Detroit; Emory W. Clark and Frederick M. Alger, former directors of the institution. Mills declared it was "utterly false" that he had dictated the method to be used by the bank's bookkeeping department in estimating its liquidity. He denies that there was any "kiting of checks" between the First National and any other bank, as Senator James Couzens had charged in previous testimony, and denied that "loans of millions" were made to friends of the directors.

Clark blamed Senator Couzens directly for the failure of the two banks. "Senator Couzens was critical of the Reconstruction Finance corporation loan asked by the Union Guardian Trust company," he asserted. "That upset the apple cart."

Alger declared that reorganization would insure depositors a much larger distribution than is possible under the present receivership.

General Baking.

Investors' Guide: I am interested in purchase of stock of General Baking company, but first would like to have what information you might give me, which service is suggested in your paper. I am a regular reader.—S. F. J.

Answer: General Baking company is the second largest domestic maker of bread. Bread accounts for about 90 per cent of output. The remainder of sales is accounted for by cakes and pastries.

Extensive advertising has helped maintain its share of sales. Demand for bread, a necessity, has held up well. The practice of chain stores in featuring low priced bread as a leader, however, has had an adverse effect on the price structure. Competition from local bakers has also been acute. This more than offset lower raw material and labor prices.

An upward trend in sales during the second quarter of 1933, after a weak first quarter, enabled the company to report a profit of $1,022,000, or 42 cents per common share, for the 26 weeks to July 1, 1933, against net profit of $2,115,000, or $1.11 per common share, for the corresponding 1932 period. Repurchase of outstanding bonds has cut down interest charges and revaluation of assets has lowered depreciation charges.

Net income for 1932 was $3,790,000, or $1.94 per common share, against net of $4,838,000, or $2.58 per common share, for 1931. Net for 1930 was $7,166,000, against $7,229,000 for 1929.

At the close of 1932 cash of $5,255,000 compared with total current liabilities of $2,029,000.

Funded debt totaled $4,785,000, down $1,215,000 from the year before. There are outstanding 87,883 shares of $8 dividend no par preferred and 1,588,697 shares of $5 par common. Effective July 1, 1933, the common was placed on a 25 cent quarterly dividend basis, against a previous 50 cent basis.

The preferred deserves a fairly good rating. The common is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

All in Default.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly advise me if any of my bonds, as listed, are paying interest? They are city of Porto Alegre, province of Santa Fé, state of San Paulo, republic of Chile, state of Rio Grande do Sul, and city of Montevideo.—C. R. O.

No interest is currently being paid on any of these issues.

BUYING POWER NOW 5 BILLION A YEAR LARGER

Labor Body Computes Gain Due to Recovery.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—An increase of more than $5,000,000,000 in the current annual purchasing power of the country over that of last year due to the recovery program was reported today by the American Federation of Labor in its monthly survey of business.

Combined incomes of wage earners and salaried workers for July were placed by the federation at $287,000,000 more than in the preceding March. Thus, assuming that recent gains would be sustained, it was asserted that the increase in earnings of this class of workers would be $3,444,000,000 on an annual basis. In addition it was estimated that farmers' income this year would be $2,000,000,000 more than in 1932.

Sees Recovery Just Begun.

"Thus, even before it is fully under way," said the federation's analysis, "the recovery program has already poured new purchasing power into the market at the rate of over $5,000,000,000 a year. This alone would be enough to raise total retail sales 17 per cent.

"To organize a nation of 125,000,000 people in a cooperative drive against depression is a colossal task; no one could possibly expect large results in the first few months of organization. Nevertheless, as September opens we can already see clear signs of real progress. Since the speculative rise of business was checked in July figures are beginning to reveal a solid foundation for business advance.

Over Two Million Reemployed.

It was estimated by the federation that from March to July 2,033,000 men and women have gone back to work. By the latter month, unemployment had been reduced by 1,900,000, said the federation, the number still out of work being 11,573,000, compared with 13,471,000 in March. It was explained in connection with this apparent discrepancy that while 2,033,000 new jobs were available during the period, there was a simultaneous increase of 135,000 in the total number seeking work, so that the net decline in unemployment from March to July was about 1,900,000.

"In July, for the first time since the bank crisis, wage rates per hour have turned upward and hours per week have been shortened," the analysis continued. "The total average changes are slight, but they are most significant because they show a distinct change of trend."

JEWEL TEA HAS $730,839 SALES FOR FOUR WEEKS

The Jewel Tea company reported yesterday that sales for the four weeks ending Aug. 12 were $730,839 against $755,629 for parallel weeks in 1932, a decrease of 3.28 per cent. The average number of sales routes for the period was 1,351 in 1932 and 1,333 in 1932.

Sales for the first 32 weeks of 1933 were $6,044,155, against $6,820,115 in the like period of last year, or a decline of 11.38 per cent.

Sales of the 84 stores of Jewel Food Stores, Inc., a subsidiary of the Jewel Tea Company, Inc., for the four weeks ending Aug. 12, 1933, were $290,247. For the 32 weeks ending Aug. 12, 1933, sales of an average of 86 stores were $2,382,093.

FENNER, BEANE COMPANY OPEN HAVANA OFFICE

Charles E. Fenner, senior partner who made the negotiations, said that the decision of the firm was based on the belief that "a new era is dawning in Cuba" and that a contribution to the economic life of the island might be made by the provision of means for investment in American corporations.

The office in Havana will be the fifth foreign branch operated by Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider. The firm has two in London and one each in Toronto and Paris.

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW SALES OF RADIOS BEST SINCE 1929

Grigsby-Grunow company shipped over 41,000 radios in August, the best month since 1929, Le Roi J. Williams, vice president, said yesterday. The September schedule has been stepped up 60 per cent over August, he added.

The tube plant is now working day and night shifts and the balance of the plant will go on that schedule on Sept. 6, he said. With the increase in production employment will total 4,000 persons. The company is operating under NRA.

U. S. WILL OFFER BONUS TO LOWER TOBACCO CROPS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The farm adjustment administration today replied to the demands of flue cured tobacco growers for relief by announcing a program which includes benefit payments in return for promises to reduce the crop next year.

In addition, Secretary Wallace said similar "adjustment programs" would be inaugurated for 1934 crops of burley, Maryland, dark air cured and dark fire cured types of tobacco.

In order to raise money to pay the farmers, a processing tax will be levied on all flue cured tobacco for domestic consumption. The levy will be applied Oct. 1 and the farm administration hinted it would be around four cents a pound by asserting it "could be" at that rate.

Four cents is the difference between the present price of tobacco and the parity price, the latter figure being the amount flue cured tobacco would have to bring to have the purchasing power it had in the period from 1919 to 1929.

The farm administration said the processing tax on tobacco in the marketing year beginning Oct. 1 would raise around $10,000,000 and that all of that amount—if necessary—would be "used to bring the production of the 1934 flue cured tobacco crop as much below the present level of consumption requirements as the present crop is above that level."

Details of the plan remain to be worked out, but J. B. Hutson, chief of the tobacco section, said it involved cash payments to individual growers who promised to reduce production.

Will Allot Poundage.

The reduction will be on an allotment basis through which the growers will diminish the quantity of tobacco, figured on a poundage basis, which they will deliver to market. Tobacco experts figured that a reduction of 15 per cent in flue cured tobacco would be sufficient, theoretically, at least, to raise the price to parity.

A portion of the benefit payments to farmers who contract to reduce production probably will be made this fall or winter and the remainder upon proof that they have carried out their promises to the farm administration.

Just before the announcement was made today a delegation of South Carolina growers conferred with Secretary Wallace and Hutson. These farmers said they wanted something done to boost the price this year, although they were not hostile to the arrangement involving payments for a reduction in production.

South Carolina Halts Sales.

Holiday in North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 1.—(AP)—North Carolina's huge tobacco markets, which supply much of the world's smoking needs, go on a voluntary holiday tomorrow by proclamation of the governor.

Calling upon farmers and warehousemen to refrain from sales of the flue cured crop until the government acts to raise prices, Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus issued the proclamation last night.

ILLINOISANS SUE CHICAGO BROKER ON STOCK DEALS

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Operations on the New York and Chicago grain and stock exchanges by Bloomington and central Illinois residents are reflected in 12 damage suits aggregating $88,500, filed here today in the Circuit court against Roscoe Rockwood & Co., Bloomington, suspended July 25 by the Chicago Board of Trade, and James E. Bennett & Co., Chicago.

The suits were filed on the theory that the Bennett company is jointly liable with the Rockwood company for debts alleged to have been incurred in several transactions on the stock exchange. The plaintiffs allege that they placed money with the defendants on the New York and Chicago exchanges.

It appears from the bills that the majority of purchases were on margins, but outright purchases are mentioned in a few instances. It is alleged the defendants wrongfully sold out certain accounts. The principal question involved in the case, attorneys for both parties said, is whether Bennett & Co. are jointly responsible with the Rockwood company.
